Everett Colby, Republican, Arraigns His Party for Delay and "Broken Promises."

GOMPERS GIVES LABOR VIEW

Theodore Marburg Declares the Court Has Already Minimized the Chances of War.

WOMEN DEMAND OUR ENTRY

Heads of Several Organizations Say It Is In Line With Our Past Policy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Advocates of American entry into the World Court, including men and women leaders in many of the nation's activities, continued presenting their case before the Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee in three sessions today.

Endorsement of the Court was made by Theodore Marburg of Baltimore, former Ambassador to Belgium; Professor Manley O. Hudson of Harvard, President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, and nearly a score of others, including women in behalf of a miscellaneous number of organizations.

Everett Colby, a Republican leader in New Jersey and former State Senator there, told the committee that "there never was a time when the people lacked confidence in their leaders at Washington so much as at the present moment," and he arraigned the Republican Party for promises made in 1920 which he said had not yet been fulfilled. He charged that he and other voters had been misled by Republican leaders and that unless the Senate acted before the election hundreds of thousands would feel that they had been betrayed.

Mr. Colby, known as a Progressive, is Chairman of the Executive Committee of the League of Nations Non-Partisan Association. He was not down on the regular list of speakers of the Churches of Christ in America, which arranged the program. When that list had been exhausted today Senator Pepper, who was presiding, invited any one in the room to speak.

Mr. Colby related some of his observations in Europe, and particularly conversations with members of the World Court. They recalled to him the trouble the United States had over a period of more than twenty-five years in getting sufficient European sentiment enlisted to support such a court. Mr. Colby declared it was difficult for the people of these countries to understand why the United States, after all the efforts of its spokesman, had failed to join the Court. He said he had been over this country a great deal in recent months and had found that public sentiment was awakening rapidly to conditions.

Scores Broken Election Promises.

The campaign of 1920 and the promises made at that time were recalled.

"The leaders of the Republican Party," Mr. Colby continued, "made a statement at that time for the purpose of getting votes. They got my vote, and the votes of thousands of others on faith. So far as I know, nothing has been done up to this time.

"If nothing is done by this Congress there will be hundreds of thousands of young men in this country who will think that they have been betrayed, and I trust you will take that matter into consideration, Mr. Chairman."

At the end of today's hearing Chairman Pepper announced that after the subcommittee had had an opportunity to digest the mass of papers and speeches in the record, a decision would be made on the future course of the subcommittee and whether any one in opposition to the World Court would be heard. It was stated that the advocates would have a chance at rebuttal if the other side was presented.

Members of the subcommittee repeated today that they were without power to make recommendations to the Foreign Relations Committee, but must simply report their findings to that body.

Those present at the hearing were aroused to enthusiasm a few moments before Mr. Colby addressed the committee. The speaker was Mrs. Anna Garlin Spencer of the New York Council for International Cooperation to Prevent War, a small, gray-haired woman, who defied the Foreign Relations Committee to refuse to report out a World Court resolution.

"Nothing that you can do to put the United States into the World Court will be [illegible] courageous for the good people of the United States to follow," she said.

"I beg you to consider that you are our representatives. The committee on Foreign Relations does not stand as a remote body. No body or commission of Representatives or Senators stand or fall to themselves. Every voter is under bond to see that we have a leadership to carry us onward, and not backward.

"We beg you to consider that you are custodians of our children and of our children's children. Remember that above all it is the voice of the people you must obey, and the voice of the people is for the substitution of a World Court of some kind that will substitute law for war."

Gompers Declares Labor's Support.

The support of the American Federation of Labor was announced in a communication from President Gompers, submitted through Edgar Wallis, a legislative representative of that organization. Mr. Wallis declared that "the American worker realizes that a position of isolation for the United States is an impossibility. Whatever affects the economic conditions of the world affects us. We are for participa-

Swiss to Name Quai for Wilson On July 4 as League Founder

GENEVA, May 1.—The beautiful Quai Mont-Blanc, flanking the Rhone River near the entrance to Lake Leman, will be solemnly renamed the Quai President Wilson on July 4, when a commemorative tablet overlooking the Quai and the lake will be dedicated.

A procession of school children, dressed in white and divided into groups representing the fifty-four nations that are members of the League, will pass through the streets of the city in honor of the late President, founder of the League, and will commemorate his choice of Geneva as the permanent seat of the association. Each group will be attired in national costume and will carry American flags. The American Minister to Switzerland and members of the diplomatic corps have been invited to attend the ceremony.

BOITO'S OPERA 'NERO' ACCLAIMED AT MILAN

Long-Awaited Work Draws $45,000 House and Has Sumptuous Production.

SCENIC EFFECTS NOTABLE

Toscanini Directs in Masterly Way the Musical Score, Which Lacks Supreme Moments.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, Italy, May 1.—Boito's long-awaited opera "Nerone" was produced tonight at La Scala before a brilliant and crowded house. Boito, it is known, spent the greater part of his life pondering the construction of this drama of Imperial Rome, which he designed to be his master work. Since his death its production has engaged the concentrated efforts of the finest artists obtainable in their several departments. With Toscanini in charge of the score, the most penetrating of musical interpretation was assured. Ludovico Pogliaghi, architect and archaeologist, obtained the utmost accuracy in the reconstruction of the life of ancient Rome and with Fortuno's imaginative stage management and Carambo's magnificently designed costumes, the whole thing presents a series of pictures which are masterpieces of stage pageantry.

The impressions produced on the eye and ear are so bewilderingly complex that to sort them out in the space of a first night dispatch is out of the question. What will be most eagerly asked is how far the music itself, which has been kept a profound secret until the moment of this first hearing, contributes to the impression produced by the spectacle and drama. Only supreme music could justify the production of "Nerone" as opera. While the music is constantly apt in description and coloring and in some moments rises to a dramatic intensity and in others to nobility, it is difficult to name one moment which may be called supreme and it is certain that in some of the most exciting moments the music becomes almost negligible. The first act, however, raises great expectations.

Nero on the Stage.

The wonderful scene on the Appian Way at night and the opening with choral voices produce a sense of mystery to which horror is added when with a violent orchestral outburst, Nero rushes on stage, bearing the ashes of his murdered mother. This is the act of the greatest variety for it introduces the contending forces of the drama, Nero himself; Simon Magus, prophet of debased religion; Asteria who as priestess becomes through her infatuation for Nero a tool in the hands of Simon, and the Christians of whom Fanuel is the apostle and Rubria the devotee.

Boito's characterization of these contrasting elements through his music is thoroughly Italian. It is done by swiftly changing mood, not by systematic representative themes. Such allusions as that to the traditional intonation of the Credo in the passage where Simon Magus offers to buy the gift of God from the Christians are rare, yet, in spite of its versatility, one misses the spontaneous glow which produces the great singing moments of Italian opera, though Signor Pertile, as Nero, and Signora Raisa as Asteria, did all that was possible to produce the lyrical thrill which is the life of such opera. These two have one outstanding moment in the second act which is mainly concerned with horrid mysteries practised in the temple over which Simon Magus presides.

PHONE RATE RISE OF 10% IN THIS CITY GRANTED BY COURT

BASED ON PLEA OF DEFICIT

John W. Davis, Counsel, Says Company Has Been Losing $20,000 a Day.

INCREASE IS NOT FINAL

Company Puts Up $5,000,000 Bond to Insure Refund if It Loses the Decision in Dispute.

After hearing argument yesterday in the suit of the New York Telephone Company to enjoin further enforcement of the telephone rates fixed by the Public Service Commission, Federal Judge John C. Knox granted the restraining order and permitted the company an immediate increase of 10 per cent. The increase is limited to this city and will affect all classes of service except coin boxes. The rates against which the company protested went into effect March 1, 1923, and, according to the company, its earnings up to Dec. 31, 1923, fell short by $3,000,000 of the 7 per cent. return which the commission admitted the company was entitled to earn.

The basis of the return was the value fixed by the commission, of the company's property used in the service which was much lower than the valuation of the company. The latter contended that it should be permitted to earn 8 per cent. on its own valuation figure on the basis of reproduction.

Estimated Deficit $7,500,000.

John W. Davis, counsel for the company, said in his argument before the court that the estimated deficit for the current year, under the 7 per cent. return, would amount to about $7,500,000, even on the low rate base fixed by the commission, and that the actual shortage on the company's estimates of expenses would exceed $7,500,000 by many millions. Major Charles T. Blakeslee appeared for the Public Service Commission and Wilbur W. Chambers for the Attorney General.

According to figures gathered by Assistant Corporation Counsel M. M. Fertig, who represents the city in all telephone matters, the gross income of the company for service rendered in this city during 1923 was $65,493,580. The income from pay stations was $9,479,[illegible], which leaves about $56,000,000 on which the company will collect an additional 10 per cent. Estimates made during the arguments in court were to the effect that the increase would net the company only about 6 per cent on the valuation fixed by the Public Service Commission.

Mr. Davis told the Court that the company was losing $20,000 a day and that this loss could never be recovered. He said that the company would give a bond guaranteeing the return of money paid on any increase allowed if the courts finally decided that the increase was unjustified. He asserted that the company was earning only 4.06 per cent. on the valuation fixed by the Public Service Commission and only 2.75 per cent. on an "equitable" valuation.

Jurisdiction of Commission May End.

The 10 per cent. increase will continue until the case comes before the Statutory Court, composed of three Judges, for final argument. It was suggested that the matter would be hurried and that in all probability it would be argued before the court in about a fortnight. If the 10 per cent. increase, or any other change in the rates, is fixed by this court, it will end the jurisdiction of the Public Service Commission.

Meanwhile Judge Knox required the company to furnish a $5,000,000 bond in the event that restitution eventually should be ordered. The bond was supplied by the parent concern, the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

At the last hearing on rates before the commission, the company made a vigorous protest over the delay. Its application for an increase was filed in February and, according to the company, the end was still nowhere in sight. It was just after this protest that the company instituted the injunction proceedings.

In its complaint filed with the court it is alleged that the present fair and reasonable value of the property of the company in the State exceeds $425,000,000, the present cost of reproduction is estimated to be in excess of $480,000,000 and the cost to the company in excess of $355,000,000. The latter figure does not include the items of franchises and the going concern value.

Upon the cost of the property the company asserted it had earned during 1919, 5.72 per cent.; 1920, 1.35 per cent.; 1921, 3.55 per cent.; 1922, 3.62 per cent.;

Celler Charges 'Dry' Member Was Drunk In House in 'Fullest' Sense of the Word

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—A charge that a "dry" member of the House appeared in the chamber yesterday "drunk" in the "fullest' sense of that term," is contained in a letter addressed to Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, by Representative Emanuel Celler of New York.

Mr. Celler's letter reads:

"I congratulate you upon your courageous statement concerning prohibition. The 'drys' will pillory you, but I am sure you are unafraid. As a Columbia man, class of '10, I am glad my alma mater has a 'prexy' who, like David, is willing to fight a Goliath.

"As an illustration of the utter hypocrisy of prohibition, yesterday in the House a 'dry' member was actually drunk—in 'fullest' sense of that term.

"Another illustration is the distinguished, or rather extinguished 'dry,' Anderson, who affected a halo around his head, and now has a ball and chain at his feet.

"The world does not rest. It really does turn around. We are now turning away from fanatical prohibition toward sane temperance.

"The tide for liberalization of the Volstead act is rising. Before the present session ends we liberals in Congress will force consideration of the beer bill."

Army World Flier Missing in Alaskan Hop; Boats Search Along Storm-Swept Coast

CHIGNIK, Alaska, May 1 (Associated Press).—Tense search by such agencies as the Government could concentrate hurriedly, went forward today between here and the Shumagin Islands, 150 miles southwest, for Major Frederick L. Martin, around-the-world flight commander, who disappeared yesterday after taking the air at Chignik under desperate conditions for Dutch Harbor, 400 miles away.

The best hope held was that Major Martin and his mechanician, Sergeant Alva Harvey of Cleburne, Texas, had taken refuge in some cove on the desolate, rocky coast of the Alaska Peninsula.

The Coast Guard cutter Algonquin is directing the search. The Algonquin was at the Shumagin Islands all last week awaiting Major Martin's attempt to rejoin his comrades at Dutch Harbor. He was separated from them April 16 when he was forced down at Cape Igvak while they came on here and later went on to Dutch Harbor.

Perryville, a cannery station about half way to the Shumagins, and Nitrofania, between Perryville and Chignik, are the only spots on the coast of the part of the Alaska Peninsula along which the hunt is being pressed where any white men are to be found.

FALSE PASS, Unimak Island, April 30 (By Wireless to The Associated Press via Bremerton, Wash.).—Fears are expressed here for the safety of Major Martin.

The North Pacific Ocean has been lashed by terrific gales, the wind frequently reaching a velocity of 100 miles an hour. The air at the wireless station has been filled all day with snow blown from the mountainsides and neighboring peaks. Even seagulls making their home here did not try to fly today, seeking sheltered nooks and staying out of the cold wind.

BREMERTON, Wash., May 1.—A wireless message from the Coast Guard cutter Algonquin at Dutch Harbor, Alaska, received about noon today, said no trace had been found of Major Martin.

REYNOLDS INDICTED FOR GRAND LARCENY

Long Beach Mayor and Treasurer Gracy Charged With Theft of $8,000 City Funds.

EACH HELD IN $2,500 BAIL

Other Indictments Expected in Nassau County Inquiry Before Week Ends.

William H. Reynolds, formerly State Senator and now Mayor of Long Beach, was indicted yesterday for the larceny of $8,280 by the Extraordinary Grand Jury, convened by order of Governor Smith on April 7 to sift charges of graft and corruption in Nassau County. Treasurer John Gracy of Long Beach was indicted jointly with Reynolds. Both appeared before Justice Cropsey in Mineola and pleaded not guilty. They were released on bail of $2,500 each, furnished by a surety company.

Three indictments were brought in. Each is based on substantially the same allegations, but each refers to the payment of a specific sum out of the funds of the City of Long Beach. The three payments were made on different dates and were of different amounts. The amounts were $2,440, $4,840 and $1,000, a total of $8,280.

The indictments, which came as a surprise, are understood to be but the beginning of a series. They are the first found as the result of the Grand Jury's investigation of conditions in Nassau County, and there are more important matters under investigation than these indictments relate to. Other indictments may be found within a week, some of them, possibly, against the same individuals.

Reynolds Nervous, Ill at Ease.

Reynolds, apparently, has been expecting some such development as occurred yesterday, and he was nervous and ill at ease when arraigned. He refused to talk until after the court proceedings. Gracy, apparently greatly downcast, would not talk at any time.

"The sooner we get to trial on these political indictments the better," Reynolds said. "I'll tell my story on the witness stand right in this courtroom, and believe me, I'm going to tell the public something. Before I get through confidence in me will be thoroughly restored. They are charging larceny, but it is a peculiar kind of larceny when somebody else gets the money. It seems a queer kind of a charge.

"I've got a little advice to give, too. My advice to business men is to keep out of politics. We tried to run Long Beach as a business should be run, but I've learned that you can't run a city that way and it has cost me a lot of time and trouble and money."

The principal charge in each indictment is grand larceny. There are four counts in each. The first sets forth that on a specific date Gracy and Reynolds "feloniously did steal, take and carry away" the sum of money referred to.

Direct Charge Is Made.

The second count is more specific and directly charges grand larceny in the first degree. It is set forth that Gracy, as the Treasurer, had in his possession the money referred to and that he "did feloniously appropriate the said goods, chattels and personal property to his own use and to the use of the said William H. Reynolds, and of one Michael F. Dollard and of one Samuel F. Rosoff, with intent to deprive and defraud the said City of Long Beach of the same."

The third count charges misappropriation as a separate offense and the fourth charges Gracy and Reynolds with the crime of wrongfully converting and paying out money owned by the city. It is further charged that they aided and abetted Dollard and Rosoff in receiving the money, it being set forth that Gracy delivered checks for the amounts specified to Dollard and Rosoff, "neither of them being entitled to receive from the said city the said sum or any part thereof, as he, the said Gracy, then and there and at all times well knew."

Reynolds, separately in each indictment, is charged with having aided, abetted and assisted Gracy in the commission of the crime, and the indictment charges that Reynolds "did then and there feloniously counsel, command, induce and procure him, the said John Gracy, the said crime and felony then and there to do and commit."

$19,360 Involved in Transactions.

While the total of the sums mentioned is $8,280, there was a total of $19,360 involved in the transactions, according to Kenneth M. Spence, Special Deputy Attorney General in charge of the in-

CLERGYMEN REFUSE TO BAR DR. BUTLER

LIQUOR DEBATE DECLINED

Columbia President Tells Dr. Wilson It Would Be Futile or Unnecessary.

Developments yesterday in the wake of Nicholas Murray Butler's prohibition address before the Missouri Society Tuesday evening were an attempt by a Paterson minister to have the Council of Churches of that city secure a cancellation of Dr. Butler's invitation to be the principal speaker at the new high school corner-stone layin in June; a reply by the Columbia President to the Rev. Dr. Clarence True Wilson, who had invited him to debate the question, in which the educator said debate would be either futile or unnecessary, and a statement by the Anti-Saloon League in which it was said that Dr. Butler "stands apparently alone among college and university Presidents" in his attitude and quoted other educational heads who favor the prohibition laws.

In discussing the situation, a Columbia official close to the university President said the principal criticisms of Dr. Butler were not on the point he had raised, because they assumed he was against prohibition and attacked him on that ground.

"Of course that is all wrong," said this official. "Dr. Butler is not attacking prohibition, but the evils that have arisen under the law which assumes to enforce prohibition. As far as prohibition itself goes, Dr. Butler was in anti-saloon work long before lots of these people were ever heard of."

Alleges Speech Violated Law.

The attack on Dr. Butler in Paterson attracted considerable attention there, because the famous educator, who was born in Elizabeth, N. J., attended the Paterson High School and was graduated from it in 1875. As a distinguished alumnus, he had been invited by the Board of Education to be the principal speaker at the corner-stone laying for the new high school building, which takes place on June 21, an event which has been looked forward to by the city as a matter of considerable consequence.

Yesterday the Rev. Henry J. Smith, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist Church of Paterson, and Chairman of the law and order committee of the local Council of Churches, gave out a statement attacking Dr. Butler as unfitted to make the speech because he had "violated one of the laws of the Constitution." The pastor's statement was as follows:

"Since he has openly expressed himself as against prohibition, and thus breaking one of the laws of the Constitution, I don't think he is a fit man to come to this city and speak at the corner-stone laying ceremonies of the new high school building. All of the ministers of the city are against his coming, and therefore, following the meeting of the Council of Churches this afternoon, a protest will be filed with the Board of Education."

Pastor's Prediction Unfounded.

The pastor's prediction that a protest would be made following the meeting of the Council of Churches proved to be unfounded. No such action was taken. The meeting was closed to every one except members, but at its conclusion some of the ministers said the Rev. Mr. Smith had been persuaded not to offer a resolution embodying the protest, even though he was Chairman of the law and order committee.

It was explained by some of those present that, while the clergymen differed from Dr. Butler's views expressed before the Missouri Society, they nevertheless did not think these views had anything to do with a corner-stone laying and felt sure Dr. Butler would not make a prohibition speech on such an occasion. They said, as perhaps the most eminent educator the city had produced, he seemed eminently fitted to perform the function for which he had been invited.

James Wilson, President of the Chamber of Commerce and recognized as one of the most influential citizens of Paterson, when asked for his view, said:

"I thoroughly agree with Dr. Butler. He is a foremost student of public affairs and his views are reached after mature deliberation. I admire him for his courageous stand in this matter."

Members of the Board of Education refused to comment on the matter. They said the matter had not been brought to

CHOICE OF NEW CHIEF CAUSES A REVOLT OF TAMMANY LEADERS

STIRRED BY FOLEY BOOM

WOMEN'S STAND UNCERTAIN

Executive Committee Will Meet Next Week to Take Up Question—Talk of Compromise.

The threatened revolt of some of the Assembly district leaders of Tammany against what they consider outside dictation in the selection of a successor to the late Charles F. Murphy came out into the open last night when John F. Curry, one of the leaders of the Fifth Assembly District, issued a statement declaring that the new ruler of Tammany must be a district leader and that the district leaders, who compose the Executive Committee, would have no chief imposed upon them by any group or clique.

The statement of Mr. Curry, who is one of a dozen district leaders who aspire to head Tammany, followed the publication of reports that Surrogate James A. Foley was being sought as leader by persons powerful in the Tammany organization and by the circulation of other reports, less generally published, that others not district leaders, among them James J. Hoey, George W. Olvany and Justice Jeremiah T. Mahoney, were receiving serious consideration for the leadership.

"We have done our duty in the past," Mr. Curry said in his statement. "There remains what we owe to the future—that is, to advance the interests of the people as they are represented by the organized Democracy of the county.

"We may be able to offer a standard bearer to the nation; we must hold the city and State for the Democratic Party.

Says the Leaders Must Decide.

"The roots of democracy are sunk deep into the hearts of the masses of the people. That has been our strength in the past, and those selected by the people alone can decide who is to lead us in the future.

"We will have no leader imposed upon us by any group or clique.

"The leaders have the capacity and the will to choose the new leader. Who it may be the near future will decide. But he must be a district leader chosen from and by the leaders.

"We are ready to take advice and counsel from those experienced in public affairs, but the responsibility is ours and we must make the decision."

Mr. Curry is known to have voiced the views of a number of other Tammany district leaders in his statement, which is understood to have been issued after consultation with some of them. At least half the men members of the Tammany Executive Committee are known to have become resentful over what they believe has been disposition by persons of great influence in the organization under Mr. Murphy's leadership to decide the question of the succession without any particular reference to the district leaders by whose votes the new leader must be elected.

Curry Said to Have Strong Backing.

Mr. Curry was said to have considerable support for the leadership among his colleagues on the Executive Committee. Charles W. Culkin of the Third Assembly District also has considerable backing. Another avowed candidate was said to be former State Senator Thomas J. McManus, one of the leaders of the Fifth. Other district leaders said to be in a receptive mood were Martin G. McCue of the Twelfth and William Allen of the Nineteenth, Chairman of the Executive Committee.

Mr. Allen has not yet called a meeting of the Executive Committee, but is expected to for some day next week. The question will then come up whether to elect a new leader at once or to name a "triumvirate." The triumvirate plan was at first thought to be unavoidable, but decided opposition to it has developed among the district leaders. It was learned yesterday that it has not been entirely abandoned, and may be put through as a compromise, although it was admitted that the appointment of such a committee to manage Tammany would be only a makeshift and could not last for any considerable length of time.

The suggestion that the selection of Surrogate Foley as leader of Tammany might avoid a factional fight in the organization was made by men in the organization particularly friendly to Mr.

Senate Adopts Bonus Without Roll-Call; House May Send It to Coolidge Today

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Without a roll-call, and with no dissenting vote except that of Senator Underwood, the Senate approved the conference report upon the insurance bonus bill late this afternoon. House conferees will present their report to that body tomorrow, expecting immediate sanction of it. The bill may reach the White House by tomorrow afternoon.

Action in the Senate on the report was speedy. Senator Curtis briefly explained the agreements reached by the Senator Underwood said that as he did not know whether there would be a roll-call, he wished to reiterate his position against the bonus.

Senator Reed of Missouri, who was absent when the bill was passed by the Senate, but who was paired against the measure, termed it "little less than a subterfuge and fraud." He added that it would have been better not to have passed any bill than this, which he regarded a breach of faith to the veterans.

The viva voce vote was then taken.

Children Hang a May Basket On the White House Door

WASHINGTON, May 1.—The old custom of hanging May baskets in the early morning on May Day was revived at the White House today when three small children hung a basket for Mrs. Coolidge on the north door of the Executive Mansion.

The children had fixed the basket to the door and were running down the steps of the portico when Mrs. Coolidge saw them, called them back to thank them for their greetings. The youngest of the three, a boy, was taken up by Mrs. Coolidge in her arms and kissed with the reminder that "I once had a little boy like you."

She was recalling fondly the time when her own sons, now almost grown and away at school, had celebrated the coming of May Day in a like manner.

PROPOSES AN INQUIRY ON NAVAL WEAKNESS

Britten Will Ask the House to Take Up Shearer's Charges and Coontz Report.

WILBUR DEFENDS FLEET

Secretary Confers With President — Says Fine Cruise Record Is Kept Secret.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Representative Fred A. Britten, Republican, of Illinois, member of the Committee on Naval Affairs, announced today that he would offer a resolution on Monday calling for an investigation by the Naval Committee of the weakness in the navy reported by Admiral Coontz and further charged by William R. Shearer.

In recent interviews printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES Mr. Shearer, the inventor of the one-man torpedo boat, declared that the navy did not measure up to the 5-5-3 ratio fixed at the Washington Arms Conference and that it is weak in comparison with the fleets of Great Britain and Japan.

The Chairman of the House and Senate Naval Committees have called upon the Navy Department for a response to the allegations made by Mr. Shearer and Chairman Hale of the Senate committee has asked the department to prepare and submit in the near future a comprehensive and official summary of our naval strength.

Secretary Wilbur today conferred with President Coolidge, and it is understood that the report of Admiral Coontz concerning weaknesses of the material of the fleet which he commands, developed during the recent manoeuvres, was discussed and the situation explained by the Secretary.

Can Correct Difficulties.

Following his conference at the White House, Secretary Wilbur said that the short-comings pointed out by Admiral Coontz related to materiel rather than personnel of the fleet.

"The fact is that we have made some very excellent records on this cruise," said the Secretary, "and it is felt that these records should be kept confidential. I am going over them to see if some of them can be released.

"You can say that the fleet made a very excellent and satisfactory record on the cruise and the Admiral in calling attention to their deficiencies did it only in order that the deficiencies might be corrected by proper appropriations for ship construction, that we have issued letters of commendation to some of the men of the fleet for their excellent work, but that the actual accomplishments are of a confidential nature."

The Britten resolution of inquiry will be general in scope and purpose, including "specific weaknesses" of the navy as well as the charges made by Shearer and the report made by Admiral Coontz.

Puts Emphasis on Shearer Charges.

Special attention will be given to the allegations of Mr. Shearer relative to submarines, storage oil, naval bases and flotilla leaders. The resolution will call upon the Secretary of the Navy for a comparative statement relative to reports that since the arms conference the United States has lost ground, now ranking behind the navies of Great Britain and Japan.

"Under the rules my resolution will be privileged and for that reason I believe it will be promptly passed by the House," said Representative Britten.

"If the investigation is authorized, as I believe it will be, we will of course give a good deal of attention to the charges made by Mr. Shearer in THE NEW YORK TIMES."

Mr. Britten today introduced a bill calling for a re-appropriation of $6,500,000 to defray the cost of changing the elevation of turret guns on the first-line battleships Florida, Utah, Arkansas, Wyoming, Pennsylvania, Arizona, Oklahoma, Nevada, New York, Texas, Mississippi, Idaho and New Mex-

COOLIDGE CHOOSES BUTLER TO SUCCEED ADAMS AS CHAIRMAN

President Makes Announcement of Impending Change in National Committee.

TAKING PARTY LEADERSHIP

Revelations Yesterday That Party Officials Helped Indict Senator Spurs President.

QUICK ACTION FOLLOWS

Coolidge Has Not Liked Committee's Course, but Actual Rift Is Denied.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—President Coolidge made formal announcement tonight of his decision to recommend to the Republican National Committee the selection of William M. Butler, his primary campaign manager, as Chairman of the National Committee.

The President's announcement, issued soon after 8 o'clock tonight, read:

"After conference with Chairman Adams, who has indicated to me that after the organization of the incoming Republican National Committee he does not wish to continue as Chairman, I have decided to present to the new committee for their consideration for the chairmanship the name of William M. Butler, who has managed the primary campaign."

President Coolidge, one of his advisers said tonight, had come to the conclusion that he must assume not only the titular but the actual leadership of the Republican Party. The belief exists among his advisers that if he does this he can overcome the feeling aroused against the party and guide it through the November elections, elect himself and a Republican Congress. He is proceeding on this premise and it was reported tonight that he would try to find a strong man as a nominee for Vice President.

Friends of the President are using extraordinary efforts to influence ex-Governor Lowden to accept the nomination for Vice President. Others in mind for the Vice Presidency are General Dawes and ex-Senator Beveridge of Indiana.

It is understood that Senator Borah will place Coolidge in nomination and that Senator Wadsworth of New York will be Chairman of the convention. President Coolidge has already selected the temporary Chairman in Senator Burton and everything that will be done in connection with the convention will be done with his approval, if not actual direction.

Differences with Present Committee.

It has been known for some time that Mr. Adams would retire—as has been the custom of National Chairmen—with the conclusion of the National Convention. For the last two decades the nominee for President has selected the Chairman of the National Committee to direct his campaign.

On the surface, the relations between the President and Chairman Adams have been cordial, but there have been evidences that the President was displeased with what has been done by the National Committee, and especially the activity of The National Republican, of which George B. Lockwood, Secretary of the committee, is editor and Mr. Adams is a large stockholder.

The comments not only of this journal but the alleged activity of investigators in connection with the indictment of Senator Wheeler, it is declared, have been displeasing to President Coolidge, although until recently the Department of Justice accepted the indictment as within the evidence and the Attorney General said only recently that the Wheeler case would be submitted to the petit jury.

Developments in the last week which connected some officials of the National Committee with the investigation of Senator Wheeler, and the submission of the results to the Department of Justice, are said to have convinced the President that it was time to make the announcement he did tonight.

There were several conferences with the President on the Wheeler case after it was testified that Blair Coan, investigator for The National Republican, had gone to Montana to investigate not only Wheeler but also Senator Walsh.

While there appears plenty of evidence that things in the Republican Party's management have not altogether pleased President Coolidge and Secretary Hughes, yet spokesmen for the President and Chairman Adams declare tonight that there was no rift and that the announcement, while somewhat in advance of developments, was natural.

The National Committee, which has been under control of the so-called Senate oligarchy for years, has not been in harmony, in all respects, with either the present or the preceding Administration. Chairman Adams attacked the Harding Administration when President Harding made a speech indicating his predilection for an association of nations.

Again he assailed the policy of Secretary Hughes in negotiating payment for the American troops on the Rhine. In that attack he declared that the State Department had been "hoodwinked by Great Britain" and said some uncomplimentary things about English diplomacy. This came a few days before the conclusion of the negotiations had been announced and Secretary Hughes demanded its retraction, which was given.

President's Disapproval Shown.

In the opinion of advisers of the Administration who discussed tonight's development, President Coolidge does not agree with what is being done by the present officials of the National Committee and he took this occasion to accentuate his differences on public policies and the activities of the National Committee in investigating [illegible]. It was said [illegible] Coolidge had [illegible]

Senator Borah intends to deliver, in which the latter, it is reported, will denounce the indictment of Senator Wheeler as a "frame-up," and says some very plain things about the officials of the National Committee in attempting to "get something on" the two leading investigators, Senators Wheeler and Walsh.

Developments in the Wheeler case are expected very shortly in the Department of Justice. While it was said as late as yesterday that the indictment would be sent to the Petit Jury and previously it was declared at the Department of Justice that the indictment was justified by the evidence, yet it is believed that fuller investigation may convince Attorney General Stone that the indictment ought to be quashed. The charges were presented to a Montana Grand Jury in the administration of Attorney General Daugherty and the indictment came a few days after Mr. Stone took office.

BUTLER GOING TO CAPITAL.

He Will Not Discuss Possible Policy as Chairman.

William M. Butler, chosen by President Coolidge to succeed John T. Adams as Chairman of the Republican National Committee, refused last night at the Hotel Biltmore to say whether he would adopt any change of policy toward the Progressives and Radicals in the Republican party. Mr. Butler, who is the President's manager in the pre-nomination campaign, which apparently has been entirely successful, left at midnight for Washington, where he will discuss the chairmanship with the President today.

Mr. Butler, who came here from Cleveland, where he had been engaged in arrangements for the convention, had dinner with Governor Channing H. Cox of Massachusetts, but declared his meeting with the Governor had no political significance. Mr. Butler has been a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator and could hardly continue as a candidate while holding the post of National Chairman, nigh He declined last night, however, to say that he would not make the race.

"I made a statement last December, in which I intimated that I would likely be a candidate for Senator but would make no announcement until after the Republican National Convention," Mr. Butler said. "I have not changed my position since that time."

Louis A. Coolidge of Boston, former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and Treasurer of the United Shoe Machinery Corporation, is a candidate for the nomination for Senator, and the meeting of Governor Cox and Mr. Butler at this time led to the surmise that the Governor might succeed Mr. Butler as a candidate for Senator. Mr. Butler refused to discuss this and said he left Governor Cox before he had received news of the Washington announcement that he would be started for chairmanship of the Republican National Committee.

"Mr. Adams seems to have been reading many of the Progressive Republicans out of the party; will you continue that policy?" Mr. Butler was asked.

"I am not the National Chairman," he replied. "The choice will have to be ratified by the National Committee."

"It is usual for the nominee for President to select the National Chairman and President Coolidge seems certain to be nominated," he was told.

"It is the custom," Mr. Butler agreed, "but I cannot talk about what I would do as National Chairman until I become National Chairman."

"You will take the place immediately after the National Convention?" he was asked.

"That's a good time to take hold," he said, smiling. "The pre-convention campaign has gone along pretty well."

Mr. Butler said he had seen only two or three persons during his brief stay in New York, and these on routine matters of no news significance.

REPUBLICANS SENT MAN TO 'LOOK UP' WHEELER

National Committee's Agent Tells How Lockwood Hired Him—Indictment Followed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—The statement that on March 7 he had been retained by George B. Lockwood, Secretary of the Republican National Committee and editor of the National Republican, to go to Montana and "investigate some of these stories" about Senator Wheeler and another Senator, was made today by Blair Coan, a former newspaper man, to the Special Senate committee investigating the indictment of Senator Wheeler by a Federal Grand Jury at Great Falls, Mont.

Mr. Coan was not permitted to name the other Senator. Later he said that he was Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Montana, "prosecutor" for the committee investigating the oil lease scandals.

The testimony of Mr. Coan provided the sensation of the day at the committee hearing. Senator Wheeler has been "prosecutor" of the special committee which has been investigating the administration of the Department of Justice under Harry M. Daugherty. The Senate resolution providing for that investigation was adopted on Feb. 29, one week before Mr. Coan went to Montana, and on April 8, one month after Mr. Coan got there, the indictment was found.

At the time of his indictment Senator Wheeler, in a speech in the Senate, charged that he was the victim of a "frame-up" staged by persons who wished to discredit him because of his activities as "prosecutor" for the committee which was investigating the record of Mr. Daugherty. He asked his colleagues in the Senate to withhold judgment and requested that a special committee be named by the presiding officer to make an inquiry into the circumstances surrounding the indictment.

While the investigation of the Department of Justice has been going on, a number of attacks have been made upon Senator Wheeler in the columns of The National Republican, which has been generally accepted as the organ of the Republican National Committee. The first unqualified statement that The National Republican had sent out an agent to investigate the Senator, however, came today when Mr. Coan gave his testimony. In the course of his testimony Mr. Coan said:

"I was sent out to Montana to investigate some of these stories about Wheeler. He had been attacking everyone and no one was standing up against him. I thought it was time some one looked him up."

Admits Investigation of Walsh.

Mr. Coan's statement that his investigations were not confined to Senator Wheeler's career came at the conclusion of his testimony today.

"Was any one else on your list when you went to Montana?" Mr. Coan was asked.

"Yes, there was another Senator," replied Mr. Coan, "and I'll tell you who he was if you want me to go into that."

Senator Sterling, Republican, of South Dakota, who has been the "prosecutor" in opposition to the Wheeler interests at this inquiry, objected, stating that he protested against the name of any other Senator being brought into the testimony. The objection was sustained by the committee.

Mr. Coan, a dark complexioned, thickset, aggressive type of young man, has been an active figure at all of the committee meetings. He has insisted that Senator Borah, Chairman of the committee, call him as a witness; has offered statements to the press for publication, and in other ways kept himself in the centre of things.

The names of several witnesses antagonistic to Senator Wheeler had been suggested to Senator Borah by Mr. Coan, and two of them, D. Bingaman, a young oil man of Wyoming, who apparently had only hearsay evidence to submit, and William W. Rhea, also one time an engineer for Gordon Campbell, the Montana oil man, were called today.

Mr. Coan also offered the suggestion that the committee call upon the Department of Justice for affidavits and other documents in its possession bearing on the Wheeler indictment. This committee voted to do so, as essential to the purposes of the inquiry. Unless such documents unfold some new and startling evidence against Senator Wheeler, it is probable that the inquiry will be completed at the next session.

The charge that efforts had been made by his enemies to bribe a clerk at the Arlington Hotel and obtain an adjoining room to set up a dictagraph was also made by Mr. Coan and at Mr. Coan's request, supplemented by the urging of Senator Sterling, the committee agreed to call the clerk, Walter Paul. There has been a report that Gaston B. Means, former Special Agent of the Department of Justice, who broke with Mr. Daugherty and has appeared as one of the witnesses before the committee investigating the Department of Justice, made such an attempt to obtain evidence of conversations of Mr. Coan and the anti-Wheeler witnesses who have been roaming together at the hotel.

D. Bingaman, a witness suggested by Mr. Coan, was called. He said he was 26 years old, and in the oil business in Wyoming at present. He had been in Montana. The witness appeared a bit shaken and uncertain and finally said that he had not been present at any conference attended by Senator Wheeler, and Mr. Campbell at which the terms of Senator Wheeler's employment by Mr. Campbell were discussed. The witness said he had nothing else to offer, and was excused. Mr. Coan and Mr. Bingaman were called at an afternoon session.

Rhea Is Questioned by Borah.

William W. Rhea of Idaho Springs, Col., one of the witnesses called at the request of Blair Coan was questioned at the morning session. Mr. Rhea was formerly employed as an engineer by Gordon Campbell and is now in the oil business in Colorado. He said that his connections with Mr. Campbell began in 1922 and that he had first met Senator Wheeler about Jan. 15, 1923, in a room at the Rainbow Hotel, Great Falls, Mont.

The meeting was in the evening, the witness said, and others present were Mr. Campbell and H. C. Glosser, Secretary to Mr. Campbell. Senator Borah asked Mr. Rhea to give the conversation and the witness hesitated for several moments.

"I can't exactly tell the conversation," he replied at last. "It was understood——"

Senator Borah declared that the committee did not want to know what was understood, but desired the facts.

Mr. Rhea then said that the main conversation was about what was known as the Phil McGowan permit.

"Mr. Campbell said that Mr. Wheeler upon his arrival in Washington would be able to put this permit through," said the witness.

"What, if anything, did Senator Wheeler say?" asked Senator Borah.

"He didn't reply; except that he said we need not worry and that it would be taken care of when he got back there," said Mr. Rhea.

The witness said that he had an interest in the Phil McGowan permit, that he was dealing with some people in Colorado about it and that Mr. Campbell knew what he expected to get.

"Mr. Campbell told me that in case the permit got through we would be able to give Senator Wheeler quite a slice of it," the witness added.

"Did Senator Wheeler say anything?" "He had been talking right along, but he didn't say anything just then."

Told Campbell He Had an Attorney.

Mr. Rhea said he told Mr. Campbell that he had an attorney employed and didn't see that he was called upon to pay out anything more.

Senator Borah again demanded if Senator Wheeler had said anything to Mr. Rhea as a result of the meeting.

"Yes," replied the witness, "he said: 'You don't need to worry, on my arrival in Washington this will all be taken care of.'"

"That was said to Campbell, also?"

"Yes."

Mr. Rhea said that he had never written letters or sent telegrams to Senator Wheeler or had any communication with him; that he never had employed Senator Wheeler as an attorney nor paid any compensation to him, nor made any promise to pay anything. He also said that he had no personal knowledge of Senator Wheeler having appeared in the Land Office in Montana or Washington.

The witness said that he had made an affidavit at Denver, Col., at the request of Blair Coan. He said that he never told the story to any one else.

"Where did you first meet Coan?" asked Senator Borah.

"At the Albany Hotel in Denver."

"Was that after the investigation in reference to Daugherty began?"

"I guess it was."

Mr. Rhea said he never met Mr. Coan before. Mr. Glosser had come to Denver with Mr. Coan. The witness said he had made the affidavit within ten minutes after the meeting began.

"They told me what they wanted and I started in to make it," said Mr. Rhea.

Mr. Rhea said that he had been asked to come to the Albany hotel in a telegram received from Mr. Coan. He had not received any compensation for making the affidavit.

Questioned by Sterling.

Senator Sterling (Republican) who has been appearing at the hearings in the role of "counsel" for those seeking to attack Senator Wheeler, endeavored to strengthen the testimony given by Mr. Rhea, referring back to the meeting in the Rainbow Hotel at Great Falls. He drew from the witness the statement that Mr. Glosser had telephoned and asked him to be there and had stated that Senator Wheeler would be there and that Mr. Campbell was also coming on from Seattle.

The conversation, said the witness, lasted for about an hour and a half and had dealt chiefly with the subject of leases held by Campbell. The witness said that Mr. Campbell had no legal interest in what was known as the Phil McGowan lease, but that he (Mr. Rhea) had stated he would give Mr. Campbell half what he could obtain for it.

"Mr. Campbell told me," said Mr. Rhea, "that Senator Wheeler had just been elected to the United States Senate, and with his influence could get anything done that he wanted."

Asked if Senator Wheeler made any comment when that statement was made, Mr. Rhea replied that "Mr. Wheeler said nothing."

Mr. Rhea added that Senator Wheeler asked Mr. Campbell to save some data prepared and sent to him, and that Mr. Campbell stated that he would have it done in the morning.

"Did you have any conversation with Mr. Campbell about compensation he was to pay to Mr. Wheeler for his services?" asked Senator Sterling.

Doubtful on Washington Service.

"Did that conversation relate to services here in Washington?"

"I can't say it did, altogether."

"To what did the conversation relate?"

"To his [Senator Wheeler's] services regarding different permits pending and also services rendered in other lawsuits pending in Great Falls."

Senator Sterling asked if there was any other conversation concerning employment of counsel by Mr. Rhea.

"I told Mr. Campbell I had an attorney employed and I had no reason to change," said Mr. Rhea.

The witness said he had employed L. V. Beaulieu, who was also counsel for Mr. Campbell; that Mr. Beaulieu had performed the necessary services for him and had been paid. He also said that he had appeared before the Grand Jury at Great Falls which indicted Senator Wheeler.

Senator Caraway, Democrat, of Arkansas, began a cross-examination of Mr. Rhea and this resulted in a sharp clash. First Senator Caraway asked the witness if Blair Coan had told him what he (Mr. Coan) wanted with an affidavit, and Mr. Rhea replied in the negative.

"I knew who Mr. Coan was and what he represented," he added.

"You had no curiosity about it?" asked Senator Caraway.

"No," replied the witness.

"So, if any one comes along and asks you to make an affidavit you make it, is that it?" asked Senator Caraway.

"No, sir; I consider myself above that," retorted Mr. Rhea indignantly.

Mr. Rhea said he did not want to tell Senator Caraway what Mr. Coan said because he considered it "none of your business."

"Do you object to telling what Coan told you about the affidavit?" the Senator continued.

The witness turned this aside by saying he did not remember.

Senator Caraway persisted and the witness declared heatedly:

"I thought you were trying to make me lie."

"When I ask you a question is that an invitation to lie?" asked Senator Caraway sharply.

"No, sir," replied Mr. Rhea.

Senator Caraway asked Mr. Rhea if he had talked with any member of the Senate committee since coming here, and Mr. Rhea replied that he had talked with Senator Sterling. Questioned further, he said that he had been living, since coming here, with Mr. Coan and Mr. Glosser, the two men who have appeared as the chief witnesses against Senator Wheeler.

HARRISON ATTACKS SENATE 'KEYNOTERS'

Accuses Republicans of Making Charges They Would Not Dare Make on the Floor.

DEFENDS "MUCKRAKERS"

Points Out That Majority Party Voted for the Inquiries—Willis Defends Pittsburgh Speech.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—The tax bill, which is the unfinished business before the Senate, was forgotten for two hours today while politics held the centre of the stage. Senator Harrison of Mississippi was in command on the Democratic side while Senator Willis of Ohio, with the assistance of Senator Curtis and Senator Smoot, led on the Republican side of the aisle. Everything in controversy from the Senatorial investigations to the war record of the Wilson Administration was brought into the wrangle before it ended and debate on the tax plan was resumed.

A speech by Senator Willis in Pittsburgh last week caused all the talk. Senator Willis expressed the opinion there that Congress should get down to business, and his intimation was that the investigations were not necessary parts of the business program. He paid his respects to the "muckrakers" and referred at length to the legal activities of William G. McAdoo before the Government departments.

"I will say to the Senator," said Senator Harrison in the Senate today, "that we did not ask the President when to start the investigations and we won't ask him when to stop them."

Senator Harrison predicted that the Republicans will go before the country without a platform worth the name. All they will have, he said, will be a slogan, and that slogan will be, "Keep cool with Coolidge."

Harrison Charges Lack of Courage.

"There has been growing up a custom on the part of Senators," said Senator Harrison, "to go out into the country and make political speeches, defend their do-nothing policy here, try to deceive the public to whom they speak and then return here and have some colleague insert their speeches in the Congressional Record.

"Of course, every one knows what the object is, but it does seem to some of us that these Senators who have so much courage in going to Pittsburgh to make a speech to a Republican gathering, or up into Maine to speak to a Republican State convention, or to some other place away from Washington, and in those speeches attempting to defend certain misdeeds of the party in power and criticizing and ridiculing the investigations which have been going on here, would show the same degree of courage in making their speeches upon the floor of the Senate, where they could be answered.

"Every one who has attended the deliberations of the Senate knows that for months Republican members of the Senate have sat silent in their seats and refused to respond to any statements of facts from Senators on this side, because they knew they could not respond, because they knew that the country was with us in having these investigations, and so they do the brave thing, go to Pittsburgh, or up into Maine, and talk."

The climax, Senator Harrison said, was reached a few days ago when Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania inserted in the Congressional Record a speech delivered by Senator Willis of Ohio in Pittsburgh on the night of April 26. That speech the Mississippi Senator declared to have been so full of mis-statements that he was unable to understand how Mr. Willis "got away with it, even in Smoky Pittsburgh."

Says Witnesses Were Republicans.

Senator Willis in his Pittsburgh speech, Senator Harrison said, referred to the character of some of the witnesses called in the course of Senatorial investigations.

"The Senator," he added, "could have told his audience that the convicts who testified were the convicts of his Administration; that the discharged employes were discharged Republican employes, and that the disappointed were the disappointed of this Administration.

"The Senator could have told his audience that in the investigations that were made this muckraking process that was pictured as being on a parallel with Grant's Administration, the matters were being conducted by men of his own party, that the committees were named by Senators on the other side of the aisle as well as on this side, that every committee of muckrakers, so called, who had brought muckrakers here, were of the Senator's own party, were committees with a Republican majority.

"Every committee that has made these investigations and sent the news of the corruption and the graft to the country is headed by a Republican Senator. Take the Teapot Dome investigation committee, for instance. It was headed by one of the ablest and most partisan of Republican Senators, a splendid man of high purpose and fine motives, the junior Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. Lenroot]."

"It may be true," Senator Stanfield interrupted, "that the various criminals or those with criminal records who have been brought before the committees belonged to the Republican Party, but I do not see whether it matters to what party they belonged."

"Of course not," Senator Harrison replied.

"The Senator does not doubt," said Senator Stanfield, "but what we have put ourselves in a questionable attitude by bringing such irresponsible witnesses before the committees."

"I hope the Senator will not make a speech in my time," Senator Harrison remarked as Mr. Stanfield showed signs of extending his remarks.

Says Republicans Were in Control.

"I could go down the list of all these committees which the Senator from Ohio says are muckraking committees," resumed Senator Harrison, "and show that they are made up of men in the Republican Party who stand high and who control the operations of the committees and their work. The Senator in his speech said that without minimizing in another respect any beneficial results of the investigations the time had come for Congress, 'to attend to its own business for a while.'

"The Senator has had that impression a good long while. The only other man in the country I know of who has been of that opinion from the beginning is the President of the United States.

"I will say to my friend from Ohio and I will say to the President of the United States that we did not ask them when to start these investigations and we shall not ask them when to stop the investigations. All we want is to put out the graft and the corruption illustrated by the incident referred to in Grant's Administration, and that is the only illustration they can bring here."

Senator Harrison referred to Senator Willis's criticisms of "the damning record of incompetency, if not graft and corruption," in the Wilson Administration.

"What is it," asked Senator Harrison, "that he says is graft and corruption?

"He was speaking then of the eight years of Wilson's Administration. He was speaking of the war period, when Democrats and Republicans forgot their party affiliations and joined hands to win the war. I will say to my friend, even though he took thirty minutes of his time to tell about the great number of frauds that were committed during the war, the high cost of war materials and all the money that was expended in proper ways to win the war, in sending our men across the water to fight and bring glory to the flag, he said that there was corruption and graft.

"I wish to say to my friend that after fifty-one committees were appointed following the war, directed to make investigations of the charges the Senator from Ohio made to his Pittsburgh audience, that not a iota of graft or corruption has yet been shown to the American people.

"It will always stand as one of the proudest pages of American history that so big a work was performed in such a matchless way and that such large expenditures were made without corruption or graft being involved."

Senator Harrison said that Senator Willis told his Pittsburgh audience that since March 4, 1921, the Republicans have reduced by $2,500,000,000 the national indebtedness.

"Why did he not," Senator Harrison asked, "tell them that in the last eighteen months of the Wilson Administration the Democrats reduced the national debt by more than $2,500,000,000? He wants to keep that from them because he thought he might deceive them."

Curtis Claims Greater Economy.

Senator Curtis, the Republican whip, interrupted and said that in the final session of the Sixty-fifth Congress, which session followed the armistice, the Democrats, then in control, recommended a reduction of only $300,000,000 in appropriations.

"When the Republicans got control," added Senator Curtis, "they reduced the amount carried in those bills by about $900,000,000."

The Democrats had reduced the national debt by about $1,000,000,000 by buying in Liberty bonds from 82 to 90, Senator Curtis said.

"They took the bonds for which the Senator and I paid 100 cents on the dollar and bought them with the money they took from the Treasury; that is how the Democrats reduced the national debt by over a billion dollars," added Senator Curtis.

There followed more talk, with Senator Smoot joining as to which party has saved the most money. Then the debate switched to the Cleveland convention. Senator Harrison said the Republicans will not have a platform this year, because they have no achievements on which to base one.

Senator Willis was on his feet when Senator Harrison concluded. He said he had known Senator Harrison a great many years, they were friends and all that, but he did not think any man could justly say that "I would run away from this place to make a speech because of fear to make the humble remarks I desire to make."

"I seldom make a political speech in the Senate," added Senator Willis, "because I either think it is the business of the Senate to transact the business of the people of the United States rather than to listen to campaign speeches."

SCORES REPUBLICANS FOR WESTERN FAILURES

Hitchcock Says They Depressed Prices There While Raising Them in the East.

OMAHA, Neb., May 1.—Gilbert M. Hitchcock, former United States Senator, declared before the Nebraska Democratic convention here today that the national governmental policy has been adverse to Western interests and destructive of Western prosperity.

"It is not by accident or by chance that the prices of Western products have been depressed," he said. "It is not by accident or by chance that the West has been compelled to pay higher prices for what it must buy. Western products have been depressed and Eastern products raised by governmental action. The result has been a short-lived and false prosperity in the East and a protracted and serious depression in the West.

"Agriculture in the West is receiving on an average about 15 per cent. more for its products than ten years ago, and paying for what it buys 85 per cent. more. That's what's the matter, not only with the farmer, but with the small towns and the larger cities that do business with the farmer. This accounts for the bankruptcy that has swept through the Middle West."

He charged the Republican Party with "using its machinery to promote the interests of privileged classes who finance its campaigns." On the other hand, the Democratic Party "champions equal opportunities for all, special privileges for none," he said.

WEEKS DENIES OIL STORY.

Declares He Never Used Influence to Obtain Leases for Anybody.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Secretary Weeks issued today a statement saying that he never had used his influence with former Secretary of the Interior Fall, or any one else, relating to the issuing of leases to oil companies.

The text of Secretary Weeks's statement follows:

"A morning newspaper states 'How the Boston Pacific Oil Company used its alleged influence with Secretary of War John W. Weeks to get valuable oil wells in the California naval oil reserves became known here yesterday.'

"I cannot find in my files that I ever had a communication from the Boston Pacific Oil Company; I do not remember that I ever heard of the company; as far as I have information, I do not know any one connected with such a company; I have never used my intercession with Secretary Fall or any one else relating to the issuing of licenses to oil companies; I cannot recall that I ever spoke to Mr. Fall about oil reserves or anything connected with them; in fact, the story which I have read, as far as any thing short of mythical fiction carries me, is an absolute fabrication."

LABOR COUNCIL FOR SMITH.

Committee Appointed to Further His Candidacy for Presidency.

The Central Trades and Labor Council of New York adopted a resolution last night at a meeting at 210 Fifth Street endorsing Governor Alfred E. Smith as a candidate for President of the United States. The resolution praised Governor Smith's record and referred to his efforts to further the cause of workingmen in this State. More than 600 delegates, representing nearly as many local unions, were present.

John Sullivan, President of the council, and John P. Coughlin, its Secretary, were authorized to appoint a committee to further the candidacy of Governor Smith for the Democratic nomination for President in all parts of the country.

DENIES AIDING THIRD PARTY.

Brookhart Declares He Is Taking No Part in Movement.

DES MOINES, Iowa, May 1.—Senator Smith W. Brookhart, in a letter to W. G. Ray of Grinnell, made public here today, stated that he is not taking part in any third party movement in national politics, and has no intention of joining such a party should he be nominated on the Republican ticket in the Iowa primaries in June.

The letter is in response to a request that Senator Brookhart state his attitude on rumors that he was assisting in the organization of a third party.

SMITH WON'T FIGHT ANY 'FAVORITE' SON

Chairman Roosevelt Refuses Offers to Enter Primaries Against Other Candidates.

PLAN COMMITTEE OF 500

Franklin D. Roosevelt, Chairman of the New York State Citizens' Committee to promote the candidacy of Governor Alfred E. Smith for the Democratic nomination for President, declared yesterday no contest for Smith delegates would be started in any State having a "favorite son" candidate, and denied newspaper reports of alleged political deals or arrangements made by the late Charles F. Murphy with political leaders in other States for Smith delegates. Mr. Roosevelt asserted that no "deals" would be made and said that Governor Smith's record and personal qualities would be relied upon to win him votes among delegates to the Democratic National Convention.

Mr. Roosevelt's statement concerning the continuance of the policy of avoiding contests in States which have "favorite son" candidates was made after receipt of a telegram from political leaders of a State opposed to the candidacy of its "favorite son." The telegram said that the senders believed this State, which is yet to elect delegates, could be carried for Governor Smith against the "favorite son" candidate and asked the support of the Smith committee. Mr. Roosevelt's reply was that the Governor's friends could not even think of entering him in that State.

Offers of Support for Smith.

Mr. Roosevelt's selection had the immediate result of bringing many offers of support, some of them from unexpected sources and some from other States. He has established headquarters at his home, 49 East Sixty-fifth Street, and telegrams and telephone calls were received from nearly every section of the country.

Mr. Roosevelt said he had already received reports from nine States which were favorable to Governor Smith's candidacy and that these States did not include Wisconsin, which elected twenty-three Smith delegates out of twenty-six, or New York, the ninety votes of which will be solid for the Governor.

So many offers of support were received that Mr. Roosevelt said it had been decided to increase the membership of the committee to at least 500. At present the membership will be confined to this State, all parts of which will be represented. Later, he said, it may be decided to extend the membership further to include friends of the Governor in other States.

"The many offers of assistance already received include a number from States in which primaries have not yet been held," Mr. Roosevelt said. "In several of these States 'native sons' are already entered in the race for delegates, and suggestions have been made that a telegram from New York Governor Smith's friends from these States felt assured they could elect rival tickets committed to him. These offers were, of course, declined, as from the first Governor Smith has rightly and consistently refused to enter into any primary contest. Neither Governor Smith nor myself believe in achieving the nomination over the mangled bodies of other Democratic candidates. Such a victory inevitably leaves party scars, which are slow to heal. We will leave the steam roller for our Republican friends, who are already in possession of it.

Policy of the Governor's Friends.

"When Governor Smith is nominated, as I believe he certainly will be, he will have the cordial support and warm regard of every candidate now in the field. Because from the beginning he has believed that a candidate can best secure the united support of his party by convincing the delegates to the convention that for many reasons he is the best fitted to make a fight after each candidate has been given every chance to present his claims for the honor. We are not making a 'fight' to wrest the nomination from any one. We are trying, as I said yesterday, to show the country at large what kind of a man Governor Smith is—what he has done and what he can confidently be expected to do if elected. So sure are we of his outstanding qualifications that we feel the other candidates themselves will eventually admit that the common desire for the party success at the polls demands Governor Smith's selection this year.

"There will be no bitterness in the party ranks if Governor Smith is nominated."

Earlier in the day Mr. Roosevelt issued a statement denying that any "deals" had been made to advance Governor Smith's candidacy.

"I have noticed reference in one or two papers to alleged 'deals' or 'arrangements' made by the late Mr. Murphy with political leaders in other States to advance Governor Smith's candidacy," he said.

"I have made a careful inquiry and can positively deny that any 'deal' was made with any person or group. The fact is that no 'deal' will be made. Governor Smith's strength is his appeal to the good judgment and honesty of every delegate. His friends will not need to gain support for him by offering to barter prospective Cabinet positions, nor ambassadorships, nor to hold out the dazzling inducement of licenses to pilfer the nation's treasury of natural resources, oil, water, or otherwise.

Sees Impetus Gathering.

"I have had first hand reports from those who have been closely in touch with the situation in other States, and am delighted at the tremendous impetus that Governor Smith's candidacy has gathered during the last few weeks. The more one gets information of what is happening the more one sees that the Democrats generally throughout the country are becoming more and more convinced that Governor Smith stands out as the man of the hour.

"All of yesterday afternoon and evening was devoted to conferences with Governor Smith's friends as to the size and personnel of the committee. Among other things it was definitely determined that the official title would be the New York State Committee for the Nomination of Governor Alfred E. Smith.

"So many urgent requests have come from friends of the Governor to be given a chance to show their enthusiasm by active work that it is evident the committee will be made larger than was originally contemplated. I hope to have the first list ready by early next week, and, of course, many names will be added after that."

Mr. Roosevelt explained that he did not mean other candidates for the Democratic nomination for President in his references to offer of the prospect of cabinet positions and ambassadorships or of license to pilfer the nation's natural resources in exchange for delegates.

"The recent revelations at Washington show that I refer to the Republican 'deals' of 1920," he added.

Foreign Policy and Prohibition.

Mr. Roosevelt, who has been a strong advocate of the entrance of the United States into the League of Nations, said he knew nothing of Governor Smith's views on foreign policy. He declined to say whether he believed prohibition would be an issue in the national campaign and expressed belief that the Democratic nominee for President would be bound necessarily by the Democratic national platform.

Mr. Roosevelt said that many supporters of the late President Wilson had already joined the Smith movement and that the Smith committee would include Democrats and independents of every shade of opinion and even some Republicans.

Many women will be on the committee. A list of the women members is being prepared, together with that of the men, and among them will be a number of women who had previously been strong in support of the Governor because of his advocacy of welfare measures.

Working headquarters for the committee will be established within a day or two near Madison Avenue and Forty-second Street, but Mr. Roosevelt will make his headquarters at his home for the present. The movement will be financed by friends of the Governor.

Attack by Anti-Saloon League.

Orville S. Poland, counsel of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, again attacked Governor Smith's candidacy and characterized Mr. Roosevelt as "a false front for Al Smith." Mr. Poland said:

"The selection of Franklin Roosevelt as campaign manager by Candidate Smith is a patent attempt to assume the pearly whiteness of every one responsible Mr. Roosevelt as a man of high standards, and it is an occasion for genuine surprise that he should lend himself as a false front for Al Smith.

"The death of Charles Murphy indelibly stamped the Smith boom with the Tammany label. If Murphy had lived, it is possible that Smith might have come before the convention with but little emphasis upon his Tammany connections. When Murphy died, every newspaper in the country proclaimed the fact that Smith was Tammany's man and Murphy's man, and that with the death of Murphy the Smith campaign was left without leadership. Governor Smith's chances for the nomination can hardly be expected to recover from such a serious blow. Whatever confidence the people of the country at large had in him has been shaken.

"A Presidential boom is in a precarious condition when, a month before the convention, a candidate has less than one-tenth of the votes and of that only seventh two-thirds of them come from his own State and are merely favorite son votes, whose chief value is a trading value."

WON'T GO TO FRENCH LICK.

The Governor Will Finish Work on Legislation Bills.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 1.—Governor Smith said today that he had canceled his plans for two weeks' vacation at French Lick Springs, Ind., at the expiration of the thirty-day bill period.

"I had planned on getting away from Albany by the middle of next week," the Governor said. "Now I am behind in disposing of the thirty-day bills and I guess I will have to call off the trip to French Lick."

The Governor said, however, that he still hoped to be able to get away from Albany for at least a week's rest after next week. He said he did not know where he would go, but probably some place nearer home. There has been some talk at the Capitol during the last few days that the Governor probably would go to Atlantic City if he canceled his proposed vacation to French Lick.

When the Governor was asked if he intended to have any conferences, either personal or by telephone, with Franklin D. Roosevelt, his pre-convention campaign manager, he said:

"No, I do not intend to talk with Mr. Roosevelt or any one else about national politics or anything that has to do with the Democratic National Convention. I will have all and probably more than I can do taking care of the job of Governor of the State of New York for the next few weeks."

PRAISE FOR MURPHY.

Late Tammany Chief Lauded at Osceola Club Meeting.

An audience which jammed the headquarters of the Osceola Club at 1,019 Madison Avenue heard Charles F. Murphy eulogized last night by Democratic State Chairman Herbert C. Pell as Mr. Supreme Court Justices Mahoney, Mulqueen and Lydon, Borough President Miller of Manhattan and Maurice Blumenthal, Chairman of the organization. A resolution was adopted expressing appreciation of Mr. Murphy's counsels, purposes and pursuit of what he deemed right and lauding him as "a champion of democracy."

"It is absurd to talk now of replacing Mr. Murphy," said Mr. Pell. "A man like that can't be replaced any more than you can replace a big tree. It takes time to grow."

The meeting was held under the auspices of the Democratic organization of the Fifteenth Assembly District. Justice Mahoney presided.

House for Consular Service Changes

WASHINGTON, May 1.—The Rogers bill providing for reorganization of the Diplomatic and Consular service was passed today by the House and sent to the Senate.

REVOLT IN TAMMANY ON CHOICE OF CHIEF

Murphy and Governor Smith with a view of possible jeopardy to the Governor's chances of the nomination for President by a fight inside Tammany over the leadership. Judge Foley was said to be in no sense an aspirant, preferring to remain on the bench. Belief was expressed that, if he could be brought to realize that his election might check a tendency on the part of Tammany to retrograde to old-time methods and might bring about harmony, he might consent to sacrifice his personal inclination and take the place.

Judge Foley married the step-daughter of Mr. Murphy and during the last few years had been consulted by the Tammany chieftain on many important matters. Although there was some murmuring yesterday against what was termed a proposal to make the leadership of Tammany a family affair, Mr. Foley won a prominent place in the organization before becoming connected with Mr. Murphy by marriage and it was not believed that any opposition based on his relationship would get far.

Although never a district leader, Judge Foley was chairman of the Tammany Law Committee for ten years and a member of its Executive Committee by virtue of that office during that period. It was also said that he would be acceptable to Mayor Hylan, and many men believe it very desirable to select a leader who would continue the friendly relations with the Mayor.

Mr. Olvany, who was a district leader until two or three months ago, was suggested as a possible compromise candidate, if Surrogate Foley should decline to become aspirant or if the opposition to him should become too formidable. Mr. Olvany was described as a man whose experience and ability would fit him for the place, and the fact that he had been a district leader until so recently, it was said, might lessen the opposition of the district leaders to the selection of a man outside their number.

The part that the women members of the Executive Committee will take in the election of a new leader was said to remain a puzzle. It was said that the chances were that they would go with the majority if the contest now going on behind the scenes ever reached an acute stage, but could not be counted upon if it should come to a close contest between two or three rival aspirants. The indications were said to be that the women would demand an actual voice in the selection of a new leader and several instances were reported of men leaders who had discovered already that they could not control the vote of their feminine colleagues.

FOSDICK SEES PERIL IN BIBLE ANALYSES

Declares the Modern Use of the Scriptures May Obscure Religion as a Whole.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 1.—Speaking on the Modernist interpretation of the Bible, the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick of New York declared, at the Ministers' convention in Yale Divinity School this afternoon, that there is great danger of losing sight of the whole of religion by the use of analysis of its parts.

"There are perils associated with this modern use of the Scriptures, and fairness demands a frank facing of them," said Dr. Fosdick. "For one thing, spiritual values often are discerned by a naïve and childlike faith when they are invisible to a critical and analytic mind. It is a pity that these two attitudes, appreciation and criticism, both of them indispensable to a fully rounded personality, should be set over against each other. In actual experience, however, they often are not confederate, as they should be, but hostile, and many a man to whose open and unquestioning soul the Scriptures came in youth, with their authoritative and appealing message, has paid for his later critical intelligence about the Book by surrendering the far too precious coin of spiritual insight and appropriation.

"When one sees the intellectual eagerness, coupled with spiritual superficiality, with which new views of the Bible are accepted by some minds, one wishes that he would make this deeper matter clear. To you who all too readily acclaim the new truth, one would say, remember that the heart of the Bible is not in its outgrown forms of thought, but in its reproducible experiences which can be phrased in other ways of thought. From Genesis to Revelation these are the abiding glories of the Book, and here lies its unassailable spiritual authority."

Army to Decide Hudson Bridge Dispute.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 1. — Secretary Weeks has directed the chief of engineers to investigate the controversy regarding a new bridge over the Hudson River at Castleton, N. Y., below Albany, and to render a decision which will keep the cost at the lowest possible figure. Shipping interests have complained that the bridge as now planned will interfere with navigation, while this has been denied by the New York Central Railroad representatives. Should the bridge be found to constitute an interference with navigation it will be necessary for the railroad to construct a new channel.

Victor House to Practice Law.

Victor House, an Assistant United State Attorney, announced yesterday that he would quit the Government service. With Raymond L. Wise, former special assistant to the United States Attorney, he will establish a law office at 120 Broadway under the firm name of House and Wise.

SMITH REACHES BUDAPEST.

American Commissioner General in Hungary at Critical Time.

BUDAPEST, May 1.—Jeremiah Smith of Boston, Commissioner General for Hungary under the League of Nations' reconstruction scheme arrived this morning. He was greeted at the station by representatives of the Premier and Foreign Minister and was driven past a line of photographers to the Hotel Hungaria, where he will reside temporarily.

The Government intends to offer him rooms in the left wing of the Royal Palace, with offices in the Ministry of Finance.

The arrival of Mr. Smith at this time will give the Commissioner an opportunity to study Hungarian conditions at a critical moment. No newspapers have been published for the last fortnight, owing to the printers' strike, and there are signs that the strike may spread to other labor bodies.

SUICIDE BURNS HIS MONEY.

Cresson (Pa.) Man Sets $2,000 Afire and Drinks Furniture Polish.

ALTOONA, Pa., May 1.—Frank Urbain, an elderly resident of Cresson, a suburb of this place, committed suicide today in an unusual manner. Going to the bank at Cresson, he withdrew $1,400 in money and collected $600 more in cash, changing silver to bills.

Putting the money on the kitchen table, he struck a match to it, watched it burn slowly, and then drank a pint of furniture polish, and ate a can of wall cleaner. He died several hours later.

Urbain was a stone mason, about 65 years old. His widow could not ascribe any reason for his act.

BRITISH WOULD DEAL WITH BERLIN DIRECT

Want Experts' Plan Taken Out of Reparation Board's Hands as Far as Possible.

FAVOR A NEW CONFERENCE

Belgian Ministers Arrive in London and Will Get Premier MacDonald's Views Today.

LONDON, May 1 (Associated Press).—Premier Theunis and Foreign Minister Hymans of Belgium arrived in London tonight on the second of the visits they are paying to France, England and Italy for the purpose of ascertaining the views of the allied Governments on methods for making the Dawes plan effective.

Fresh from Paris, the Belgian Ministers, who are assuming their old rôle as go-betweens in the allied negotiations, will be able to speak Premier Poincaré's mind as well as their own when they meet Prime Minister MacDonald at Chequers Court tomorrow. In return they will hear the British thesis, which, while not new, indicates an outcropping of the old Anglo-French differences, forgotten since the British resigned themselves to the occupation of the Ruhr.

Mr. MacDonald, it is understood, will inform the Belgians that the British Government would like to see the businesslike beginning which the experts made continued in carrying out their recommendations, and therefore will propose to the Allies when the proper time comes that application of the experts' proposals be taken out of the hands of the Reparation Commission as far as is possible and put into effect by a new allied agreement with the Germans, which could be obtained by direct negotiations.

According to the British view the negotiations should take the form of a new international conference. It is believed here that the result would be a business agreement, unhampered by bitter feelings, for the problem would be handled as one between a debtor and a creditor instead of between the victor and the vanquished.

That such a plan is likely to be acceptable to Premier Poincaré at the present time is not suggested by the British observers, who declare they know what is in Mr. MacDonald's mind. It is known that the French favor turning the experts' plan in its entirety over to the Reparation Commission to carry out as it sees fit. Nevertheless, the British believe the method of direct negotiations with the Germans would prove more successful and therefore MacDonald is expected to speak frankly on this point to the Belgians tomorrow.

When Premier Theunis and M. Hymans visit Paris again next week they will be able to tell Premier Poincaré exactly what is in the British mind. Later in the month, when they continue their work as Allied go-betweens by conferring with Premier Mussolini in Milan, the Italians likewise will have the British view placed before them so that they can support or reject it when the time comes for them to do so.

On the eve of Minister MacDonald's meeting with the Belgian emissaries, American observers, who have been giving the closest attention to the reparation problem since the experts formulated their report, expressed the opinion that the British, French, Italian and German acceptances, which have been sent to the Reparation Commission, would be lived up to completely, and that the differences of opinion now cropping out would be eliminated without serious difficulty.

Regarding the likelihood of the proposed German loan being acceptable to American investors, the same American authorities stated that American bankers who had investigated the European situation recently were of the opinion that such a loan would undoubtedly be acceptable in the United States if it were a priority issue on German resources.

PARIS AWAITS RESULT OF REICH ELECTIONS

Does Not Wish to Make Any Move That Would Help German Nationalists.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 1.—As seen from Paris the German elections on Sunday bear a most important relation to the putting into operation of the Dawes reparations plan. Before the plan can begin to work Germany must pass a series of important laws to be prepared on the basis laid down by the German and allied organization committees, which will soon start their task.

These laws relate to handing over the railroads of the Reich to an international organization, to giving the new bank a monopoly of the issue of paper money and to the establishing of a 5,000,000,000 gold marks mortgage on German industrial property. They must be acted on by the new Reichstag to be chosen Sunday and which will meet June 1. Everything depends on the passage of those bills.

Rightly or wrongly, the French see in a victory of the Right danger of a refusal of the necessary vote. On the other hand the failure of the Right to gain a large increase in the number of its deputies would be regarded as augguring well for the voting of the necessary laws.

Politicians here think Chancellor Marx and Foreign Minister Stresemann are playing a good game. To please the Left they accept the experts' report, while to please the Right they promise concessions, especially relating to time limits of occupation of German territory. Care has been taken in Paris to do nothing to disturb this lineup.

For instance, the Ambassadors' Conference, meeting today to consider German failure to fulfill the disarmament terms, reached the decision to send a sharp note to Germany, but will not send it until next week. The idea prevailing among the allied representatives, an idea, which originated with Prime Minister MacDonald, is that it is best to do nothing this week to stir up any feeling in the Reich which might help the super-Nationalists.

Even if the elections do not disturb the complexion of the Reichstag the French do not expect the Germans to put the plan into operation without making difficulties. The railroad part of the plan has already been the object of criticisms not only by the leading newspapers but by members of the German Government. More dangerous than that, however, will be the argument the Germans will offer for fixing evacuation of the occupied territory. This issue is complex.

The Treaty of Versailles provides for evacuation of the bridgeheads of the Rhine in five, ten and fifteen years after the treaty has been put into effect. The French have stood by the policy enunciated by Mr. Millerand nearly three years ago that these delays do not begin to run until Germany lives up to her agreements. The British have never accepted this reasoning and next year expire the five years laid down for occupation of Cologne, which is held by the British. M. Poincaré has said he will not evacuate the Ruhr until France has been paid in full. Will he allow the Rhineland territory to be evacuated behind his troops in the Ruhr? This question offers perhaps the best opportunity for Germany to make trouble among the Allies.

Dr. Stresemann, it is said, here, would have a better chance of a reasonable settlement with the Allies if he did not give as the prime reason for Germany's accepting the experts' plan obtaining liberation of the occupied territories. This will inevitably bring from France the question as to what, if Germany accepts the Dawes plan to obtain evacuation, she will do after obtaining it. The German Foreign Minister's contention unquestionably adds to the French desire to have with England a definite understanding on the sanctions to be imposed if at any time Germany defaults in her obligations under the experts' schemes. The Germans are already arguing that next January is the time set for evacuation of the Cologne zone by the British and seeing in that eventuality the accompanying evacuation of the Ruhr.

But if the Germans do not wish to be too severely disappointed they might consider the possibility of the French replacing the British in Cologne. That is what happened when the Americans left Coblenz. Realization of this possibility might change their desire to see the English leave Cologne the first of next year.

SAYS FALL ACTED WITHOUT AUTHORITY

Treasury Official Tells Oil Committee the President Did Not Approve California Lease.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Turning its attention for the first time to Naval Reserve No. 2 on Buena Vista Hills, in California, the Senate Oil Committee was advised today by Assistant Secretary Finney of the Interior Department that a search of the records failed to show the necessary Presidential approval of the lease of over 3,000 acres in that reserve to the Honolulu Oil Company.

The lease was not valid, the witness said, unless approved by the President, because Secretary Fall had no authority of his own to make such a contract.

All of Naval Reserve No. 2 had been leased by Mr. Fall, with the exception of 1,280 acres, Mr. Finney said, and since Secretary Work came into office the rest had been leased at the request of the Navy Department. The leases made since Mr. Fall resigned carry royalties from 61 to 50 per cent., the witness said, which were much higher than those under Mr. Fall.

Mr. Fall granted the lease to the Honolulu company after his predecessor, Secretary Payne, had denied a patent to the company, the witness said.

Many of the early leases, Mr. Finney said, were for offset wells, granted to protect drainage by wells on adjoining properties. While authority for making the earlier leases rested in the Secretary of the Interior, the witness said that Secretary Payne in all instances referred applications to Secretary of the Navy Daniels and made no leases without the latter's approval.

Some of the leases made under Secretary Payne were to prevent the intrusion of water, Mr. Finney said. The early leases were made by act of President Wilson on written reports by Secretary Payne. Most of them were for producing wells, and some were to establish offset wells. The first area leased by Mr. Payne went to the Consolidated Mutual Oil Company and covered 120 acres.

Secretary Fall granted "area" leases later, the witness said, to cover areas in which his predecessor had granted "well" leases to producing wells on mining locations. The first "area" lease by Mr. Fall was for 160 acres on Naval Reserve No. 2 to the Boston Pacific Oil Company.

ASKS COOLIDGE TO ACT ON MAL DAUGHERTY

Senate Requests Him to Have Attorney General Defend Suits Against Investigators.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—A request that President Coolidge direct the Attorney General to defend suits brought by Mal S. Daugherty against members of the Senate committee investigating the Department of Justice was made in a resolution adopted today by the Senate.

The resolution, offered by Chairman Brookhart of the investigating committee, called attention to the habeas corpus proceeding instituted by Mr. Daugherty and the injunction suit filed by him when a subcommittee attempted to question him at Washington Court House, Ohio, as the suits to be defended.

There was no discussion of the resolution and it was adopted by unanimous consent. Attorney General Stone already has informed the committee he would cooperate with it in its litigation.

CALLS FORD VICTIM OF POWER PROPAGANDA

Tennessee Publisher Says Muscle Shoals Opponents Distort Sentiment of the State.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—E. B. Stahlman, Nashville publisher, told the Senate Agricultural Committee today that the testimony of other Tennessee witnesses unfavorable to the bid of Henry Ford for Muscle Shoals did not represent the true sentiment of the State. He directed his fire particularly at Dan McGugin, of Nashville who a week ago opposed the Ford offer.

"Propaganda, instead of being inaugurated by Mr. Ford has been organized by the power companies and Mr. McGugin acted as their agent," said Mr. Stahlman. He did not favor placing Muscle Shoals under the Federal Water Power act, as this would limit Mr. Ford's bid to 50 years and he would turn it down. He exhibited numerous pamphlets which he said were propaganda of the power companies trying to kill the Ford bid. They were distributed he said by "my altruistic friend McGugin."

Mr. Stahlman read a letter from the Tennessee Farm Bureau Federation, dated March 1, 1924, addressed to Representative Davis of Tennessee, saying the farmers were for the Ford bid and adding that McGugin had offered to have the Tennessee Manufacturers Association pay railroad fare to Washington of a delegation from the Farm Bureau.

"I am hostile to the nasty fingers of the power companies in this thing," continued Mr. Stahlman. "Where does all this opposition to Ford come from? From the power companies and the fertilizer trusts. If Ford did not live up to his contract I would lash him as I would the scoundrels who try to bribe me. But Ford is an honest man. He will live up to his promises."

He maintained the committee should not take any chance of crippling the Ford bid by making changes in the contract. The Government, he said, could not operate Muscle Shoals without getting into politics.

W. J. Cummins of Tennessee, President of the Bon Air Coal and Iron Company, identified himself as the man who was sent to Sing Sing by District Attorney Whitman of New York on the charge of wrecking a bank. He said he had never committed a dishonest act and that later he was unconditionally pardoned.

"Ford will help all the manufacturers in the South if he comes, and we want him to come," he said. "I would be willing for Ford to use all of the power at Muscle Shoals for the betterment of the South if he felt he needed it."

URGE MUSCLE SHOALS DELAY

American Engineering Council Wants Congress Investigation First.

No disposition should be made of Muscle Shoals until a thorough investigation has been made by a joint committee of Congress, the American Engineering Council states, in a report submitted to Chairman George W. Norris of the Senate Committee on Agriculture.

The report, made public yesterday, says that no disposition of the power plant should be made that is not in substantial accord with the provisions of the Federal water power act.

FEARS MELLON RATES CANNOT WIN SENATE

Smoot Admits He Has Not Enough Votes to Pass Them Without Change.

DAY IS SPENT IN DEBATE

Possible Levy on Tax-Free Bonds Is Theme of Long Discussion.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Consideration of the tax bill dragged today while Democrats continued to debate the amendment of Senator Reed of Pennsylvania limiting interest deductions and Senators Harrison and Smoot indulged in a protractive political debate. The amendment was first brought up early yesterday and two full days have been used by the Senate in talking over it, but adjournment came late this afternoon without a vote.

Senator Smoot is not sure now that the bill will pass May 10, as planned, and he blames the Democrats. He said he did not see how the surtax and normal rates could be called up before next week and announced that he would demand night sessions, beginning tomorrow.

For the first time Senator Smoot admitted on the floor that he did not believe there were enough votes in the Senate to pass the Mellon surtax schedules. He has said this more than once outside the Senate chamber, but his declaration today came in a tilt with Senator Harrison.

Senator Smoot also said that if the surtax rates went above 32 per cent. he would have no interest in them because they would not then prevent extensive investment in tax-free securities, which he said the Mellon rates would stop.

Several Democrats, including Simmons, Caraway and Bruce, spoke at some length against the Reed provision, which, they assert, is an attempt to lay a tax on tax-free securities. Senator Reed of Missouri, apparently another opponent of the amendment, will speak tomorrow, and others are on the program.

One of the Democrats who are "off the reservation" so far as the Democratic income schedules are concerned—Senator Bruce—startled the Senate by declaring himself for an even lower maximum than the Mellon 25 per cent.

"I wish I could see any result that would be achieved by a maximum of 40 per cent.," he said, alluding to the Democratic top figure.

"You are not pitching your pipe in the right key when you propose to make the maximum 40 or 50 per cent. If you cut the maximum to 50 or even 25 per cent., you may as well cut it to 20 or 15. Nobody wants to pay taxes anyway." The Senator supported Secretary Mellon in insisting that lower surtaxes would mean more revenue for the Government.

The Maryland Senator, Edwards of New Jersey and Bayard of Delaware do not feel themselves bound to the Democratic program and will probably vote for the Mellon plan. Democratic leaders say that they will be the only recalcitrants and that Senator Glass of Virginia, who also objected to the Democratic rates at a conference last night, will vote with his party.

The conference, which was participated in by about thirty Senate Democrats, indorsed the Democratic rates after discussing them until after midnight.

Another Democratic conference was planned for this evening, to consider the graduated tax on corporations proposed by Senator Jones of New Mexico, and also the estate and gift taxes. Mr. Jones wishes to have his corporation tax approved so that he may present it tomorrow.

Sharp Political Exchange.

Senator Harrison declared in the debate that if Republicans had had their way, the Mellon plan would have been made law three years ago.

"We would have followed the recommendations of the last three Treasury Secretaries if we had," retorted Senator Smoot.

"But the Senator and his party will not now vote to follow the recommendations of President Wilson and Secretaries Glass and Houston," he added.

"Well, the Senator's party will not either," snapped Harrison.

"There are some Republicans who will not do it, but I am glad to say that some Democrats will," countered Senator Smoot. "But we have not got enough votes to do it."

Scoffing at Secretary Mellon, as "propaganda" for his plan, and at the plan itself, Senator Harrison continued:

"Why, even with the burning words of the ringing speech of President Coolidge sounding the House, the Republican leader, Mr. Longworth, offered a compromise."

"They could not put the Mellon plan through because Democrats voted solidly against it with a certain number of Republicans," was Mr. Smoot's reply. "I believe as strongly as I do anything in the world that with a 25 per cent. rate we would collect more money in two years and we would stop evasions."

Smoot Says Mellon Is Right.

"Why, the Senator knows the Mellon plan has not got a chance," insisted Mr. Harrison.

"That does not mean it is not right," answered Mr. Smoot.

When Senator Harrison referred to possible substitutes for the Mellon plan, Mr. Smoot said:

"If there is a rate above 32 per cent. in the surtax I care nothing about the matter. Above that the hole is wide open and I do not care then what rate is placed in the bill."

Senator Harris of Georgia has introduced an amendment that would exempt all single persons with $2,000 incomes or less, and married persons with $3,000 or less, from any income tax payments. He says this would apply to 2,500,000 individuals, and would mean a revenue loss of $18,000,000, which would be largely offset by consequent reductions in the cost of administering the income tax law.

At their party session tonight, the Senate Democrats decided to offer their own substitutes for the estate and corporation tax schedules as they appear now in the pending bill. They also agreed to do all they could to push the measure to an early vote.

COOLIDGE PRESSES ALASKA FISHERY BILL

Asks Prompt Passage by Senate of Measure to Conserve Food Supply.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Joining with Secretary Hoover in advocacy of legislation to conserve the Alaskan fisheries, President Coolidge sent a letter today to Chairman Jones of the Senate Commerce Committee urging prompt passage of the pending bill to prevent monopolies and special privileges in the fisheries and the establishment of reserves.

The President's letter was made public at the White House and closely followed the statement issued yesterday by Secretary Hoover, challenging foes of the bill to oppose the measure on its merits rather than to engage in "slandering the men who have the responsibility of protecting the fishing interests." The President's letter read:

In my message at the opening of Congress I called attention to the necessity for legislation to preserve the Alaskan fisheries from destruction. Legislation to prevent the continued exploitation of these fisheries has been urged by Secretary Hoover and the Department of Commerce for the last three years. It has been supported by exhaustive scientific investigations and personal investigation of members of the House and Senate in Alaska, and the whole subject has been traversed in public hearings on frequent occasions before Congressional committees.

These fisheries are in an extremely precarious condition. The salmon are being rapidly depleted in many sections and are in grave danger of extinction. The situation cannot be met under existing law.

Today practically one-half the fishing areas are absolutely unregulated and unprotected, open to private exploitation in its most ruthless form, for there is no law which may be applied to them. The remaining areas are covered by reservations established by President Harding two years ago and by regulations which have limited the establishment of new canneries and curtailed the operation of those already existing.

It has been frequently stated by the department that these executive measures are of a purely temporary nature. They were wholly inadequate to meet the permanent necessity. They are justified by the exigency of the need to prevent the extension of further destructive operation pending action by Congress, and they have served that purpose.

H. R. 8148 offers a solution of these difficulties. It has passed the House of Representatives, been reported with an amendment by unanimous vote of your committee, and is now pending before the Senate. I am advised that this bill in its present form affords ample powers for the preservation of this great but fast-failing source of food supply for the American people.

It necessarily means the curtailing of fishing operations. No conservation measure can be worth the name unless it reduces the amount of fish that may be taken and thus provides for sufficient proportion of escapement to the spawning grounds to assure the runs for future generations.

Any reduction necessarily means sacrifice for those now engaged in these fisheries, but selfish considerations must always yield to public interests. In the long run it is in the interest of both canners and fishermen that the industry should be preserved and that it should be placed on a sound and stable basis of contribution to American food supply, and that it should become the basis of a permanent livelihood to the people engaged in it.

I cannot too strongly urge upon you the necessity for the prompt passage of this legislation, as the fishing season for this year is rapidly approaching.

ADMIRAL DEFENDS DENBY OIL LEASES

Robinson, Who Advised Former Secretary, Tells Club to Suspend Judgment.

The naval oil reserve land leases executed by former Secretary of the Navy Denby were defended yesterday by Rear Admiral J. K. Robison, Chief of the Bureau of Engineering of the Navy Department and one of the high ranking experts who advised Mr. Denby to take the action which ultimately led to his forced retirement from the President's Cabinet.

Speaking at a luncheon of the Propeller Club held at the Railroad Club, 30 Church Street, Admiral Robison asked that final judgment concerning the leases be witheld until the question had been passed upon by the Federal courts.

"I would like to have you refrain from accepting the attitude that I was right until it is proved," said Admiral Robison. "The matter is now before courts that are not governed by hearsay. Stay 'from Missouri' until it is shown that I was right. You will know pretty soon whether it is possible for us to do better than we have in the past. If it is, go ahead. If it isn't, I am going to ask the wholesale support of every engineer in the country.

"So far, the courts haven't closed down a single oil well under the contracts. On the contrary, other wells have been driven by order of the courts. I am more interested in this matter than the general public possibly can be."

Admiral Robison said that it had not been his intention to refer to the naval oil leases and that he had done so because of the remarks made by Captain W. M. McFarland, a former naval officer, now President of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers, who was the toastmaster and who introduced him.

Danger of war with Japan and the necessity that the navy have an abundant supply of fuel oil immediately available, together with the drainage of oil on the naval reserve lands under ground into adjacent wells on private property, amply justified the leases, Captain McFarland said in introducing the Admiral.

"We engineers look upon Admiral Robison as the head of our profession," Captain McFarland said. "He was one of those who advised Secretary Denby to take this action that resulted in the horrible orgy of mud slinging and muck raking at Washington. This oil was in the ground 1,000 miles from the coast. There were no wells and it was absolutely no use to us. The reserves were being drained and the scheme was devised of exchanging the oil under ground for fuel oil located where it could be used by the navy.

"I believe Admiral Robison's advice was absolutely sound and the only advice that should have been given under the circumstances. At that time it was believed we might have war with Japan —conditions were not as good as they are now—and it was essential that we have oil in the Hawaii for the navy. He advised that we do what, under the circumstances, was the only thing to do."

Admiral Robison said that the first problem of the Bureau of Engineering was to develop a first-class personnel.

"I have tried to get the Admirals and Captains tied up directly in the engineering success of the units in their commands," said he. "We have stopped spending money ashore. Go over to the Brooklyn Navy Yard and see how they like me! Why, I was afraid to go over there today. We are spending our money all on the fleet. I gave it to the Admirals and told them to spend it as they pleased—to redecorate if they wanted to—but if their ships were not fit in all respects for service, they would be responsible. It worked and we saved $4,000,000."

PROPOSES INQUIRY ON NAVAL WEAKNESS

ico. He takes the position that such elevation of guns is not in violation of treaty obligations and he looks for early favorable action on his bill.

With reference to this measure, Mr. Britten said:

"Expressed in terms of elevation of guns, the thirteen ships of the American navy have a designed elevation of fifteen degrees, whereas none of the twenty-two ships of the British navy has less than twenty degrees elevation, and unless this appropriation is agreed to we might just as well make a public announcement that the United States is in third place among the navies of the world."

Wants View of State Department.

Commenting upon Premier MacDonald's opposition to the turret elevation on treaty grounds, Mr. Britten continued:

"I think it is about time for the State Department to make its own interpretation of the armament treaty in order that we may go ahead with this work, as well as with the reconditioning of the battleships New York, Texas, Florida, Utah, Arkansas and Wyoming, which will consist of the installation of additional precautions against submarine attack and of the installation of anti-air attack protection and the conversion of the mechanical equipment from coal burning to oil burning, to which the British Premier is also quoted as opposing.

"In my conversation with President Coolidge yesterday he expressed a desire of maintaining the navy at the very highest standard of efficiency and in accordance with the armament treaty, which was intended to make our navy the equal of any in the world.

"On Monday I will introduce a resolution to investigate specific weaknesses in the navy."

Reports Flagship Shortage.

Additional facts in Admiral Coontz's report ascertained today show that there is a shortage of ships adequate for exercise of command. The Admiral recommended the building of a cruiser to replace his own flagship, the Seattle, and that old cruisers be refitted for flagships. The Procyon, flagship of the commander of the Fleet Base Force, had been unable to keep in touch with the fleet at ten knots, and her replacement by one of the old armored cruisers was urged.

The report stated that weather, wind, sea and temperature in the Atlantic made inroads on general material effectiveness in excess of those experienced in the Pacific, particularly in the smaller and less capable units. The Admiral found some instances of faulty design and some defects probably due to faulty administration and stated he did not believe the ships have been getting their share of overhaul time.

Commenting on the need for extensive operation when there is so much personnel to be trained but when skilled personnel is short, as it has been, the Admiral said there should be allowed ample time for the inadequate personnel to accomplish the upkeep.

SINCLAIR CASE GOES BEFORE COURT TODAY

Oil Man's Counsel Deny Senate Committee's Power to Compel Witnesses to Testify.

ASK TO QUASH INDICTMENT

Government Counsel Contend That Contempt Charges Should Stand and Go to Trial.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Arguments will be heard tomorrow by Associate Justice Hoehling of the District Supreme Court in the Senate contempt proceeding against Harry F. Sinclair growing out of the naval oil reserve leasing controversy. Eight hours has been allotted to counsel and the arguments will be concluded Saturday. The Government will be represented by District Attorney Gordon, in association with Atlee Pomerene and Owen J. Roberts, special counsel in the oil cases. Mr. Sinclair's counsel are Martin W. Littleton and G. T. Stanford of New York and J. W. Zevely and George P. Hoover of Washington.

The following statement was issued tonight by the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Company:

"The case, involving a fundamental question of powers of congressional committees—a question never yet carried to a final conclusion in the United States Supreme Court—results from Mr. Sinclair's refusal, March 22 last, to answer further questions before the Senate oil investigating committee.

"Mr. Sinclair had testified five times at length, and when he was called for the sixth time his counsel challenged the right and propriety of the committee to compel further information, including private books and papers, especially after the committee and Congress had referred the oil affair to the Federal Courts.

"Mr. Sinclair did not base his refusal to answer further questions on the ground, as was declared erroneously in the Senate recently, that answers might tend to incriminate him, but on broader grounds. Mr. Sinclair then stated that 'there is nothing in any of the facts or circumstances of the lease of Teapot Dome which does or can incriminate me.' He added that he would reserve his evidence for the courts.

"A formal charge of contempt was made promptly, the Senate referring the case to District Attorney Gordon, and an indictment followed. Mr. Sinclair appeared personally, pleaded 'not guilty' and furnished $5,000 bail. Later the plea was withdrawn, when a demurrer to the indictment and a motion to quash were filed.

"These are the subjects of tomorrow's arguments. They raise the constitutional question of the authority of a Congressional committee to compulsorily summon witnesses and papers in the discharge of legislative functions. This is contended by Sinclair counsel to be a judicial and not a legislative power which the Senatorial committee sought to assume.

"This question also has been raised in the present Senate proceeding against Mal Daugherty, brother of the former Attorney General, and, again, by the Western Union Telegraph Company in refusing to submit private telegrams to the Daugherty investigating committee.

"It is contended that compulsory process against witnesses may be exerted by commitees of Congress under the Constitution only when they are pursuing constitutional functions—in impeachment proceedings, election contests, and in considering qualification, conduct or expulsion of members. In securing information upon which to base legislation, it is contended by Sinclair counsel that committees may not require information and papers which are private and personal.

"Another question raised is that Congress, in adopting the resolution declaring that the oil leases violated its settled conservation policy and were corrupt and fraudulent, stripped itself of further jurisdiction by referring the affair to the Federal courts, which now are engaged in considering Government suits to cancel the leases, while a Grand Jury here is considering possible criminal action.

"In attacking the Sinclair demurrer and motion, Government counsel contended that questions of fact should be raised under a plea of not guilty and were extrinsic to the merits of the indictment."

ROSES FOR FRENCH HERO.

These Are Sole Token of Anniversary of Chevalier de Bayard.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 1.—Four roses were placed at the foot of the statue of Chevalier de Bayard that stands on the right of the Court of Honor in the Palace of Versailles yesterday in simple recognition of the four hundredth anniversary of the death in battle at Abbiategrasso, near Milan, of the most glorious figure in French chivalry.

It was he who, with 1,000 men against 35,000, at Mézières saved Central France from invasion in the war between Francis I. and Charles V. And in all the wars of his time he was a brave leader and a generous foe, twice being returned without ransom upon being captured by the enemy.

During the past three years there has been an epidemic of anniversaries. French citizens have honored no less than three score persons and events. Even the centenary of the discovery of the gastronomic possibilities of asparagus was celebrated.

Yet neither the French Government nor any group held any ceremonial observance in honor of Chevalier de Bayard. In Italy great fêtes were organized in tribute to the noble Frenchman, but in France the four roses were the sole commemoration of his life and deeds.

Soft Gums

A sign that pyorrhea threatens the root sockets

SOFT, spongy gums indicate the beginning of pyorrhea. If neglected, the infection spreads from the gum tissue to the root sockets—the foundation upon which your teeth depend. Then the teeth fall out or must be pulled.

Pyorrhocide Powder is the dentifrice prescribed by dentists since 1906 as an aid in checking, as well as preventing, pyorrhea. It hardens soft, spongy gums—strengthens tender gums—corrects bleeding gums. It keeps the teeth white and clean.

TAFT SAYS PRESS OBSTRUCTS JUSTICE

Condemns Publicity of Secret Proceedings of Grand Juries, and Attacks Headlines.

LAWYERS SCORED BY SEITZ

Denies Fear of Libel Restrains News —Sackett Defends Papers Before Bar Association.

Henry W. Taft, President of the Bar Association of New York City, charged the press of New York in an address before the Bar Association last night, with obstructing justice by printing Grand Jury proceedings with the connivance of unethical lawyers, and by printing indiscreet headlines and accounts of cases before the Grand Juries or the courts.

Mr. Taft opened a discussion on "The Courts and the Press." A partial defense of newspapers and a lively attack on lawyers, judges and legislators was made by Don C. Seitz, business manager of The World. Henry W. Sackett, a lawyer, for many years representing The New York Tribune and now The New York Herald-Tribune, said there had been a great abatement of antagonism in the relations between newspapers on the one hand and lawyers and judges on the other, and said that a permanent organization should be formed through which the newspapers, the bar and the courts could deal with each other to promote the administration of justice and the accurate handling of news.

One of Mr. Taft's specific complaints was that no New York newspaper, so far as he knew, employed a lawyer to report court cases. He accused the newspapers of failing to help the lawyers reform the law. He referred to the law of libel as the "chief thing that newspapers feel as a restraint on their conduct."

Denies Fear of Libel.

This last series of charges was ridiculed by Mr. Seitz, who said that lawyers would not be a success as reporters because lawyers always disagreed with the courts. He denied that lawyers were interested in law reform, saying that the laws were generally drawn up in lawyers' offices for secret or private ends and that, instead of desiring clear and sound laws, the lawyers wanted laws that consumed money in prolonged experimentation before judges before anybody knew what the laws meant. Regarding the charge that the newspapers were restrained mainly by fear of libel verdicts, he said:

"In the innumerable campaigns that The World has been engaged in, the last thing in the world that we feared was the law of libel. We have never hesitated to attack anything that we felt to be against the public interest on that account. I don't think we have had altogether five verdicts against us in forty years in cases where we deliberately set out to make an attack. The accidental case is very different. The accident is the thing you always have to watch on a newspaper."

Mr. Taft came into the hall armed with a large number of headlines from many newspapers in the Ward case, the Stokes case, the Webb case and many others. He read a long series of headlines reflecting against young Ward, and then told of the trial, the verdict and the acquittal.

"But there was no retraction, no effort on the part of the newspapers to undo the wrong done," he said.

Next Mr. Taft read the verdict of the Grand Jury exonerating Webb, but asserted that it would never overcome the suspicion that had been implanted in the minds of thousands of honest-thinking people that he had been guilty of something.

"In the Frank case," he said, "there was a drive by the newspapers the other way. He had been convicted, his conviction had been affirmed by the Supreme Court of Georgia, and the Supreme Court of the United States had refused to disturb it; but the newspaper accounts of the case caused so much resentment that, if I recall it, the mob seized him from the court jail and put him to a horrible death."

Mr. Taft then went back nearly twenty years to the Nan Patterson case and reproached an enterprising newspaper of that day which, he said, had obtained interviews with the wives of the jurors on how they felt about the way their husbands had voted.

"A thing which the newspapers do, and which they ought to change," he continued, "is to exploit guilty criminals. They are created a great deal better than eminent statesmen on eminent occasions. Their every gesture is exploited; what they had for breakfast, their previous history. Not many of them are subjected to that obscurity which the prison walls ought to impose, but there is a glorification of the criminal who had been a party to a successful and cruel crime."

Crime as Sporting Event.

The exploitation of criminal cases and sensational trials in the newspapers caused the public in general, he said, to look on these things as sporting events in which they pick their favorites and are guided not by reason and principles of justice but by their feelings and sentiments.

"Now there is a very legitimate interest," he continued, "in mysterious crimes. One would be quite unreasonable if he expected the newspapers to withhold from their readers fair accounts of the commission of crimes. Of course, we are all interested in it. But there must be a limit in order that these ulterior results may not flow, and particularly when those results come from inaccurate, overdrawn or over-colored accounts.

"There is a very serious feature to from inaccurate or overdrawn or over-this matter for which, I am sorry to say, somebody other than the press must share the responsibility. That is the disclosure of the secret proceedings of Grand Juries by devices which are resorted to by ingenious newspapers with the cooperation of those having the management of the case for the State."

He then talked of the Thaw case and other noted trials in which hundreds and even thousands of talesmen were winnowed before a jury could be found composed of persons whose minds were free from the influence of newspaper reading.

Mr. Taft deplored the fact that he and others interested in law reform have been unable to obtain effective co-operation. He said that high-class lawyers did not understand publicity methods, and that all they could do was to work out reforms to the best of their ability and leave it to the public and the press to push them through legislatures.

"Now the newspapers form a group in the community," he continued. "They have a potentiality for exercising a greater influence than any other group in the community. With that position and that potentiality, are they to escape the responsibility of exercising them for the public good?"

The reason that law reform failed, according to Mr. Taft, was that "the press isn't interested."

Mr. Taft then dealt with the alleged faultiness of the newspapers in presenting the news of the courts.

"I believe it is a correct statement," he said, "that no newspaper in this city has in its employ for the purpose of reporting legal decisions a man who is a lawyer. This is an anomalous and impossible situation. Supposing that the newspapers wanted to report upon music, literature, baseball, football, economics or finance, and employed a man who didn't know about those things."

He mentioned a few musical and financial experts to show that newspapers used men in those departments who knew a tune or could explain a stock market transaction.

"If they employ a man on baseball, they get somebody who knows what a 'Texas Leaguer' is," he continued, "if they didn't have men who know the technique of baseball or football, they would lose circulation. No specialists are employed except in those fields which are the most important of all for the stability of our institutions, and that is the administration of justice in our courts."

Talk of News Blunders.

He gave an inventory of the branches of learning in which a newspaper man should be proficient before he undertakes to write up a court case—the history, the theory, the procedure.

"Our profession is a learned profession," he continued. "A man cannot report the decisions of our courts without understanding something about the law. Over and over and over again the reports of the decisions in our courts are incorrect."

Mr. Taft reviewed several flagrant blunders in which a news service or a newspaper had presented an important decision as meaning just the opposite to the real meaning. "You will all recall in the Stokes case," he said, "the statements that were made to prejudice the case of Mr. Stokes. They were quite glaring, quite glaring."

He said the newspaper most active in promulgating false statements about this case had solemnly reprehended the courts, judges and juries for being influenced by such things.

"I don't know," he continued, "whether the newspapers have any associations such as we have for the purpose of maintaining the ethics of the profession, or for the purpose which we are trying to fulfill, that with which we practise—that is, the law. But isn't it a condition in which the newspapers ought not to retreat behind the protection of the statement that it won't do any good—that the public demand this sort of thing?

"Ought not they rather to try it on and see whether they cannot employ lawyers and teach them the art of news values, because they haven't got it to start with? I will admit that. But let them try and co-ordinate the profession and the knowledge of law with the necessities of journalism and make some effort to correct the thing which, in my judgment, is seriously affecting the administration of justice, namely, the destruction of confidence in our system."

Mr. Sackett, as a lawyer and a representative of a newspaper at the same time, expressed himself as highly pleased with the conciliatory tone of the address of Mr. Taft, in comparison with the old days when a Judge or an eminent lawyer could not mention a newspaper without becoming purple in the face. He recalled how Thomas Jefferson had described the press of his day as "putrid;" and how David Dudley Field in his day had tempered the phrase to "putrescence putrified."

The comparative mildness of current assaults on the press augured well, in the opinion of Mr. Sackett, for future amity and cooperation between press and bar. He reviewed the stubborn defense which the Judges had made of their prerogative of putting a newspaper man in jail for printing anything about the proceedings in their courts; and how long they had clung to the theory of "the greater the truth the greater the libel;" and how slow they were in admitting truth as having any relevancy whatsoever in the defense of a libel action.

Mr. Sackett urged strongly that advantage should be taken of signs of a better mutual understanding between the press and the law by the appointment of a committee representing both in the discussion of such problems as Mr. Taft had raised.

Mr. Seitz blamed the procrastination of courts, their reversal of one by another, the eagerness of lawyers to smash the laws instead of to defend them, for the lack of interest on the part of the press in following cases through every twist and turn of the procedure labyrinth. Even conceding great experts were employed, he said that newspaper would find little to interest their readers in following the migrations of cases from court to court.

Though admitting great defects in newspapers, he asserted that they were found almost unanimously working for law reforms and for the re-election of deserving judges whom politicians sought to throw out of office. This was done, he said, on the theory that the man might have been unpromising in the first place, but might have acquired independence and honesty on the bench.

"The chemists say that running water purifies itself every four miles and something like that occurs on the bench," he said. "The man might have been the lowest of the low when first elected for fourteen years, but in four years he has purified himself."

Denies News Is Colored.

Mr. Seitz said that a growing evil in the press was commercialism which was due, he said, to the emphasis placed on costs of production of all kinds by the soaring prices of labor, white paper, &c., during the war. He denied that news was colored.

"I have been connected with newspapers all my life," he said, "and never have I received any instruction to do anything dishonest or anything that interfered with my free will. To get the news, and get it first, if possible, are the only instructions."

After denying the fear of the law of libel was the beginning of discretion with newspapers, he continued:

"The accident is the thing to fear. At one time we had 126 cases on the calendar against us, every one of which was an accident, usually something very trivial. For example, the worst verdict we have sustained was in favor of a gentleman from Binghamton who we said had run away with a lady. He had. But he had married her and we had omitted that. The verdict was for $35,000, but he was in a great hurry to go to Europe and he took $2,500 from our attorneys."

The courts suddenly ordered all these 126 libel suits to take precedence over everything else, according to Mr. Seitz, so that the paper faced 126 suits all at once. Other newspapers were in the same position. A very eminent and distinguished lawyer, he said, came forward with the suggestion that the newspapers should all get together and raise a large sum and place it in the hands of a notorious lobbyist in Albany who would undertake to have laws passed to prevent the libel suit epidemic. Mr. Seitz said the proposal was promptly rejected and that not a newspaper in New York would consider it.

ULSTER PREMIER TELLS STAND ON BOUNDARY

Will Oppose a Commission, but He Would Negotiate Directly With Free State Chief.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 1.—Sir James Craig, Prime Minister of Northern Ireland, addressing the Ulster Association in London today, declared he would not appoint a representative of Ulster to the boundary commission, and would refuse to bend one inch to the new demands that were being made on Ulster.

He replied to a speech made by Lord Birkenhead on Wednesday, and described it as a speech of an opponent and not a friend of Ulster.

Sir James said he and the late Michael Collins had agreed in 1922 that the boundary commission, as outlined in the treaty, should be altered so that the Governments of the Free State and of Northern Ireland should appoint one representative each, to report to Mr. Collins and to himself, who would then mutually agree on behalf of their respective Governments on the future boundaries. The British Government representatives had signed that agreement, Sir James said, and he was still prepared to carry it out, and he wished to know why the Free State was not being urged to execute it.

"But to appoint some one unknown to come into our sacred territory and tell men who have lived all their lives under the Union Jack that they have got to get out and to get under the flag of the Free State, which at this moment is in jeopardy and which tomorrow may be hauled down, to find itself substituted by the flag of a republic, is out of the question," said Sir James.

PREDICT LEFT GAINS IN FRENCH VOTING

Forecasts Agree That the Moderates Will Be Stronger When Chamber Meets Again.

POINCARE NOT IN DANGER

Pressure in the Future Expected to Be in Favor of Cooperation With the Allies.

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 1.—Asked yesterday which way it was expected in Government circles the French elections would turn, one of Premier Poincaré's Ministers replied, "Slightly to the Left." This forecast agrees with all signs and with the general expectation.

Though the elections are only ten days away, there is no excitement except where here and there Communists have broken up a meeting or two as when they assaulted André Tardieu and Prince Murat, and among the generality of voters there is very little interest.

Old election hands declare that the electors' minds were made up months ago and that they reverted to old party lines in a way which will favor the Left over the national bloc.

What is most feared is that there will be a very general abstention from voting. At the last elections 30 per cent. of the voters never went to the polls and in some country departments the figure of those who abstained reached over 40 per cent. The only departments where the voting was taken seriously were the Paris District and the recovered provinces of Alsace-Lorraine. This feature of the 1919 election was ascribed to the absence of personal candidature due to the abolition of the old election system and the substitution of the quasi proportional list system, which this year is being tried again.

All over Paris and the country lists of candidates have been published on special billboards and their multiplicity seems certain to discourage any elector whose interest is torpid. The man in the street may know one or two candidates but in a very large majority of cases he certainly never heard more than the names of the rest of the list, even when they belong to the party for which he desires to vote.

This has produced a very definite uneasiness among the electors. If they vote for Duval and he gets an absolute majority, his surplus votes will be transferred to Dupont, about whom they know nothing, and this system of giving a blank check to some unknown candidate does not in the least accord with the Frenchman's character.

The Nationalist majority in the last Chamber seems likely to suffer most from this mistrust of the electoral system. They voted that it should be maintained without taking sufficient account of the fact that their electors at the last poll are this time not nearly so fervent in political spirit as are the followers of the Left, who have been for four years in the minority. As happens everywhere, the "outs" are far more anxious about getting "in" than the "ins" are about keeping their place. They are better organized and in better fighting shape than the party of national union which the Premier has created out of the old bloc national. They have behind them a twenty-year tradition of French politics and they have the advantage over the retiring majority of popular arguments—cost of living and the failure to obtain a settlement of international peace problems during the past five years.

The best judges claim that the Extreme Left wing will lose almost as much as the Moderate Left will gain. At the same time it is considered probable that the Royalist extremists of the Right will also fail to retain all their seats. If this forecast is correct, the new Chamber will not be so difficult to manage as the last, for more than half the troubles of the last four years have arisen from the violence and quarrels of the two extremes.

During the last six months it has been the policy of Premier Poincaré to get rid of these two violent factions, and his program, "No revolution and no reaction," seems likely to be realized. With a moderate chamber even though more to the Left than the last, it will be easily possible for the Premier, with the Cabinet which he reconstructed two months ago, to continue in office and continue the policy in international affairs which he has pursued recently. There may be from his followers a stronger insistence that any action taken or a reparations settlement be made with full accord with the Allies and less tendency toward separate action by France, but if the Premier is willing to concur in any formula which permits such harmony to be re-established, there is every reason to believe he will obtain from the new Chamber as large a vote of confidence as at any time during the last six months. At least, that will be the case during the period of active negotiations on the basis of the experts' plan. It will be on the result of these negotiations that later the Chamber will judge.

Woman Suffrage Campaign Lags.

PARIS, May 1.—Woman's suffrage does not appeal likely to gain much in the approaching French elections, as only two parties have seen fit to mention the question in their programs.

The Republican, Democratic and Socialist Parties, the leading elements in the national bloc, want the right to vote to be extended "progressively" to women, while the Christian Socialists, who had but one Deputy in the last Chamber, have come out for female suffrage unconditionally.

Judging from the strength of the parties in the last Chamber and their chances in the present campaign, the women are likely to have less than forty votes out of 584 in the new Parliament for "progressive" suffrage, and only one in favor of granting the franchise unconditionally.

The women themselves have thus far manifested little interest in the election, the suffrage campaign having lagged greatly since the last of its periodic manifestations of activity.

CALL BERNSTORFF TRAITOR

Election Opponents Denounce Ex-Envoy's Course Here In War.

BERLIN, May 1 (Associated Press).—Count von Bernstorff, former Ambassador to the United States, who is a candidate for re-election to the Reichstag on the Democratic ticket, is being violently attacked by his opponents as having been a traitor to the German people.

It is declared that von Bernstorff showed unwillingness to support harbor strikes in American munitions ports during the war, fomented by a German agent, Herr Jahncke, who is a Nationalist candidate for the Reichstag from the Halle-Merseburg district of Saxony. Jahncke claims that $20,000 was necessary to keep the strikes going, that Bernstorff did not reply to his first request for money and later flatly declined to supply it.

There were almost 5,000 candidates for the elections, which are to be held next Sunday. Germany is divided into thirty-five electoral districts, and twenty-three parties present candidates; 486 district lists are entered, which means an average of fourteen parties to a district. Besides the 4,514 district candidates, 428 candidates-at-large are nominated. These are the recipients of the surplus votes of over 60,000, which are necessary for the election of district candidates.

REBEL LEADER DIES IN CUBAN REVOLT

Brother of Official of Anti-Government Organization Is First Victim.

ZAYAS TAKES PRECAUTIONS

Rebel Junta Here Declares General Garcia-Velez Gone to Island to Rouse Rebels.

HAVANA, Cuba, May 1.—The first death as a result of the outbreak of some 25 soldiers and 90 civilians near Santa Clara was announced today when it was stated at the office of the Secretary of the Interior that Armando Soto one of the civilians who joined the soldiers in revolt, was slain in yesterday's brush between loyal troops and rebels. He was a brother of Dr. Oscar Soto, Secretary General of the Veterans' and Patriots' Association.

Ten men have been detained by the police at Cienfuegos on suspicion of being connected with the outbreak in Santa Clara province.

The Government continues to take all precautions.

Suspension of outdoor meetings and May Day parades by the labor element and authorization by President Zayas of the purchase of $400,000 worth of arms and ammunition for the War Department marked the Government's steps today in connection with the outbreak.

Reports show that all parts of the republic were quiet with the exception of the vicinity of Santa Clara City. It was explained by Government officials that the flight of a dozen men from Cienfuegos yesterday was believed to be merely an attempt to escape arrest. Dr. Federico Laredo Bru, lawyer and Secretary of the Interior, under the Gobez Administration, was one of those who newspaper dispatches said fled from Cienfuegos in a launch. Ten arrests have been made.

President Zayas has issued a manifesto declaring the movement practically ended, and offering amnesty to those civilians who fled with the revolting soldiers.

According to El Mundo a patrol of the Cuban coast was begun tonight by eleven Cuban warships to prevent the possible landing of arms, ammunition or other aid for the rebellious forces in the Province of Santa Clara.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—The Cuban Foreign Office has informed Major Gen. Enoch H. Crowder, Ambassador in Havana, that the armed movement against the Government is limited to twenty-three soldiers of the regular army and two rurales. General Crowder added, in reporting this, that he was convinced the outbreak was sporadic and without effective leadership and that the Government would be able to control it.

Dr. Cosme de la Orrienta, the Cuban Ambassador, called at the State Department this afternoon and spent some time with Secretary Hughes. The information received by the Cuban Embassy here, it is understood, agrees in substantial details with that received by the State Department.

General Carlos Garcia-Velez, the son of General Calixto Garcia of "message to Garcia fame," has left New York and is on his way by a secret route to Cuba. This was learned yesterday when a reporter came into possession of a copy of a message sent a few hours previously to the members of the Veterans and Patriots' Association in Cuba. The message said General Garcia "will shortly reach Cuba at the place agreed upon beforehand for this eventuality with the object of carrying out the final civic action for the regeneration of Cuba."

The message also notified members of the Veterans and Patriots' Association to "occupy their post already assigned to them for immediate cases of emergency."

It was signed by Colonel Manuel Despaigne as "Treasurer and President pro tem" and by the recently arrived Professor Gustavo Guiterrez as Secretary-General. Colonel Despaigne's signing as "President pro tem" accentuates the departure of General Garcia, who is the President. The leaders of the Cuba revolutionary junta here assert they do not know his whereabouts.

Followers of General Garcia here said the communication had been sent by confidential channels to leaders of the movement in Cuba, who would see it was circulated among the members of the association all over the island.

General Garcia Velez, President and founder of the Veterans and Patriots' Association, had been in New York since March 20, when he landed under an assumed name.

The leaders of the Cuban junta who remain in New York said yesterday that they had fragmentary information from their friends in Cuba indicating that the revolt had reached larger proportions than the Zayas Government was willing to let the world outside of Cuba know, and which it had kept from public knowledge by exercising strict censorship. They said the censorship was so strict that they had difficulty in getting into communication with their agents in Cuba even by the code.

"So far it has only been published that there was a revolt in the city of Santa Clara, in Santa Clara Province, and some disturbance in the Province of Oriente," said one of them today.

"We have just received fragmentary information from Cuba, however, that the revolt in Santa Clara is not by any means confined to the city of Santa Clara. In the city of Trinidad, we learn, General Telles, a veteran of the war of 1868 and a man of great local influence, has taken the field in our cause. And in Cienfuegos, the most important city in the south of Cuba, also in Santa Clara Province, there has been an additional uprising. Details are lacking.

"Furthermore, they told us that in the Provinces of Matanzas and Pinar del Rio, members of the Veterans and Patriots Association have risen against the Zayas Government.

"That means that we have news of revolt in four out of six Provinces of Cuba. The other two are the Provinces of Camaguey and Havana. We are probably stronger in Camaguey than anywhere else. We believe that the only reason we do not hear news of disturbances in Camaguey is that between it and Havana lie Provinces in which the revolt has broken out and the telegraph and telephone wires have been cut. The fact that we hear nothing from Havana indicates that everything is quiet there."

INVESTMENT BANKERS MEET

Prepare at White Sulphur Springs Reports for Annual Convention.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., May 1.—The annual Spring meeting of the Board of Governors of the Investment Bankers' Association of America opened today at the Greenbrier with an attendance of more than 200 members and ex-members, the largest since its organization.

The bankers, gathered here to prepare committee reports which will be presented at the annual convention of the organization in Cleveland in September, represent practically every important bond house in the country, and control the annual investment of billions of dollars.

President John W. Prentiss of Hornblower & Weeks, New York, opened the morning program. He was followed by Joseph A. Rushton of Chicago, Chairman of the Finance Committee; J. Clark Moore of Philadelphia, Chairman of the Membership Committee; Charles H. Sabin, Chairman of the Foreign Securities Committee, and Joel E. Harris, Chairman of the Irrigation Securities Committee, who submitted reports.

MOTOR CARS CAUSE 5 DEATHS IN A DAY

Man, Woman and Three Children Are Run Down in City Streets.

Gussie Rifkin, 6 years old, of 136 Essex Street, was killed at noon yesterday when she was knocked down by a motor truck while crossing the street in front of Public School 140, at 116 Norfolk Street. Lottie Reiff, 8, of 197 Rivington Street, who was walking hand in hand with her, also was knocked down by the vehicle and received a fracture of the skull.

Gussie began to attend school at the close of the vacation term last Summer. It had been the custom up to yesterday morning for her grandmother to escort her to and from the school, her widowed mother being employed in a furrier's establishment in West Thirty-eighth Street. The grandmother was too ill to call for her yesterday, and Gussie with her girl chum started for their homes alone.

With their school books under their arms the little girls were half way across the street in a line of children when the truck, operated by Phillip Callahan, 23 years old, of 362 West Fifty-third Street, struck them. Several hundred men, women and children surrounded the driver before the appearance of Policeman Tobin of the Clinton Street Station. The driver admitted that he drove into the thoroughfare from Norfolk Street on the north and did not know it was a one-way street for traffic from the south. Tobin put the driver in a drug store at Rivington and Norfolk Streets to save him from the menacing crowd and telephoned for an ambulance and the reserves. Callahan was held in $2,000 bail for examination on May 8 when he was arraigned before Magistrate W. Bruce Cobb in the Homicide Court.

John Arnathos, 5 years old, with two other boys started to cross the street in front of his home at 226 West Twenty-eighth Street last evening when he was run over and killed by a motor truck driven by Louis Smith of 124 South Ninth Street, Brooklyn. No policeman was in sight at the time of the accident and Nathan Kommel, a witness, of 326 West Twenty-eighth Street, took Smith to the West Thirtieth Street station, where he was held on a technical homicide charge.

Charles Schlessinger, 2 years old, eluded the little girl who was caring for him last night in front of his home at 326 East Forty-ninth Street and, making his way to Third Avenue, between Forty-eighth and Forty-ninth Streets, was knocked down and killed by a motor truck. William Heck, driver of the vehicle, of 366 West Twenty-ninth Street, was locked up in the East Fifty-first Street Station on a technical charge of homicide.

Mrs. Rose McGowan, 30 years old, of 216 East 102d Street, was killed at 1:30 P. M. when she was knocked down by a motor truck at Second Avenue and 103d Street. Henry Cahn, driver of the vehicle, of 142 West Eighty-third Street, was arrested by Policeman McKettrick of the East 104th Street Station on a technical charge of homicide.

James Falconer, 46 years old, a trolley car conductor of 423 Harlow Avenue, Elmhurst, Queens, was killed before dawn on Queens Boulevard, near New Haven Avenue, Elmhurst, ten minutes after he left a near-by car barn for his home. He was believed to have been struck by an automobile, the driver of which fled.

Vito Turrano, 6 years old, of Asbury Avenue, Ocean City, N. J., died in the hospital at Atlantic City yesterday of injuries received last Sunday when he was run over by an automobile near his home. The boy had walked two blocks to his home after the accident.

In its report for April the National Highways Protective Society announced yesterday that in the thirty days fifty-six persons were killed in this city by motor vehicles, five by surface cars and one by a horse-drawn wagon. The report also stated that 140 persons were killed by automobiles throughout the State in the same period, three of whom were killed by trains while riding in automobiles at grade crossings.

METHODISTS ASSAIL DR. BUTLER'S SPEECH

General Conference Votes Unanimously to Urge Congress Not to Change Liquor Law.

DR. WADE MADE SECRETARY

Bishop Quayle of St. Louis Asks for Retirement Because of Continued Illness.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 1.—After listening to a bitter denunciation of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, the thirty-fourth Quadrennial General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, at its opening session today, voted unanimously to urge Congress not to permit any change in the percentage of alcohol allowed in liquor as prescribed by the Volstead act, "believing that such a change would not only be in violation of the Eighteenth Amendment itself but would also render more difficult the enforcement of the law."

The denunciation of Dr. Butler was made by William H. Van Benschoten, a lawyer of New York, who declared that the Columbia President's speech was "a vicious, venomous attack on the institutions of our country," and its character was "such as to amaze and shock the people of the country."

"Dr. Butler assumed that the Eighteenth Amendment could not be enforced and that it was the cause of immoral and lawless conditions," said Mr. Van Benschoten, "and Dr. Butler appealed to the men and women of religious faith and moral principles to change their attitude and favor the repeal of the amendment and the law.

"I live in the State of New York, where some of us have to endure a Governor who, by signing the repeal of our State enforcement law, did what he could to nullify the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead law. I live within the shadows of the great institution of which Dr. Butler is the head. I daily see the thousands of young men and women who attend there for their education and ideals.

"I don't believe that Dr. Butler and those agreeing with him, all of whom seem to disregard the great principles involved, can prevent the legally adopted mandates of the people of the country from being enforced. The real issue is, can free Government secure obedience to its mandates and can American democracy protect its institutions and perpetuate itself?

The Rev. Dr. Raymond J. Wade, Executive Secretary of the Commission on Conservation and Advance, was elected Secretary of the conference to take the place of the Rev. Dr. Edmund M. Mills of Syracuse, N. Y., who retired because of age.

The conference heard with interest a letter from Feng Yu-hsian, Inspector-General of the Chinese National Army, sent from Peking. General Feng was elected a delegate from the North China Conference, but the Chinese Government would not let him come, saying it could not spare him.

Judge H. T. Ames of Clarion, Pa., caused a little mirth by offering an amendment to a resolution that the quadrennial address of the Board of Bishops to the conference be read Sunday afternoon, the meeting to be a regular session of the conference.

"I cannot sit here and hear this Episcopal address read on the Holy Sabbath Day," declared the Judge, who added that he felt it would be a desecration of the day.

A letter was read from Bishop William A. Quayle of St. Louis, who has been ill with paralysis for a long time, asking for retirement. Prayers were offered for him and for Bishop Homer C. Stunts of Omaha, who is suffering from a similar affliction.

CLERGYMEN REFUSE TO BAR DR. BUTLER

their attention and they saw no reason to consider it. The invitation to speak was sent some time ago to Dr. Butler and their understanding is that he will be present.

Dr. Butler Answers Challenge.

The President of Columbia University, who was busy with meetings away from Morningside Heights for most of the day, gave out the text of a letter he had sent to the Rev. Clarence True Wilson, General Secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance, who suggested he would like to debate the question with Dr. Butler both before the approaching Methodist General Conference in Springfield, Mass., and at Columbia University, which, he asserted, "is as wet as we are dry."

In reply Dr. Butler wrote:

"I beg to advise you that an engagement at Kansas City, Mo., makes it impossible for me to be at Springfield, Mass., on May 22. Were I present at that time I should hope to offer to the members of the Methodist General Conference a convincing argument in support of the proposal that the religious and moral forces of the country, which with the best intentions brought into effect the policy of national prohibition by constitutional amendment, should recognize the fact that that policy has failed, and that it has brought in its train as galling and wholly unexpected consequences in the field of both public and private morals.

"It is my hope and belief that these same religious and moral forces will rally to the support of a constructive public policy that shall effectively control the liquor traffic, abolish the saloon whether secret or open, promote the cause of temperance and public morals, as well as remove a chief incentive to that spirit and habit of lawlessness which bids fair to undermine the foundations of our whole social and political order.

Debate Futile or Unnecessary.

"You suggest a debate. My views on these questions have been publicly stated in an address on Law and Lawlessness before the Ohio State Bar Association at Columbus, Ohio, on January 26, 1923; in a letter on Obedience to Law versus Enforcement of One Law, written under date of February 15, 1924, to the Federal Prohibition Commissioner in response to a request from him for an expression of my opinion on this subject; and in an address before the Missouri Society of the city of New York, on Tuesday last, April 29.

"In those several papers I have stated and supported two theses: First, that the law of the land should be obeyed in its entirety by every citizen; and, second, that prohibition is now a moral issue. If you dissent from thee propositions, debate between us would be futile. If you assent to them, such debate is unnecessary.

"Your use of the word 'wet' as applied to Columbia University is perhaps intended to be offensive, but I am not sure that I understand just what the term means. Public opinion at Columbia University, whether represented by the faculties or by the vast student body, thoroughly supports the principle that the law of the land is to be obeyed in its entirety.

At Springfield last night Dr. Wilson commented upon Dr. Butler's reply. He said the Columbia President had missed a great opportunity.

"If Dr. Butler really thinks what he claims to," he said, "he ought not to have missed this great opportunity. He could not have had a better platform than would have been his on coming up here. I should have been glad to go to Columbia on a similar mission, for I am so thoroughly convinced that prohibition is right that I would have missed no opportunity of converting the wets."

Anti-Saloon League's Attack.

The Anti-Saloon League sent out through its publicity department a statement attacking Dr. Butler as standing "apparently alone among college and university presidents in his advocacy of the return of the liquor traffic to America."

The statement quotes at great length various college and university presidents who have declared for prohibition. "It is not evident, however, that any of the opinions quoted, have been voiced since Dr. Butler made his speech before the Missouri Society. The statement follows in part:

"President Butler stands alone among college and university presidents in his advocacy of the return of the liquor traffic to America. Other presidents of colleges, great and small, are almost unanimous in their stand for the enforcement of this as of all other laws. In statements which they have issued since the Eighteenth Amendment went into effect.

"In a recent survey made by the Intercollegiate Prohibition Association of the attitude of presidents and members of the faculty and students regarding prohibition, of 158 colleges and universities in forty States, 136 were favorable, 10 non-committal, only 8 unfavorable and 4 favored the theory but not the practice of the law.

"The brilliant and far visioned President Emeritus Charles W. Eliot of Harvard is an advocate of the Eighteenth Amendment and repeatedly in public utterances has stressed the benefits accruing from it and the necessity for its strict enforcement.

Eliot and Hibben Quoted.

"Among other statements he has made is the following:

"'The American democracy—the only thorough-going democracy in the world—has determined to insure its safety and progress by suppressing the monstrous evil of modern alcoholism. The democracy believes this to be a right use of its collective power, although at some cost to individual liberty; and it thinks that this temporary loss of valued liberty by individuals will soon appear, even to the losers, a great benefit.'

"President Hibben of Princeton University has come out in strong terms for upholding the Prohibition law. He has been quoted as saying that the purchasers of liquor from the bootlegger are hastening the day of the red flag in the United States. 'Liberty,' he says, 'has no significance unless conferred by law.' He has taken a determined stand to bar liquor from the Princeton Reunion in June and to make the commencement absolutely dry.

"Mary E. Woolley, President of Mount Holyoke College, has declared: 'Prohibition has had a great influence on the betterment of home life.'

"Dr. Walter Dill Scott, President of Northwestern University, has said: 'Civilization has taken an advance step and has done so with possibly less opposition than any of us imagined five years ago. The success of the amendment in America makes it practically certain that our example will be followed by the other nations of the world.'"

Other Expressions Are Cited.

Former President M. Carey Thomas of Bryn Mawr College has frequently declared for prohibition. She stated at the meeting of the Advisory Committee on Disarmament, of which she is a member, that the education of women, the enactment of prohibition and the securing of peace were the three great reforms of the present age.

"Dr. Ernest D. Burton, President of the University of Chicago, has said: 'The administrative officers of the University of Chicago regard the use of intoxicating liquor by students as physically, intellectually and morally dangerous and as contrary to the spirit of the law of the land. They, therefore, believe that it tends to defeat the purpose of education. The university will not tolerate the use of intoxicants by its students in territory subject to its government, and will exert its influence to discourage such use of them everywhere. In accordance with this policy, the university has dismissed one student and suspended two others.'

"President James Rowland Angell of Yale University has said to the student body, 'You cannot, under the Federal law, and you cannot under the university law, bring intoxicating liquors into any building of the university. Whatever you may think of the Eighteenth Amendment or the moderate bill of [illegible]'

WAR SEIZURE TEST INVOLVES MILLIONS

German Bankers Claim Ownership of Steel Corporation Stock Held in England.

$100,000,000 IS AT STAKE

Securities Taken by British Public Trustee as Custodian of Enemy Property.

Argument was heard yesterday by Federal Judge Learned Hand in a suit instituted by German bankers to prove their ownership of shares of stock of the United States Steel Corporation which had been deposited in English branches of the German companies, and had been seized by the British Public Trustee, as custodian of enemy property. The action is a test case and upon the decision, it was said, depends stocks and other securities worth a hundred million dollars or more.

The plaintiffs are the Direction der Disconto-Gesellschaft and the Bank fur Handel und Industrie. The defendants are the steel corporation and the British trustee. What the value of the stock immediately involved is did not appear, but it represents certificates of stock of the steel corporation and may amount to $7,000,000. The plaintiffs applied to the steel corporation to have the stock registered in their names, but the British authorities claimed the property. Then the plaintiffs threatened suit and counsel representing all the interests got together and prepared a summary of agreed facts and of the questions that the Court would be asked to decide. No matter what the outcome is in the lower courts it has already been agreed to carry the matter to the United States Supreme Court.

These are the questions involved:

Was the seizure of the endorsed certificates and their vesting in the Public Trustee in compliance with the British law, a valid transfer of the certificates with the consequent right in the trustee or his nominee upon such surrender of such certificates to the defendant company to receive new certificates as the registered owner of the stock?

Was the said seizure and vesting of the right, title and interest in the shares, whether valid or not, so ratified and confirmed by the Treaties of Berlin and Versailles as to entitle defendant Public Trustee to be so registered?

Can this Court entertain the suit, or is it barred by the provision of the Treaty of Berlin and the Treaty of Versailles that no claim may be brought by any German national in respect to any act done with regard to his property rights or interests during the war and under authority of any allied or associated power?

The law firm of Coudert Brothers represents the Public Trustee, and the argument was made by Frederick Coudert. Averell Brown represented the steel corporation and the law firm of Nipert & Brown, the plaintiffs. F. R. Coudert Jr., in explaining the suit, said:

"The form of the action is a bill in equity and is taken here as a test case, to register the former German owners, the complainants, as stockholders of record. The steel corporation, faced by conflicting demands, simply says to the Court, 'I have the stake, tell me what to do with it.' The action is really one to remove a cloud hanging over the ownership of the property."

The complainants name as co-defendants Egremont John Mills, Walter Clarke, Morris, Nathaniel, Julius and Donnell Shepard Post, trading as Marks, Bulteel, Mills & Co., and the English Association of American Bond and Shareholders, Ltd.; the London and Liverpool Bank of Commerce, Ltd.; Herbert Hopkins individually and as liquidator of the London and Liverpool Bank, and Violet Gertrude Fraser, executrix of the will of Thomas Fraser, all of whom have had some connection as owners or otherwise in the stock involved in the suit. Decision was reserved.

M'CRAY BEGINS TERM IN ATLANTA JAIL

Ex-Governor Expresses 'Sublime Confidence in My Integrity of Purpose.'

ATLANTA Ga., May 1.—Sympathy for the tornado victims in the South was expressed today by Warren T. McCray, former Governor of Indiana, just before he was committed to the Federal penitentiary here to serve a term of ten years for using the mails to defraud. "My heart goes out to those who lost their loved ones and their homes," he said.

Just before entering the prison McCray issued a statement saying:

"I am facing the decree of fate with courage and fortitude and sublime confidence in my individual integrity of purpose. Unfortunately, my personal fortune became involved through the agricultural depression of the past four years and from my inability to meet the overhead expenses from the proceeds of the 11,000 acres of my fertile land, which I own.

"In order to carry on, I was compelled to borrow large amounts, expecting and believing that the vastness of the property with restoration of farm values would enable me to meet in full every obligation made. I have never speculated unless the buying of this fertile farm and the breeding of my blooded cattle could be called speculation. My official acts have never been questioned.

"I will enter upon the new situation with courage and confidence fully conscious of my innocence of any intentional wrongdoing."

Robert Lambert, another prisoner being brought to the penitentiary by the same deputies, escaped from the train early today near Shelbyville, Tenn., by jumping through a washroom window. He was convicted of automobile theft. There were five prisoners in the party in addition to McCray.

FRONTERA NOW CUT OFF.

Navy Officer Reports Heavy Losses Due to Unofficial Blockade.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—A report from the commander of the cruiser Tulsa, received today by the Navy Department, said it was necessary in his judgment that a naval vessel be retained at the Mexican port of Frontera to care for American interests. The report said there were about 700 rebel troops in the vicinity of the city and that except for the calling at that port of banana steamers on schedule, it was cut off from the outside world.

"No great damage was suffered by American interests until recently when losses of over $20,000 were incurred due to an unofficial blockade," the paraphrase of the dispatch made public by the Navy Department said. "There exists no de facto blockade nor has any notice of formal blockade been issued."

$16,961 FOR OLYMPIC FUND.

This is Sum Realized in Garden Ring Bouts, Kirby Announces.

Gustavus T. Kirby, Chairman of the New York Committee of the American Olympic Committee, announced yesterday that $16,961 was the official share the Olympic Fund would receive from the set of professional boxing bouts in Madison Square Garden last Tuesday night. This sum, however, does not include the various individual contributions which were made during the course of the bouts. These, Mr. Kirby explained, are being listed separately in the final.

FIVE HEARINGS HELD BEFORE GOVERNOR

He Indicates He Will Veto Measure Rescinding Restrictions on Portable Movie Machines.

TEACHERS' PAY BILL ARGUED

Up-State Cities Oppose Putting Men and Women on Equality on Account of Cost.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 1.—More than five hours were consumed by the first of the hearings on thirty-day bills before Governor Smith this afternoon. The hearings will be continued tomorrow, Saturday and Monday, the Governor still having about 200 measures to dispose of before the thirty-day period expires at midnight of May 10.

Two of the more important of today's five hearings were on the bill which would rescind certain restrictions regarding the operation of portable motion picture projection machines and that designed to prohibit discrimination in the salary schedules of men and women school teachers. Chief T. J. Hayes of the New York City Bureau of Fire and Prevention; Deputy Chief C. H. Larkin; H. S. Wynkoop, chief electrical engineer of the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity; James P. Holland, President of the State Federation of Labor; N. Phillips Taylor, counsel for local 306, Motion Picture Machine Operators' Union of New York City, and Harry Mackler, President of local 306, opposed the projection machine measure.

Such a law, said Chief Hayes, would restrict his power over the use of portable projection machines, which he termed as dangerous and a fire hazard. He said he also voiced the objection of Fire Commissioner Drennan.

Eugene Chrystal, representing the Eastman Kodak Company of Rochester denied the bill would curtail the inspection powers or restrictive authority of the New York City Fire Department. Cortland Smith, secretary of the Motion Picture Film Corporation, and Dr. Ernest Crandall, director of visual instruction in the New York City schools, also spoke in its favor.

Governor Smith strongly intimated during the argument that he would veto the measure. Last year he vetoed a bill, almost identical with the present one, which he termed dangerous and a fire hazard.

William A. Walling, assistant corporation counsel of New York City, urged a veto.

Representatives of several up-State cities opposed the bill prohibiting sex discrimination in the salaries of school teachers. Two score women teachers were on hand to speak for it and urge the Governor to approve it. They maintained women should be placed on an equal footing with men in this respect and pointed to the fact that such a law was in effect in New York City.

Opponents of the measure asserted its enactment would cost every up-State city from $25,000 to $300,000 and would affect only women teachers in high schools.

John Decamp, Superintendent of Schools of Utica, told the Governor that approval of the bill would mean eliminating all male teachers in the high schools up-State. Cities would be unable to finance the increase which the teachers would receive and the only recourse would be to lower the salaries of men teachers to that now paid to women. This would force men teachers with families to enter some other employment.

Several New York City marshals appeared to urge the approval of the Reiburn bill which would increase their fees. Assistant Corporation Counsel Walling of New York said that while he was not opposed to the principle of the measure, he believed several errors had been made in drafting it.

LABOR AGAIN DEFIES BRITISH LIBERALS

Government Party Refuses to Endorse Proportional Representation Despite Liberal Ultimatum.

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 1.—While the Chancellor of the Exchequer was defying Conservative criticisms of his budget in the House of Commons tonight, the Labor Party outside Parliament showed its independence of Liberalism by refusing official support to the Liberal private bill proposing to establish proportional representation.

The Liberal caucus yesterday had practically decided to make Government adoption of the bill the price of continued Liberal support of the Administration, but Labor members tonight rather warmly refused to pay this price, and decided to leave the measure to a free vote of the House, which is believed to mean its defeat.

Thus the Liberal Party, which put Labor into office and does not at this moment wish to put it out, is again placed in a quandary.

Condemnation of the proposal to bring the McKenna duties to an end in August continues to gather volume, and it appears that during the three months for which the duties have been renewed the Government will be pressed to grant a public inquiry into the effect of their abolition. A determined effort will also be made in Parliament to obtain a renewal of the duties for a full period of twelve months. It is significant that there are three Labor members' amendments providing for a continuation of the duties until May, 1925.

During tonight's debate in the Commons the Chancellor of the Exchequer showed his confidence in the soundness and justice of his budget had not even shaken by criticism. He was ironical in his treatment of Conservative criticism, describing Sir Robert Horne as a modern Jim Crow and treating Sir William Johnson-Hicks with exaggerated courtesy. His reply was militant, and roused his followers to great enthusiasm.

He made two important announcements. The Government, he said, were going to introduce a bill for the removal of the thrift disqualification in the old age pensions, and hoped to be able to institute a scheme of widows' pensions, though this would cost £20,000,000.

LONDON, May 1 (Associated Press).—Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer, defending his budget tonight, said it was not true that he was hurting employment; in fact, he had put £30,000,000 into the hands of the people to stimulate trade.

He argued that it was not an electioneering budget and that the Government did not intend to have an election. Rather, he expected that this would be only the first of his budgets, and that he would be Chancellor next year when budget time rolled around.

MEETINGS HERE ARE QUIET.

Wall Street Guarded by Detectives, but No Disorder Occurs.

May Day meetings under the auspices of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, the United Hebrew Trades, the Workers' Party and other organizations were held in various parts of the city yesterday. The day passed without any disturbances. The meetings were held in halls and public squares and were addressed by speakers who explained the significance of "labor's international holidays."

Wall Street was under a double guard of detectives and plainclothes men. There were no arrests.

BRONZE or COPPER SCREENING

Your Protection Against Rust

You buy screening for just one purpose—to keep out the disease-spreading fly and the obnoxious mosquito.

Copper or Bronze screening is the only certain means to that end.

Everybody knows that steel-wire screening rusts into holes after one or two seasons. Insects find the smallest rust hole.

Bronze and Copper simply cannot rust. They are the logical metals for screening.

Bronze or Copper screens cost as little as one-fourth more than galvanized wire screens.

Copper or Bronze screens never have to be painted. Leave them up all year if you like. Weather has no effect upon them. Or put them up each spring, without the fuss and bother of painting and patching.

Copper and Bronze are cheaper because you pay for them only ONCE.

PEASANT OPPOSITION HAMPERS SOVIETISM

Russian Extremists Make Little Headway in Applying Their Economic Policy.

PEASANT AN INDIVIDUALIST

Observers Foresee the Day When He May Be Able to Dictate and Abolish Communism.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, May 1.—The Communist Party's determination to prevent the extension of private capitalism beyond the limits laid down by Lenin is being translated into action that materially affects the internal situation.

There has been a lot of talk here and abroad about the arrests of Russian "Nepmen," and the difficulties met by foreign business men. As usual, there is a deal of exaggeration in these stories. It is true that many apparently prosperous citizens have been expelled from the capital in the past two months, but investigation shows that, with extremely rare exceptions, the said citizens were either frankly parasites, gambl ers bootleggers and worse, or middlemen and agents of Government trusts who had made illicit profits but could not be convicted of definite crimes. In the case of foreigners one generally finds that either the aggrieved firms were not really reputable, were trying to obtain advantages not specified in their agreements, or that their agents here acted in a tactless or unscrupulous manner.

On the other hand, the past year's experience of profits made by private capital and losses sustained by State enterprises makes the Russian Communist Party just about as friendly and tender toward the said capital as some of her late foes would be toward a re-enriched and resuscitated Germany. But Communist Party action against capital is taking a more practical form, in the shape of a wide extension of cooperative and State-owned stores. Several hundreds have been opened in Moscow in the last two months whose competition at a more favorable rate of taxation has forced many private dealers out of business.

Meanwhile the Supreme Economic Council is carrying on a hard and hitherto not overly successful struggle with the labor federations to reduce the costs of State factories by cutting down the personnel. In agriculture, the struggle against capitalism takes the form of protection for the poor peasants against their richer brethren—Kulaks, as the Russians call them—who exploit them. Land books and credits through cooperative bodies are trying to free the poorer peasant from the yoke of the Kulak. Here also the success of the Communist Party effort is doubtful. A recent article in the Pravda, discussing the program of the next months by the party congress, admits that the Kulak perhaps is the strongest of all foes of the projected Russian Socialist State. The hundred million Russian peasants are individualists. The poor may groan under exploitation by their richer fellows, but they dream only of the moment when they themselves will become rich and exploit others. Here is the reef that may wreck the Communist Party program.

If Russia maintains an intensely nationalist and protectionist policy, to which it seems at present committed, the peasants, who are the largest element in the population to reach by Communist ideas, need only four or five years of good harvests to become a force that will enable them to insist on cheap manufactured goods.

Despite their defeat in the recent party controversy, events may show that Trotsky and Krassin were right in believing it wiser to loosen up State monopolist control now, to satisfy the peasants, rather than risk the possibility that they will impose sweeping changes a few years hence. The party as a whole decided otherwise, doubtless with good reason, but to a dispassionate observer it seems that it is a question whether State socialism will be able to meet the needs of the peasants in a shorter time than the peasants require to be able to impose demands that involve a much greater freedom of private enterprise.

RADIO TAX PLAN DENOUNCED

Emergency Committee Chairman Hopes Public Will Defeat It.

A meeting was held yesterday by the Emergency Radio Tax Committee at the Lawyers' Club, 115 Broadway. The proposal in the United States Senate to impose a 10 per cent. tax on radio equipment was discussed.

"I do not believe the public will permit it to be adopted," said William H. Davis, chairman of the meeting. "Anyone who is in touch with public sentiment cannot but know the widespread resentment the proposed tax has aroused. And when I say this I am not talking for any one group but for almost every one in the industry."

Mr. Davis said the tax proposal, which has not yet been adopted, would be fought by the radio industry.

HETRICK EXONERATED ON DINNER CHARGE

Grand Jury Finds Story of a Lewd Gathering Was Slanderous and Malicious.

FREEHOLD, N. J. May 1.—Mayor Clarence E. T. Hetrick and several Asbury Park business men, charged with attending a dinner at Deal Inn some weeks ago at which immoral dances were exhibited and excessive liquor served, were exonerated today when the Monmouth County Grand Jury characterized the publishing of the stories as "slanderous and malicious."

The Grand Jury, concluding its investigation, said in a special presentment that the dinner was a "harmless celebration." The document follows:

"We deplore the fact that bigotry and hatred has been engendered, that the fair name of Asbury Park has been irreparably damaged, and that from sources from which the public should expect Christian-like conduct, there has emanated misrepresentation and slanderous aspersions in attempts to blast the reputations of men in public and private life.

"We deem it our duty to call to the attention of the people of Asbury Park that it is their duty to uphold decent government and not allow fanatics to destroy public-spirited citizens in their efforts to upbuild a law-abiding community.

"We especially exonerate Mayor Hetrick and declare that his actions in this matter have been found to be those of a Christian gentleman."

The Grand Jury inquiry followed the making public of charges contained in an affidavit signed by Walter C. Tindall, an Asbury Park printer, after it had come into the hands of the Civic Church League. Announcement was made a short time later that the Ku Klux Klan had joined hands with the league in an effort to clean up alleged vice conditions at the resort.

C. T. DAVIS SEEKS RELEASE.

Witnesses Testify He Is Rid of Mania He Had in 1921.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 1.—Charles T. Davis, Brooklyn medical supply manufacturer, is rid of the irrational condition he is alleged to have been under when he shot a policeman Feb. 17, 1921, witnesses testified before Justice Joseph Morschauser today in Davis's habeas corpus proceedings to obtain his release from Matteawan Hospital.

B. F. Hirsch, who saw the policeman shot down by Davis without explanation; Fred Nutlinger, business friend of Davis, and Davis's wife testified. Nutlinger said Davis is now able to transact business and is free from any of the eccentricity which characterized his results from 1921 to 1922 for protection by firearms of home and factory from sabotage which he continually feared.

Expert alienists will take the stand tomorrow.

MEDICINE ACADEMY MEETS.

Receives Gifts of Portraits of Two Physicians.

An oil painting and a marble bust of the late Dr. Arpad G. Gerster was presented last night to the Academy of Medicine by Dr. George E. Brewer. An oil portrait of Dr. Walter B. James was also presented to the academy by Dr. Charles L. Dana. Arthur B. Duel was elected to fill the unfinished term of L. Emmett Holt as trustee at the meeting held after the presentations.

A paper on alterations in the acid base structure of the blood plasma, producing acidosis was read by Dr. James L. Gamble of Boston, and the subject was discussed by Dr. Walter W. Palmer, Dr. Oscar M. Schloss and Dr. Alfred T. Sholl.

SARA L. RHODES ELECTED

President of the Council of Women in Education.

The New York City Branch of the National Council of Administrative Women in Education held its annual dinner at the Women's University Club last night. Miss Annie W. Goodrich, Dean of the School of Nursing of Yale University, addressed the members.

Sara L. Rhodes was elected President. The Vice Presidents elected were Mary M. Conway, Anna E. Harvey, Elizabeth M. Braine, Rebecca J. Coffin, Helen L. Cohen, Mary A. Curtis and Catherine I. Tillman. Anna Griffin was chosen Secretary and Susanne Q. Cumming Treasurer.

Guilty of Beating Convict.

PHILADELPHIA, May 1.—Charles Santee, Deputy Warden of the Eastern State Penitentiary, was today convicted of beating James Fraley, a convict, last November. The jury was out only ten minutes. Sentence was deferred pending a motion for a new trial. Fraley declared Santee had beaten him for fifteen minutes with a rubber hose and kicked him in the stomach when he refused to reveal details of a jail-break in which several convicts escaped.

vestigation. The basis of the case is an involved transaction and the net result, it would appear, was that none profited directly, though the evidence given before the Grand Jury, it is understood, goes to show that Mayor Reynolds, by the manner in which the transactions were handled, avoided the necessity of meeting a personal guarantee he had given Dollard & Rosoff, contractors.

These contractors undertook work at Reynolds's suggestion, it is alleged, involving more than $200,000 of paving and sewer construction. Then Reynolds, according to the evidence before the Grand Jury, induced them to take over an issue of $494,000 of special assessment bonds and dispose of them, guaranteeing, so they say, that they would not sustain a loss. Ostensibly at least, the contractors sold the bonds to Watkins & Co., receiving a price of 98 and thereby incurring an apparent loss of $4 on each bond, or $19,360 on the whole issue. They say that with this loss apparent they went to Reynolds.

The charge is that Gracy, at the direction of Reynolds, who was his superior in the city Government, drew a number of checks on different dates, to the order of Dollard and Rosoff to make up this deficiency; that the checks were drawn on the funds of Long Beach and that no vouchers are to be found for the payments. On the books, the evidence is, the payments appear to have been made for work done.

Inquiry Turns Toward Engineer.

In this connection Mr. Spence said he had been informed that a certificate had been made out by the city engineer certifying that Dollard and Rosoff had done work for the payments made. He added that he had started an investigation to learn whether this was so and indicated that if such certificates had been issued they were false certificates, as the contractors admitted they had done no work for the payments mentioned.

The dates and amounts mentioned in the indictments were: On Dec. 2, 1922, $2,440; on Oct. 2, 1922, $4,840, and on Nov. 2, 1922, $1,000. It is understood that payments for the balance of the $19,360 were made and that the evidence concerning them was available but that Mr. Spence believed it better not to charge up the whole transaction in the indictments that were brought in, feeling confident that the three payments were sufficient to serve his purpose.

It is also understood that in fact the contractors did not really handle the bonds at all, but were, in effect, dummies in the transactions, merely making an exchange of checks. Gracy is said to have turned over the bonds to Watkins & Co. That firm's check would be made out to the contractors. With that check and one Gracy is alleged to have drawn, the contractors would have checks for the full amount of the bonds at par, in each instance. Then they drew their check, and that went into the Long Beach treasury as payment for the bonds. In fact on the contractors' check books the payments for the bonds appear as "exchange."

Both Contractors Are Witnesses.

The chief result from this roundabout way of doing things would seem to be the sale of the bonds at a price of $96 instead of $100 each; the disposal of the whole issue so that the city might be able to carry on the improvement of property, in which, the evidence is, Reynolds was personally interested, and the making up of the deficit out of the city treasury.

Both Dollard and Rosoff appeared as witnesses before the Grand Jury. They are believed to have told all they knew of the transactions and it is probable they will be the chief witnesses against Reynolds and Gracy. Other witnesses were Rose Rosoff, a niece; John H. Watkins, head of the firm of Watkins & Co., which bought the bonds; Rudolph H. Weber, connected with Watkins & Co.; Francis R. King Jr., treasurer of Watkins & Co.; Ernest J. L'Allemand, City Clerk of Long Beach; Harold H. Lyons, City Auditor of Long Beach, and Frederick M. Hart, accountant from the State Controller's office. The City Engineer of Long Beach, George S. Vanderwenker, was not called as a witness.

Reynolds appeared as a witness last Monday and was on the stand for some hours. He signed a waiver of immunity. He was called again for Wednesday, but when asked to sign a new waiver by Mr. Spence declined to do so until he had talked the matter over with his lawyer. Mr. Spence was asked last evening whether Mr. Reynolds, when on the stand, had been questioned about the Dollard & Rosoff matter and answered: "I don't care to discus that."

Spence Ready for Trial in June.

Justice Cropsey went to Mineola early in the day to receive the indictments and the plea. Reynolds came into court with his attorney, Peter P. Smith of Brooklyn; another lawyer, Roy Palmer, and his secretary, J. Bruce Robertson. Gracy came in about the same time. Bail was fixed at $2,500 for each of the defendants and a week's time granted Mr. Smith in which to make the customary motions. It is expected he will ask the privilege of inspecting the Grand Jury minutes. Mr. Spence announced to the court that he would be ready to go to trial very soon, possibly early in June, and that the case might be disposed of in three or four weeks.

Because Frederick K. Ames, an expert most familiar with the Long Beach Bridge matter, is in a hospital in Albany with a broken leg, the presentation of this particular matter to the Grand Jury may be somewhat delayed. Timothy N. Pfeiffer of Mr. Spence's staff is paying special attention to this matter. Francis R. Cullen, a Deputy Attorney General, joined the staff yesterday and will for the time being be assigned to grand jury duties.

She Is Opening Up Her Secrets

Nature is very busy these days revealing her beauties in the trees and gardens.

The birds are on the wing, flitting and flirting in choosing leafy habitations; happy little house builders they are.

The woods and country ways inspire the artistic spirit in us all. It is a touch and go of freshness, color and gracefulness that we feel.

The closer we unite with nature the simpler and lovelier one may be.

The closer the artist imitates nature in his sketching, the more is his work valued.

AU QUATRIEME

English Oak for the Country Home

Au Quatrieme has just received from London, English country made chairs of oak with rush seats, which are very reasonably priced at—$40 for the side chairs and $65 for the arm chairs. These are excellent chairs for the country house that has an English dining room, and they are also very practical and comfortable verandah chairs.

Another type of oak chair that is much in demand at present is the English wheel back Windsor. This is a chair that is especially suited to a man's room, and is also a good chair for a desk or writing table; $60.

Other Oak Pieces

The present demand for English oak makes it somewhat difficult to assemble all the pieces that are needed for a room. Au Quatrieme has a large collection of oak furniture, which can be supplemented by the fine reproduction of pieces of Belmaison. By choosing from these two collections it would be easy to find the right pieces for an entire house in the Early English styles.

Oak chests, from $65 to $250.
Four-panel Jacobean oak screen, $175.
Oak benches, $100 to $200 ea.
Oak dresser, $600.

The Wife of Major Harold E. Kelsey Is Declared to Be a Legal Heir.

PARENTS WERE DESTITUTE

Blood Relatives of George H. Watson Fail in Effort to Get Her Share of Trust Fund.

A decision handed down yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Davis awards $225,000 to Mrs. Helen Marcellite Kelsey, who was a poorly dressed barefooted child when she was adopted by George H. Watson and his wife in 1890. Mrs. Kelsey, who is now the wife of Major Harold E. Kelsey, United States Maring Corps, won this sum in a legal contest with the heirs at law of Mr. Watson, who died at Groton, Conn., on Oct. 28, 1921.

The suit was brought by William Harlem as executor under the will of Mr. Watson, against the United States Trust Company, as executor under the will of his first wife, Mrs. Anna J. Watson, who died in 1878, for an accounting of his acts as trustee under her will, and to determine what should be done with half the principal of a trust fund left to Mr. Watson for life by his wife, with directions that upon his death it should go to his legal heirs. The question before Justice Davis was whether an adopted child was a legal heir.

The facts of the dispute stated in Justice Davis's opinion are that Mr. Watson married again sometime after the death of his first wife, and when he died his only blood relatives were two sisters, three nephews and two nieces. They contended that the provisions of the will of the first Mrs. Watson in referring to legal heirs meant blood relatives and did not include the adopted child.

Justice Davis states that in September, 1899, Mr. Watson and his second wife, Mary Augusta Watson, made an agreement with William G. Woodbury and his wife, Rohina M. Woodbury, of Providence, to adopt their child Helen, who was then 3 years old. Mrs. Watson's attention had been drawn to Helen Woodbury by an elderly Scotch woman engaged in charitable work, when the Watsons were considering the adoption of a child because several of their friends had done so. When they saw Helen Woodbury, the testimony showed, "she was barefooted, was very poorly dressed, but was a pretty child." They notified the parents that they would consider adopting the child and in the meantime, Mrs. Watson provided clothing and shoes for the little girl.

Mrs. Watson testified that the home of the Woodburys was shabby and dilapidated and that they appeared to be in want, the father being then ill of a disease from which he died shortly afterward. Mrs. Watson testified that when she told the father that she and her husband would take the little girl for the Summer, he "cried and said he hoped they would eventually adopt her, because he did not think he could provide for her and she would have to be put in a home if she were not adopted." The legal adoption was executed in the Probate Court at Groton, Conn., in September of that year.

The chief contention of the blood relatives of Mr. Watson in attempting to take the $225,000 share of the trust fund established by the first Mrs. Watson was that the parents of the child were living in Rhode Island and the Watsons were residents of Connecticut and that the adoption did not become legal for that reason. Justice Davis ruled that the place of domicile of the child was not involved in the validity of her adoption.

JUDGE KNOX GRANTS PHONE RATE RISE

1922, 3.45 per cent., and from March 1, 1923 to Feb. 29, 1924, 3.39 per cent.

Says Valuation Is Too Low.

The company alleged that the rate base fixed by the Public Service Commission was at least $150,000,000 lower than the fair and reasonable value of the property on Jan. 1, 1923. The commission, on Jan. 25, 1923, said that the entire value of the property in the State was $246,152,491, and on that basis allowed the company a 7 per cent. return. Another claim made by the company was that it had added to its property during 1923 upward of $10,000,000. The complaint alleged that the fair amount which it is entitled to earn under rates imposed upon it is in an amount equal to not less than 8 per cent. on a fair and reasonable value of the property used in the telephone service.

The allowed rates, the company stated, have yielded less in the State than the 8 per cent. by the following amounts: 1919, $13,448,334; 1920, $21,721,211; 1921, $17,690,180; 1922, $18,290,139; 1923, $20,204,351, and to Feb. 29, 1924, $20,776,248.

M. H. Winkler Analyzes Figures.

Figures prepared by M. H. Winkler, who has made a study of the telephone situation, were presented in a statement which reads in part:

"Exchange service revenues in the City of New York, exclusive of toll service and miscellaneous revenues, during 1922 was $55,781,248 and during the year 1923 these local exchange service revenues amounted to $65,493,580, and at the present rates it is estimated these local exchange revenues during 1924 will amount to $72,886,100."

Mr. Winkler calls attention to the statement in the complaint of the company to the effect that if the orders of the Public Service Commission fixing rates are enforced the financial result will be that the company will be prevented from earning any return in excess of 2.33 per cent. upon the cost of its telephone property in the State and from earning any return in excess of 1.96 per cent. upon the fair and reasonable value of the property. Then Mr. Winkler said:

"The net profits of the company during 1922, in its entire territory, after all charges as disclosed in its annual report for 1922, made public May 10, 1922, were $16,960,882, equal to $8.27 per share on its entire outstanding capital stock of $204,692,000 and not 2.56 per cent. per annum on the cost of its property or 1.96 per cent. upon the fair and reasonable value of its property in the State of New York, as estimated when applying to the court for an injunction, in March, 1922, the equivalent of less than $6,500,000.

"More than 80 per cent. of the property of the company is situated within the city and State of New York, and more than 80 per cent. of its total revenue is derived from operation in the city and State of New York."

Wanted 14.6 Per Cent. Rise.

Among the papers prepared for submission to the Court was an affidavit to the effect that the company would need an increase of 14.6 per cent. in rates to enable it to earn 7 per cent. on the company's investment in this city, or an increase of 11 per cent if it was extended throughout the State. The increase in rates was confined to this city because the company is making more than 7 per cent. elsewhere in the State.

Judge Knox reserved decision on an application of the city to be joined with [illegible]

Hats that finish the smartest spring costumes are invariably small or medium in size. They are not so strictly simple as last year. You will notice many new hats from Paris with their most striking feature a bow or tassel drooping down just slightly to one side of the front. This is a particularly good style if the hats are made of some silk fabric, taffeta, crepe de Chine or faille silk. Lord & Taylor is showing a collection of these small hats for town wear in navy blue and black. $18.50 to $28.50

FOURTH FLOOR

Woman's Gown $59.50

A Copy of a Drecoll Model

A tailored silk gown for street wear. It is a slim very wearable style with its long revere of white, and drapes on one side of the skirt and wide cuffs faced to match. It combines straight slim lines and a circular effect in a way Paris is fond of doing. Navy blue or black. Sketched left. Other gowns of Georgette crepe or crepe de Chine, $35 to $85

Women's Coats

Trimmed with Summer Furs

The new coats that are coming in each day are so very smart in line and so varied in detail that it is hard to follow each new addition to the mode. We are showing here one of the many new coats, sketched right, with an especially becoming collar and long Tuxedo effect, all edged with summer fur. Black, navy blue, tan and green, $79.50. Charmeen, twill and silk coats, $39.50 to $79.50

Women's Ensemble Costumes

For Semi-Dress Wear

Silk is the favorite fabric for suits as warm weather swings in. Flat crepe, satin, faille and moire are the fabrics favored in two and three piece suits. There are styles made with long coats that may be worn as separate coats and others with the more tailored short coats. Skirts are often on a silk bodice that makes it possible to have several changes of costumes with colored over-blouse. Black, brown, navy are the favorite colors, but there are a few of Lanvin green. $95 to $125

Tailored Over-Blouse

With Boyish Collar, $9.75

The blouse to wear with your tailored suit this spring is one of radium silk such as that sketched, made with a youthful collar and worn with a tie. It is found in white only.

At $19.50—100 invitations, hand engraved in English Script on Crane's finest stock, allowing 10 lines. Complete with inside and outside envelopes.

At $16.50—100 announcements, hand engraved on Crane's finest stock in English script, allowing 7 lines. Complete with inside and outside envelopes.

GROUND FLOOR

Service in Our Cold Storage Vaults

The service given your furs in our fur storage vaults during the summer months are of four kinds.

Protection from moths, fire and theft is the first service offered.

Preservation, which means the preserving of the gloss and lustre natural to the fur, and which can be assured only in the cold, dry atmosphere of cold storage vaults. This is the second service.

Cleaning is the third service. When your furs are received, they are cleaned by expert workmen by the compressed air process, which is more hygienic and successful than any other method.

Repairing and remodeling, either of which your furs may need, are both done, when authorized, by those specially trained in handling furs.

We advise taking advantage of the saving in price that may be secured during the summer months. Estimates will be given on request.

Send a postcard or telephone FitzRoy 1900. Your furs will be called for within the radius of our motor delivery.

The Lortay

$11.75 and $12.75

beg that when other petitions for help in local charities begin to sound in campaigns and correspondence, the small but never still voice of their work may have brought them the full sum for the building of their large fireproof hospital-home in the country, such as the public gave them in 1913 in New York (St. Rose's Free Home, 71 Jackson St.), always holding 85 or 90 cancer cases without pay. We desire the same capacity. We have begged for $200,000.00, without change to a smaller figure, because we have spent $70,000.00 of our $130,000.00 accumulated for a house to assist the main home, with electric laundry, great well, electric plant, and two very large wards, and all the furnishings, much of which will be removed to the main home when it exists. All legacies given to us have to be used for the running expenses of the work. CITY'S BALD WOMEN INTERRUPT A TRIAL

Spectator Laughs When Court Says If There Were 10,000 It Would Not Affect Case.

SHE IS PROMPTLY EJECTED

Jury Decides Against Plaintiff Who Sued Hairdressers for $25,000.

The question of the number of bald-headed women who are in New York City and who are disguising their handicap to beauty by wearing transformations broke up the solemnity and dignity of Justice Stephen Callaghan's session of the Queens Supreme Court yesterday and resulted in the ejection from the courtroom at the orders of Justice Callaghan of Mrs. Maud Thomas, wife of the head of the Thomas Drug and Medicine Corporation of Thomasville, Ga.

The incident happened at the trial of the action of Laura Brown of Mount Vernon, N. Y., against the Ogilvie Sisters, hairdressers of 565 Fifth Avenue, in which Mrs. Brown sought to recover $25,000 damages on the ground that a certain treatment that she received at the Fifth Avenue establishment had turned her hair pink.

"There are more than 1,000 women in New York City today appearing in transformations and wigs," said William Schaefer in summing up to the jury on behalf of the Ogilvie sisters. "They have not sued their hairdressers because of their lack of hair."

"It has nothing to do with this case if there are 10,000 bald headed women in New York City," interrupted Justice Callaghan.

At this remark of Justice Callaghan there was a burst of laughter and Mrs. Thomas, who was sitting just inside the rail of the lobby, laughed aloud. Justice Callaghan was greatly surprised and demanded to know what woman had laughed out loud.

"I did," replied Mrs. Thomas, "but I was hysterical."

Justice Callaghan directed that Mrs. Thomas be immediately escorted from the courtroom by a court attendant, and his orders were obeyed.

Outside the courtroom Mrs. Thomas said that she was in the courtroom because she has a claim for $25,000 against the Ogilvie Sisters for an alleged injury to her hair causing it to turn yellow. The Ogilvie Sisters have denied the allegations of Mrs. Thomas.

The jury in the case of Mrs. Brown returned a verdict in favor of the hairdressers.

BRING YOUR WIFE ALONG

We Welcome Her Judgment and You Need It!

TO begin with, a woman is a far better judge than a man of the value of clothes considered solely from the viewpoint of merchandise. ¶Fabrics are second nature to her, and as she is usually more or less proficient in needlework herself, she is quite competent to pass on ours. ¶But her usefulness does not end there. From our own personal observation, a wife's judgment is much safer than her husband's in knowing what becomes him. ¶It means we have to sell two people instead of one. But that is simply a double test of our clothes and we would just as soon have you make it as not.

Our "dry soft" golf shoe has the added advantage of a non-skid cord sole—same idea as cord tire—steady when the going's slippery, and long on wear.

Low, $10.50; high, $11.50.

Another comfortable golf shoe is our oxford of imported Scottish grain. Equipped with crepe rubber sole—a two-layer proposition. Layer No. 1 is stitched fast to the welt. Layer No. 2 is vulcanized fast to No. 1, thus covering the stitching and insuring long life to the sole. Lighter than leather, more flexible, very durable—$12.50—O. K. for street wear, too.

The same crepe sole on our "dry soft" leather, instead of imported Scottish grain—$11.

HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS

ECKER CHOSEN HEAD OF STATE CHAMBER

One-Time $4-a-Week Messenger Boy Now President of Big Commerce Organization.

$3,000 GIFT FOR SECRETARY

Charles T. Gwynne Gets Three Months' Leave and Promotion—Many New Officers Elected.

Frederick H. Ecker, Vice President of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, and once a messenger boy for that company at $4 a week, was elected President of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York at its 156th annual election of officers. With him was elected almost an entirely new set of officers as provided for in the amended by-laws. With the exception of the committee on arbitration, of which Charles L. Bernheimer is Chairman, new presiding officers were elected for all standing committees.

Charles T. Gwynne, Secretary, who has been connected with the chamber for the past thirty years, was promoted to Executive Vice President, and in appreciation of his services he got $3,000, with three months' leave of absence for a trip to Europe.

In making the nominations for the new officers, Darwin P. Kingsley, Chairman of the nominating committee, stated that it was "desired to recognize the service of Irving T. Bush, the retiring President, and to express the Chamber's appreciation."

"During his presidency," Mr. Kingsley said, "he has been active, both at home and abroad, along lines which have made the chamber better known and better understood. He has especially striven to extend our contacts with the commercial organizations throughout this State and in other States. He has never hesitated to make any sacrifice of his personal time or interest if by making that sacrifice he could serve the chamber. As our presiding officer he has been efficient and courteous. We assume that he will hereafter respond to whatever reasonable demands the chamber may make on him for further service."

Charles L. Bernheimer, Chairman of the Committee on Arbitration, in his report urged the adoption of a Federal arbitration law along the lines of that now in vogue in New York State. It also became known at the meeting that Mr. Bernheimer and other business men are underwriting an endowment fund of $350,000, which on the death of Mr. Bernheimer will provide money to carry on this branch of the chamber's work.

The chamber went on record as opposing the application of Section 28 of the Jones act "at this time" as injurious to American trade, and passed a resolution objecting to the labeling of "virgin wool" as provided for in bills now before Congress.

Other officers elected follow:

Vice Presidents; to serve until May, 1925—Eugenius H. Outerbridge, Elbert H. Gary, Welding Ring; to serve until May, 1926—Alfred E. Marling, Arthur Curtiss James, Leonor F. Loree; to serve until May, 1927—Darwin P. Kingsley, J. Pierpont Morgan, Jesse Isidor Straus; to serve until May, 1928—Irving T. Bush, John D. Rockefeller Jr., George B. Cortelyou.

Treasurer—William H. Porter.

Secretary—Jere D. Tamblyn.

Executive Committee—William L. DeBost, Chairman; William McCarroll, 1 year; Delos W. Cooke, 2 years; John B. Trevor, 3 years.

HEARS HUGHES MAY RESIGN.

Tokio Hospital Director Is Also Told Japanese Bill Will Be Vetoed.

Dr. Rudolph B. Teusler, Director of St. Luke's Hospital in Tokio, Japan, for twenty-three years, told a large audience at the Town Hall last night that he had learned from good authority in Washington that Secretary Hughes contemplated resigning if President Coolidge signed the pending immigration bill, including the Japanese exclusions clause.

Dr. Teusler read the following cablegram from a friend in Tokio: "Japanese exclusion act very detrimental to American interests in Japan. We cannot too strongly urge the necessity of requesting the President of the United States to veto the pending immigration bill." He said that he had brought the cablegram to the attention of some friends in Washington, and they had told him that President Coolidge would probably veto the bill, and that if he did not Secretary Hughes was seriously considering offering his resignation.

"The larger part of Japan's foreign trade, both imports and exports is with the United States" said Dr. Teusler," and if there is not an open boycott, at least we stand to lose their good will and they will favor the products of other nations whenever possible. This act destroys the diplomatic work of two decades in building up good relationship."

Dr. Teusler was the last of three speakers to discuss the question, the preceding two being Herbert G. Houston, editor of Our World, and Professor Henry Pratt Fairchild of New York University.

Professor Fairchild approved the bill on the ground that "white citizenship" must be the basis of our immigration policy.

Mr. Houston, the publisher of Our World, complimented Japan upon her rapid social progress and added, "Such a country deserves to be treated by America with fairness and justice."

Homicide Case Due to Collision Dismissed by Magistrate.

William Deitz, 407 East Twenty-second Street, Manhattan, motorman of an Interborough train on the Corona elevated line, that crashed into a Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit train at the Rawson Street station, Long Island City, during a snowstorm on April 1 last, was discharged yesterday on a technical charge of homicide, in the Long Island City Magistrate's Court, as the Queens Grand Jury on Wednesday failed to indict, handing up a presentment suggesting improvements by the companies.

Fireman John P. Quinn of Whitestone, died from injuries received in the accident. Deitz, who was seriously injured, was able to leave St. John's Hospital for the first time yesterday.

SUGARMAN GUILTY OF STOCK LARCENY

To Be Sentenced Today for Using $4,600 Proceeds of a Customer's Securities.

CLEMENCY FOR W. A. FOSTER

He Escapes With Two to Four Months Because He Is the First Convicted of "Rigging."

Joseph D. Sugarman, head of the defunct brokerage firm of J. D. Sugarman & Co., was convicted yesterday in General Sessions of hypothecating customers' securities. William Asa Foster, another broker, was sentenced in the same court to from two to four months in the penitentiary for "rigging" the market in transactions in stock of the North American Oil Company. In Foster's case Judge Charles C. Knott Jr. issued a certificate of reasonable doubt and Foster was released in $5,000 bail pending an appeal.

Sugarman, who is liable to a sentence of two years in Sing Sing and a fine of $5,000, was convicted of appropriating $4,600, which he got on a customer's collateral. He will be arraigned for sentence this morning. The Court intimated that he would release Sugarman, too, on bail on a certificate of reasonable doubt if he wishes to appeal.

Alexander T. Hussey, counsel for Foster, called Judge Nott's attention to the jury's recommendation for clemency when his client was arraigned for sentence and added that an erroneous identification of the defendant as William Abbott FoFster, who was sent to the workhouse in 1906 on a vagrancy charge, after he had sent begging letters to wealthy men, probably had prejudiced the jury.

"In this case I shall proceed on the assumption that this man is not William Abbott Foster," replied the Court. "After hearing all the evidence I am satisfied, and I think the jury is satisfied, that the defendant is not the man."

The court then took issue with the lawyer's contention that Foster's crime did not involve moral turpitude, and added: "It is impossible for the court not to recognize that this is the first conviction under the statute, although there doubtless have been many violations of it both on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange and other exchanges. The defendant is the first to be convicted, and in that he is unfortunate. I must also recognize that he was acting as the agent for others, who were to profit more than he.

"Now this defendant hardly is in position to demand extreme clemency in the same way as the man who pleads guilty and saves the time and cost of the court. I am going to be lenient, however. I shall serve notice on others that it must be distinctly understood that I am setting no precedent in that respect. Others who come before me on similar convictions will receive punishment very much more substantial."

Brassieres that flatten the diaphragm to the slim and youthful lines of fashion

1.50	2.00
2.50	3.00
3.50	5.00

Criss-Cross is a beautiful undergarment cleverly contrived to hold the lower part of the figure firm and to eliminate any unattractive lines. It diminishes the diaphragm and thereby achieves a marvelously slender, girlish effect.

Rachmaninoff, Stokowski and the Philadelphia Orchestra!

Genius, art and craftsmanship have again combined to produce Victor Records which must rank as a noteworthy achievement in the history of music.

Rachmaninoff at the piano plays his own composition accompanied by the Philadelphia Orchestra under the direction of Stokowski, and Victor recording has made imperishable this masterpiece of living genius. The piano, at Rachmaninoff's touch, sings as it has never sung through any reproducing instrument—in the rare moments which are unaccompanied or against the full flood of Stokowski's faultless orchestra. We offer these records to the public with a satisfaction which will be shared by every lover of great music and as evidence of what the Victrola alone can give you.

Sacred Selections

Yield Not to Temptation / Bringing in the Sheaves	Edgar Kiefer Trinity Mixed Quartet	19279	.75

Gospel hymns, one for a single voice with orchestra, the other for a quartet of mixed voices. Records with all the swing and vigor of the "old-time religion" in every note.

Vocal Selections

(1) Long Ago, Sweetheart Mine (2) A Maid Sings Light (MacDowell) / (1) The Swan Bent Low (2) The Sea (MacDowell)	Olive Kline Royal Dadmun	45393	1.00

Four songs of the lamented Edward MacDowell, issued primarily for educational purposes, but so beautiful in themselves that every one will enjoy these records.

What'll I Do? / She's Everybody's Sweetheart	Marcia Frear-Henry Burr Henry Burr	19301	.75

"What'll I Do?" is for contralto and tenor—a somewhat unusual combination. "She's Everybody's Sweetheart" is a ballad, half-pathetic, half-humorous. Together they make a splendid record of tuneful popular music.

Dance Records

Hula Hula Dream Girl—Waltz / Sad Hawaiian Sea—Waltz	Hilo-Hawaiian Orchestra	19302	.75

Two waltzes in "Hawaiian" style, with an orchestra featuring steel Hawaiian guitars, against a background of piano, flute and violins. The familiar wail of Hawaiian string music is continually in evidence in these two records.

Memory Lane—Waltz with vocal refrain / Down Home Blues—Fox Trot	Waring's Pennsylvanians	19303	.75

Waring's Pennsylvanians in their public appearances are scoring a tremendous success—and so will these new records by this organization.

From One Till Two—Fox Trot with vocal refrain / In a Charleston Cabin (Song Melancholy)—Fox Trot	Kaufman's Original Pennsylvania Serenaders Kaufman's Original Pennsylvania Serenaders	19304	.75

You'll be glad to hear these musicians again. They play two fox trots which are all fire and ginger, with some startling piano-work and new wind combinations.

Comfortably Well Dressed

You do not have to be uncomfortable to look well in our new spring styles. A certain careless, easy grace, making a convention of unconventionality, has come from London to make the work of tailors more difficult and the clothes of their customers more comfortable.

For make no mistake, these new designs require the most exacting skill in tailoring. In cheap clothes they look merely slovenly.

To slip on one of our new spring suits is a revelation of what courage in designing plus care in execution can do to make really becoming clothes comfortable.

SAY OLD EMPLOYES TOOK $500,000 FURS

ALLIANCE EXPOSED THEFTS

Investigators Found That One of the Suspects Was Living Far Beyond His Means.

Characterizing the case as "the most extraordinary in the history of the fur trade," John C. Stott, manager of the Furriers' Security Alliance of the United States, yesterday revealed how the firm of M. Cohen & Brothers, 31 West Twenty-seventh Street, which does an annual business of more than $1,500,000, had been systematically robbed of $500,000 worth of valuable skins by two of its most trusted employes.

The Cohen employes, John Dingfelder, head of the skin department, and his assistant, Frank Ellwanger, were arrested Saturday and arraigned yesterday on a short affidavit in Jefferson Market Court. Arraigned with them were Max Ackerman Sr. and Louis Ackerman Jr. of the Ackerman Fur Company, 507 Sixth Avenue, to whom, it is alleged, Dingfeder and Ellwanger sold the stolen goods. The Cohen employes, according to the police, have made full confessions, while the members of the Ackerman firm offer no statement.

Dingfelder had been with his firm for more than thirty years. He drew a large salary as head of a department. A few days before his arrest his employers had given to him a gold watch inscribed "For thirty years of faithful service." According to Mr. Stott, the thefts were disclosed, when it became evident that Ellwanger was living beyond his means.

Mr. Stott's Statement.

Mr. Stott announced the details of the depredations in the following statement, on which the charges against the four defendants were based:

"John Dingfelder, associated with M. Cohen and Brothers for 30 years and one of the trusted employes of this firm, admits taking thousands of dollars in merchandise over a period of years. Dingfelder gradually worked himself to a position where he was drawing a salary of $9,000 a year, but resorted to the stealing of merchandise, according to his own admission. He admits disposing of this merchandise to the Ackerman Fur Company, where more than $4,500 worth of furs was recovered after identification by members of the Cohen firm.

"Frank Ellwanger, who had been with the firm ten years, had received from time to time in the last few years a little money from his superior, and, according to his admission, he packed the merchandise for Dingfelder and knew that it was being given out and Dingfelder was receiving the profit for it. He said that Dingfelder gave him money occasionally. Since he knew that Dingfelder was robbing the firm, he said, he saw no reason why his superior should get away with this alone. Then, he admits, he commenced taking a little at a time, but more recently took broadtails valued at $40 a skin.

"One recent lot, valued at $1,200 and found at the Ackerman place of business, was stolen, Ellwanger said, for his own account.

"After admissions by Ellwanger, investigation at the Ackerman Company produced the merchandise belonging to the Cohen company. Though the Ackermans refused to say anything, both Dingfelder and Ellwanger said Mr. Ackerman sent his son periodically to West Twenty-seventh Street for boxes of merchandise."

How Thefts Were Traced.

Explaining how the thefts were traced, Mr. Stott added:

"The Cohen brothers came to us some time ago and said they couldn't understand how with their enormous turnover they were making so little money. There was a leak somewhere, they said, and would we plug it?

"At that time no suspicion was attached to Dingfelder, whose long and apparently honorable record put him above such a thought. Ellwanger, however, we found out, was living above his $45 a week and associating with a woman, who probably spent that amount on trifles daily. We cornered him and he confessed.

"The next step was to identify the property at Ackerman's. Cohen suggested Dingfelder was the right man to do that. We all went over to the Sixth Avenue store. On arrival Dingfelder looked round and said at once, 'There's none of our stuff here.' But he said it a trifle too quick and our suspicions were aroused. Finally, I said to him, 'John, why don't you come across?' He replied, 'I am a fool,' and told all.

The Furriers' Security Alliance worked on the case for weeks. Bit by bit they secured the information from without and within. It is certainly the most remarkable case we have ever known and tends to bear out our assertion that the total losses in the New York fur trade through depredations amount to more than $2,000,000 annually."

Mr. Stott said that other arrests were pending in the Cohen case and evidence was being accumulated which would lead to the detection of thefts by employes in many of the principal fur firms in New York.

THAW RETURNS HOME SIMPLY AND QUIETLY

Mother Says They Have No Special Plans and Will Spend the Summer at Cresson.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, May 1.—Harry K. Thaw came home early today, simply and quietly, without any fuss or special welcome, other than a greeting by his mother, and he took up his everyday life as easily as though the past dreary years never had existed.

A little after 10 A. M. he drove to the Mellon Institute, then down town for luncheon. His secretary will be here Saturday.

Asked if she had any special plans, Mrs. Thaw said:

"No, nothing special. We are living at home now and will go to Cresson this Summer as usual."

Mr. Thaw's reported desire to make a trip abroad was broached.

"Of course he will not take a trip," she said. "He is on parole. He can trip around the State as much as he pleases, though. But he never said he would take a trip abroad. That was all manufactured talk."

Thaw, it is believed, has made no plans for the future other than coming here and living with his mother and to managing the enterprises in which his money is invested. He is expected to confer with the committee of his estate regarding these matters early next week.

It is declared by some persons who have been closely associated with him that he plans to engage in uplift work connected with some church movement. He is stated to have manifested great interest in such activities and has talked at length with clergymen concerning the possibilities of good to be accomplished by them.

PHILADELPHIA, May 1.—Additional reasons were filed in Common Pleas Court today in support of the motion for a new trial to determine the sanity of Harry K. Thaw, recently declared sane by a jury. They were filed by counsel representing Russell William Thaw, thirteen-year-old son of Evelyn Nesbit, divorced wife of Thaw, who claims that her son has an anticipatory interest in Thaw's estate, and that if he were declared sane and released he would dissipate the estate. The reasons are largely technical and contend the Court committed errors in charging the jury.

60,000 BOYS MARCH DOWN FIFTH AVENUE

Mayor Hylan and "the Typical New York Boy" Review Loyalty Day Parade.

TEN DIVISIONS IN LINE

Boy Scouts Bring Up the Rear — Some on Roller Skates and Others on Bicycles.

It was a big day for the boys yesterday. For several hours they held Fifth Avenue with a parade that formed above Seventy-second Street and disbanded around Washington Square. The Mayor and city officials reviewed the parade from a stand at Twenty-fifth Street, where the uniform and gold braid of Brig. Gen. Weigel and Rear Admiral Plunkett, representing the army and navy, also attracted the youthful eye.

Officials in charge estimated there were 60,000 boys in line. Some of them were uniformed as Boy Scouts and sailors, but most of them wore ordinary boy clothes. Many took advantage of this one day in the year on which they could roll down Fifth Avenue on roller-skates without a word from the hundred policemen along the way, and many others were on bicycles. One group attracted attention as they came down the avenue playing, "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here" on mouth organs. A band of negro boys in khaki blowing lustily attracted the applause of the crowd.

Mayor Hylan arrived at the reviewing stand, Twenty-fifth Street, shortly before 2 o'clock. The head of the parade passed at 2:20 and the Mayor remained watching the marchers until shortly after 3 o'clock, when he left. The parade continued for several hours past this point.

Shortly before the Mayor left the stand, Colonel John J. Byrne of the Ninth Coast Artillery, the Grand Marshal, motored back from his position at the head of the line of march and with his staff took his place on the reviewing stand. He was accompanied by John D. Mitchell, Jr., the fourteen-year-old boy recently elected "the typical New York boy." Mitchell acted as Boy Marshal of the parade.

The parade was in ten divisions and was under the official title of Boys' Loyalty Day Parade. It was led by Colonel Byrne and his aids, Robert Grier Cooke, President of the Fifth Avenue Association, and Jacob Vanderveer, President of the Broadway Association. A detail of uniformed police under Chief Inspector William J. Lahey followed.

The first division consisted of elementary school boys. The other nine divisions represented junior high schools, public high schools, the Children's Aid Society and Boys' Club Federation, the Catholic parochial and high schools, the Catholic Boys' Brigades and Catholic settlements and other Catholic organizations, the Jewish units, settlement and neighborhood houses and Boy Scouts.

There were many floats and bands in the parade. Among the floats were representations of "Vocational Service for Juniors," "Humane Education," "the Milk Industries," the lower East Side Settlement House, the Flower Guild, Christodora House and the upper East Side Settlement House.

J. G. Phelps Stokes was Adjutant General and the following were assigned as the ten division commanders:

Division.	Commander.
First	Colonel Charles Elliot Warren
Second	Colonel Rhinelander Waldo
Third	Colonel Arthur W. Little
Fourth	Colonel Arthur F. Schermerhorn
Fifth	Colonel James Higgins
Sixth	Major Mills Miller
Seventh	Major E. J. Winterroth
Eighth	Major B. C. Dreher
Ninth	Major John M. Perry
Tenth	Major Charles P. Shinn

In cities and towns around New York there were similar celebrations of Boys' Week. In Yonkers, several thousand schoolboys, headed by Mayor Ulrich Wiedendanger, who acted as grand marshal, marched through the principal streets.

Seven Aborn companies are to play light opera engagements this Summer in the West and South.

TO HONOR JOE JEFFERSON.

"Little Church Around the Corner" to Install Window for Actor.

"The Little Church Around the Corner" will perpetuate the memory of the man who gave it this name and thereby made it famous.

Dr. J. H. Randolph Ray, the rector since the death of Dr. George Houghton a year ago, announced yesterday that a memorial window in honor of Joseph Jefferson, the actor, is now being designed and will be placed in position shortly on the east side of the building.

More than fifty years ago, Jefferson was entrusted with the funeral arrangements of George Holland, an actor friend. Time was short and he went to a Reformed Episcopal Church at Twenty-eighth Street and Madison Avenue and requested the pastor to perform the services. It so happened that the pastor had condemned the theatre and the players from the pulpit. He told Mr. Jefferson, therefore, that in view of these circumstances it would hardly be meet for him to conduct the funeral services for an actor.

"However," said the pastor, "there's a little church around the corner, and they will probably fix you up."

"Well, God bless the little church around the corner," replied Mr. Jefferson.

Dr. Ray said that this story has been denied, but that he believes it is fully substantiated.

"For half a century there has been heated dispute over that incident," he said. "The Church authorities and myself, however, are firmly convinced that the story as told by Mr. Jefferson is true, despite efforts to disprove it. Moreover, both Mr. Jefferson in his memoirs and the Holland family are positive of the facts.

"The defenders of the Reformed Episcopal Church claim that the minister of the other church was preparing for a wedding, and that as the church was new in the community he was unable to decide just exactly what was the right thing to do.

"I expect the memorial window will settle the controversy. One thing is certain, the story about Joseph Jefferson will never die in the United States, because it is too firmly fixed in people's minds."

Dr. Ray also announced that he is collecting data for a history of the church. It will contain the full details of the Jefferson incident as told by the actor in his memoirs.

ARMEN OHANIAN DANCES.

She Presents a Varied Program at Aeolian Hall.

A certain simplicity of soul distinguished the entertainment offered at Aeolian Hall last evening by Armen Ohanian, the Dancer of Shamalika, and her troupe. Armen herself is a beautiful woman, who, draped in the rich and becoming attire of the Persian harem, interpreted the moods of the spirit in graceful symbolical dances. It was she who gave the note of distinction to a program which consisted of selections from Russian composers played by an Occidental quartet; of songs of the East sung by a tenor soloist; of hereditary tribal tunes tinkled and drummed by a native Persian orchestra, and of airs by a native Armenian choir.

The American audience received the slightly uneven performance cordially. Naturally, Armen Ohanian was the dominant attraction on the bill, and though most of the dances were of a somber, not to say tragic, import, as witness "The Curse of Salome," "The Dance of the Witch," and "The Knight of Death," yet the final "Nirvana," a Buddhist ecstatic dance, compensated for all that had gone before.

A NEW REVUE OPENS SOON.

"Round the Town" Will Be Shown on the Century Roof.

An intimate revue entitled "Round the Town," produced by Herman J. Mankiewicz and S. Jay Kaufman, will open on the Century roof in about three weeks, following a week out of town. The cast will include Harry Fox, Gloria Foy, Jack Haley, Janet Velie, Charles Crafts, Rose Rolanda, Jay Velie and Elise Bonwit. Music, lyrics and sketches have been contributed by Victor Herbert, Walter Donaldson, George S. Kaufman, Marc Connelly, Dorothy Parker, Joseph Santley, Alfred Nathan Jr., Jay Velie and Edward H. Wever.

Squadron A Ball May 8.

A Military Ball in celebration of the thirty-fifth anniversary of squadron A, will be held next Thursday night at the Hotel Biltmore. All officers commissioned during the war will appear in uniform.

THEATRE MANAGERS MEET AGAIN TODAY

Group That Formed New Association to Urge Making Terms With Actors.

SEPARATE PEACE LIKELY

Shuberts, Selwyns and Others to Sign If Their Proposal Is Rejected.

A clarification of the unsettled situation among the theatrical managers in regard to a renewal of the agreement with Equity that expires May 31 is expected as a result of the meeting to be held this afternoon for the election of officers of the Producing Managers Association.

The meeting will be attended both by the "round robin" managers, who some time ago signed a statement indicating their opposition to Equity Shop, and the members of the Managers' Protective Association, formed Wednesday by sixteen prominent managers who are known to be prepared to sign a ten-year agreement with Equity guaranteeing an eighty per cent. Equity representation in all casts.

The program for today's meeting calls for the reintroduction, by one of the Managers' Protective Association group, of a resolution asking the Producing Managers' Association to effect an agreement with Equity on the 80 per cent. Equity recommendation basis. This resolution was defeated at the annual meeting of the Producing Managers' Association Tuesday and its defeat is again looked for today.

Separate Peace Expected.

In the event of the defeat of the resolution, it is expected that the sixteen managers, headed by the Shuberts, the Selwyns, A. H. Woods and L. Lawrence Weber, who make up the Managers' Protective Association, will proceed directly to make a separate peace with Equity, either late today or tomorrow. It is the belief of leaders of this group that at least three prominent members of the "round Robin" group will align themselves with it.

The question of the expulsion from the Producing Managers' Association of the recalcitrant sixteen, who formed the Managers' Protective Association, is certain to call for violent discussion, if it is brought up. All of the managers in the association have contributed directly to the organization's treasury, now known to hold more than $100,000, and there has been no decision yet as to the disposition of the money in the treasury, so far as individual managers are concerned.

A large part of the sum now on hand is known to have been contributed by the Shuberts and their allies, as very active producers, in accordance with the provision whereby each manager has paid into the treasury $25 weekly for each company playing under his direction. Further, every manager has been called upon to pay annual dues of $500 and has filed a bond of $10 000 to guarantee his good faith as a member of the association.

Marc Klaw Makes Statement.

There is talk of resignation en masse from the Producing Managers' Association of the recalcitrant sixteen, but no definite statement of plans was available last night.

The following statement was issued yesterday by Marc Klaw:

I have been rather surprised at the statement made in some quarters that members of the group who refused to guarantee a closed shop had no material holdings or interest in the theatrical business. Speaking for myself alone, I am financially interested in many theatres in New York, Chicago and other large cities in the United States, as well as in the Klaw and Erlanger Booking Exchange and Syndicate, both of which are dependent upon the production of plays.

I am only one member of the group which signed the "Round Robin," and I am sure if all their interests were weighed they would be found to exceed those of the opposing group. And speaking of the opposing group, I believe that the mass of actors will take little comfort in the capitulation of managers who by very act prove their unreliability and lack of respect for a written agreement.

Sam H. Harris, President of the Producing Managers' Association and recognized yeader of the "round robin" group, was in conference yesterday with John Emerson and Frank Gillmore, President and Executive Secretary of Equity, but no announcement of the outcome or nature of the discussion was made.

FAVOR BRINGING HERMES TO AMERICA

Near East Chambers of Commerce Adopt a Resolution on Praxiteles's Work.

OPPOSITION IS VOICED

Senator Moses and Professor Shepherd Give Reasons Against the Project.

The proposal to bring to this country the masterpiece of Praxiteles's sculptural art, "Hermes Carrying the Infant Dionysus," was endorsed yesterday at a luncheon of the Federated American Chamber of Commerce of the Near East, Inc., at the Hotel Belmont in honor of Irwin B. Laughlin, who sails tomorrow as American Minister to Greece.

A resolution was adopted, pledging the organization's co-operation in bringing the statue here. It was offered by A. H. Holliday, a director of the federation.

Neal Dow Becker, who presided at the luncheon, asked for an oral vote. The "ayes" and "noes" seemed to be of equal volume, so a rising vote was called for. Although there were about seventy-five guests at the luncheon, fewer than half voted. Mr. Becker announced that the vote was twenty-eight for, and six against.

"It would be a wonderful stimulation of interest in Greece to have the Hermes statue shown here," said Mr. Becker. "What difference would it make if it were scratched up a bit? Think of the wonderful advertising Greece would get through the publicity that I know would be given the statue's arrival and stay here."

At the guest table the only person who voted was Dr. William R. Shepherd, Senior Professor of History at Columbia University, who saw the statue ten years ago. He cast his vote against the resolution

"We must bear in mind the difficulties of transportation from Olympia to a seaport and across the sea; the risk of injury through careless handling and through climatic changes," he said. "It dates back 2,200 to 2,300 years, and the quality of marble is of such a nature that if subjected to violent changes in temperature it would surely be affected. It might crack and fall apart.

"I am opposed to permitting the Greek Government sending the Hermes statue," said United States Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, who was United States Minister to Greece fifteen years ago. "During the years I spent there I had the delightful opportunity of seeing the statue at Olympia, where it should remain," he said to reporters after the luncheon. "That is the place for it. Of course, if there were absolute assurance that it would arrive here safely and be returned in the same way, it would be a different matter. But that hardly seems possible. The risk is too great."

Mr. Laughlin refused to be quoted on his opinion, inasmuch as he said he had no orders from the State Department upon the proposal.

RELICS OF NAPOLEON TO COME TO AMERICA

Collection Bought by Dr. Rosenbach Includes Drinking Cup, Plate and Clothing.

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to The New York Times.

LONDON, May 1.—An interesting collection of Napoleonic relics is about to go to the United States as a result of the purchase made by Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach. It was made by Abbe Ange Paul Vignali, who was one of the two Corsican priests sent to minister to the ex-Emperor at St. Helena by his uncle, Cardinal Fesch, and who attended Napoleon on his deathbed, administering extreme unction.

Napoleon bequeathed to Vignali 100,000 francs as well as a number of articles. The latter, through the dishonesty of a Corsican lawyer, found their way to a Mont de Piété in Paris, and were purchased there by the Duke of Padua and are now owned by Prince Victor Napoleon.

In addition to this collection there was a large number of personal articles belonging to Napoleon which were divided among his personal entourage, and it is Vignali's share of these which Dr. Rosenbach has now purchased. They were till recently in possession of Charles Marie Gianettini, nephew of the Abbe and he has vouched in a special notarial act to their authenticity.

The relics number nearly forty and include the death mask of Napoleon from the matrix moulded by his doctor, Antommarchi. Accompanying this is a letter from Antommarchi to Vignali enclosing a prospectus of his intention to issue copies of the death mask to a few subscribers.

Perhaps the most interesting item is the last cup Napoleon ever used. It is a silver goblet from his dressing bag and is inscribed with the imperial coat of arms. There are also a similarly engraved silver knife, fork and spoon, while a more gruesome relic is a mummified tendon taken from the ex-Emperor's body during the post mortem. A shirt, handkerchiefs, a pair of white linen breeches and white pique waistcoats represent Napoleon's wardrobe, and there are church vestments from the chapel in Longwood, many of them marked with the imperial cypher.

Among the collection consists of documents, such as letters from Napoleon's entourage to Vignali, accounts relating to his salary at St. Helena and a copy of Napoleon's will in the Abbe's handwriting.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The Ziegfeld "Follies" will close its run at the New Amsterdam Theatre on May 17. A new "Follies" will succeed if the Equity situation permits.

Mrs. Fiske will end her engagement in "Helena's Boys" at Henry Miller's Theatre next week. "The Changelings," seen at that theatre earlier in the season, will return for a Spring engagement.

The first of Equity Players' matinees of "Hedda Gabler" will be given at the Forty-eighth Street Theatre on Friday, May 16, and on Mondays and Fridays thereafter.

"Plain Jane," a new musical comedy, will come to New York the week of May 12, at a theatre yet to be revealed.

A midnight performances of "Vogues," attended largely by newspaper men, took place last night at the Shubert Theatre.

"In and Out," which opens at the Montauk Theatre in Brooklyn on Monday night, probably will come to New York the week of May 19.

The cast of "Whistler," now in rehearsal, includes O. P. Heggie, Betty Linley, Alice Belmore Cliffe, Gavin Muir, Arnold Lucy, Edward Fielding and Shiels Hayes.

There will be an extra matinee today of "The Miracle" at the Century Theatre with Anna Pavlowa as guest of honor.

GIVES BIG BUSINESS TO ITS EMPLOYES

Harriss, Irby & Vose to Turn Over Its Entire Spot Cotton Trade on July 31.

ALSO GUARANTEES BACKING

Firm to Deal Exclusively in Futures After Rewarding Men Who Were Its Mainstays.

Harriss, Irby & Vose, members of the New York and New Orleans Cotton Exchanges and associate members of the Liverpool Cotton Exchange, will turn over, on July 31, their entire spot cotton business to the executives and employes of that department, assuring them, moreover, financial backing for the first year.

The firm is one of the largest factors in the cotton trade in the United States and deals in thousands of bales of spot cotton annually. Therefore it is presumed that the gift to employes is worth several hundreds of thousands of dollars in potential profits. Members of the firm declined, however, even to approximate the value of the gift in dollars and cents. Nor would they make public the number of employes who will benefit thereby.

Two reasons governed the firm in its decision, according to Richard T. Harriss, one of five brothers who are members of the firm. One was that the firm's business in cotton futures had grown so rapidly as to justify its withdrawal from the spot cotton business, and the other a desire to reward those who had been most actively responsible for the firm's position in the spot cotton field.

Announcement Sent to Trade.

An engraved announcement, sent to members of the trade, says in part:

"This gift is made in recognition of the faithful service that we have received from those into whose control the organization will pass.

"This selling organization covers the principal European markets and includes fully equipped offices with experienced staffs at Havre, France; Bremen, Germany; Milan, Italy; Vienna, Austria, and Lodz, Poland.

"These offices with their personnel and connections will be under the control and supervision of H. L. Kone, who has long been the manager of our spot sales department and a trusted employe of our firm for more than fifteen years.

"The business will be conducted under the style of H. L. Kone & Co., who will accept on a commission basis the exclusive representation in Europe of a limited clientele of Southern shippers who are in a position to fill export orders. Although we shall have no interest or connection with the business, we are glad to commend Mr. Kone and the organization that will be under his firm's direction to the confidence of those who would avail themselves of a complete and long established agency for the sale of spot cotton in Europe."

Firm Organized in 1905.

In commenting on the announcement, Mr. Harriss said it had been the practice of the firm to give its employes in all departments a certain percentage of the profits each year, in addition to their salaries. It had been arranged to give any employe who would lose his position as the result of the division of the business six months' salary, dating from July 31, he said.

The firm of Harriss, Irby & Vose was founded in 1905 at Oklahoma City as a copartnership under the name of Harriss, Irby & Co. In 1906 they were joined by William W. Bierce, inventor and builder of cotton compresses. The firm was then incorporated as the Harriss-Irby Cotton Company, and later in the same year Richard T. Harriss joined the company.

In 1907 William Leslie Harriss became associated with the corporation, and in 1910 Alden H. Vose joined it. Upon the death of Mr. Bierce in 1912 his widow succeeded to his interest, and in 1915 Langdon Harriss, Robert M. Harriss and Raymond F. Harriss came into the business, which was thereupon changed from a corporation into the partnership of Harriss, Irby & Vose.

In this firm Langdon Harriss, Richard T. Harriss, Baylis E. Harriss, William Leslie Harriss, Robert M. Harriss, Raymond F. Harriss, Robert F. Irby, Alden H. Vose and Mrs. Ellen A. Bierce were partners. Raymond F. Harriss died in 1918, but the composition of the present copartnership is otherwise the same as at the beginning.

NO MERCY FOR GIRL BANDIT.

Judge Martin Says Cooney Will Get Well-Deserved Sentence.

Although she is hoping to get off easily, little or no mercy is to be shown Cecelia Cooney, Brooklyn's bob-haired bandit, by County Judge George W. Martin when she comes up for sentence for her admitted hold-ups, judging from the remarks of the Judge yesterday in dismissing the April Grand Jury. He said to the jurors:

"You will be recalled as the Grand Jury which returned the indictments against the famous bob-haired bandit and her husband. They were believed bold individuals but their boldness ceased when they were bereft of their revolvers and had not before them individuals whom they had terrorized with loaded weapons. Your indictment against them was well founded and you can rest assured that the Judge here presiding will see to it that your judgment is upheld by the imposition of a proper and well-deserved sentence.

"This disposition will be made of their case, despite the maudlin sentimentality of certain individuals whose views and opinions on the matter of crime, were they allowed to serve as a guide, would soon render any community a paradise for robbers, thieves and other criminals and a place of terror for the law-abiding."

JURY ACQUITS KNUTSON.

Case Against Friend of Minnesota Representative to Be Dropped.

WASHINGTON, May 1. — Representative Harold Knutson of Minnesota was found not guilty by a jury in Arlington County, Virginia, today of charges growing out of an automobile ride in Virginia last March with Leroy M. Hull, Government clerk of Washington.

Testimony against Hull had not been started and the Prosecuting Attorney announced he would move to nolle prosse the case.

In a statement after the verdict, Representative Knutson said it was "just what I have expected and I have been confident of the outcome right along."

The jury was said to have taken three ballots.

Representative Knutson's defense also included the appearance of several of his colleagues in the House, who testified as character witnesses. Representative Fish of New York drew a round of applause from the crowded courtroom today when he stated that he was appearing voluntarily and that Knutson would always find a welcome in his home.

Protests Arrest of Two Britons.

MANILA, May 1.—The British Consul General is preparing a complaint to Governor General Wood regarding the arrest of two British subjects named Brown and Kay at Iloilo. The Britishers became involved in a quarrel with two Filipinos and were attacked later by several Filipinos, according to the report to the British Consulate. Both Britishers, the report says, were arrested. The report of Governor Montinola of Iloilo says that the Britishers narrowly escaped lynching.

BOITO'S OPERA 'NERO' ACCLAIMED AT MILAN

By H. C. COLLES.

olive clad hillside where the Christians worship is beautiful in its simple musical outlines and in it there is considerable relief in banishing for the moment the hectic atmosphere wherein the rest of the drama moves. There is a return to the ideal atmosphere in the final scene wherein Rubria dies a martyr to her faith in a vault beneath the circus where the victims are cast.

But the extravagant scene in the oppidum wherein charioteers are buried from their cariots and gladiators, actors and athletes are inextricably mingled, while Nero roars above them all, scarcely can be called a musical triumph, though scenically it's one which the impressario of the cinema might envy. There are, however, splendid passages of orchestration in this scene, beginning with the rushing Scharso-like prelude and choruses with their intricate ensemble wonderfully sung as they were, produced most electrifying effects. What ever may be the ultimate estimate of "Nerone" as a musical work it has certainly received the most magnificent first presentation possible.

Story of the Opera.

The opera is in four acts, for Boito himself abandoned the final act of the burning of Rome and in doing so, though he truncated his drama and denied to his audience a scene which would presumably have surpassed in magnificence and horror all preceding ones, he saved his reputation as an artist. The rejection of the last act at least leaves something to the imagination.

The failure of "Nerone," if ultimately that word should have to be used in connection with it, will be that throughout its four crowded acts not enough is so left.

Carefully devised literary drama hardly allows space for music and music itself is not always strong enough to lift the participants above the mechanism of the stage into an ideal atmosphere which is the justification of opera. Yet the opera opens in a purely imaginative atmosphere. The curtain is raised in silence, revealing a scene on the Appian way at night, its monuments looming vaguely above shadows while two figures are grouping in the foreground. In the far distance voices echoing one another in fragments of song, mingle with those of sentinels calling watch on the aqueduct when a strange cry "Nerone—oreste il Matricida" breaks the calm. That cry is the leading motive of the first act. Nero, pursued by morbid terrors at the immensity of his crime, rushes on to the stage carrying the ashes of his mother for burial. Within the entry the orchestra bursts in for the first time with a violent fortissimo which produces an electric effect by the sheer weight of tone rather than by musical texture.

That is unfortunately typical of many of the music climaxes of opera but there could hardly be a more directly impressive means of launching the action of drama than this. In the scenes which follow, moreover, Boito's skill as a dramatist is apparent in the way he introduces his special characters so as to reveal the main forces which play their interacting part in the tragedy of Rome. For it must be understood that Rome and not Nero is the real subject matter of this work. In addition to Nero at the head of the effete splendors and debaucheries of Imperial Rome (so often pictured in fantastic melodrama that to revive the scenes in serious work is in itself an act of courage) there are two main forces, Simon Magus practitioner of genostic philosophy in its most debased form, and Fanuel, apostle of the pure faith of the Christian.

Women Characters Obscure.

The two principal women characters are Asteria, whose infatuation for Nero makes Simon use her as his tool in order to play on the superstitution of Nero, and Rubria, a vestal virgin, whose conversion to Christianity is ultimately crowned with martyrdom (all these encounter one another in dawning light on Appian Way. The meeting between the two women and, indeed, their part in the subsequent course of events suffers from the want of a clear definition of their characters. We have Asteria cherishing her passion for Nero, yet attracted by the Christian "Pater Noster"; of Rubria, while she prays conscious of uncontessed sin. The situation conceived by Boito the dramatist seems a little too subtle for Boito the musician to handle firmly, but there is no doubt about the two men, Simon and Fanuel. Indeed, the finest musical passage in the first act is that in which Simon begs the leader of Christians to tell him the secret of his divine power; trumpets of the Roman legions are heard in the distance and citizens are flocking out to recall their Caesar to the Rome. Simon attempts to dazzle him with the splendors of empire. His words might be a paraphrase on the temptation of the wilderness. "All these things will I give thee," and as his voice mingles with the growing sounds of trumpets, his majestically moving bass marches to the climax. The act ends with the first of the great spectacular scenes of the opera in which all ranks and classes of people come to acclaim Caesar, and Nero, at last banishing his terrors, mounts the triumphal car which will carry him back to the city.

Here it must be noted that Professor Ludovico Pogliaghi has devoted exhaustive study to working out details of mise en scène so that every detail from chariots and costumes to the shapes of the brass instruments on the stage bear the stamp of historic accuracy. One wonders how far it has been possible to verify the nauseous ritual indulged in in the subterannean temple over which Simon Magus presides which is the subject of the second act.

One sees Simon and his priests with the mysteries with which they impress the people. Musically it gives an opportunity for a combination of the stilted theme hymn of the faithful, used freely as a sort of ground bass, with the conversation of the priests and the elaborate orchestral commentary.

Nero comes to worship and is confronted in a magic mirror with the image of Asteria, to whom Simon has represented that if she will do his bidding, she was obtain as a slave, him who holds the world in slavery. At her embrace, however, Nero discovers her to be no goddess, but a mortal woman. He smashes idols, hurls a burning torch into the mouth of Oracle and wrecks the shrine. If one is inclined to ask whether even the most superstitious of emperors might not have seen through the mummery a little sooner, it is because all through the act the music lacks the spontaneity which creates illusion. The whole scene, however, contrasts with and acts as a foil to the next one which shows the simple worship of the Christians and ends in their betrayal by Simon and the arrest of Fanuel. This scene in an olive orchard outside the walls of Rome is an exquisite stage picture and it is presented with music, which combines gentleness of feeling with austerity of outline. It is evening, Fanuel seated, recites beatitudes to which his followers respond.

Drama Turns to Christians.

Boito has handled with relative restraint the ideal love existing between Fanuel and Rubria, and the thoughtful treatment of this whole act raises the tone of the work above the conventions of opera. Here, too, we see nothing of Nero. Indeed, from this scene onward, the focal point of the drama changes and the fortunes of Christians become the main concern.

Nero, however, holds the centre of the stage through the most sensational scene, which forms in the first part of the last act. This is the scene of Oppidum at the back of the circus.

This is introduced by a remarkable prelude of the scherzo type, in which the orchestra, under Signor Toscanini, pictured the scene with a vividness which rivaled that which the eye met. On the rise of the curtain charioteers, athletes, gladiators and tragedians rush wildly to and fro. Nero, drunk with a lust of horrors, directs the games. Christians are brought in bound, and, when the vestal virgin comes forward to obtain clemency for them. She is found to be Rubria, and is condemned to join the victims. At the height of the turmoil fire breaks out and the whole scene is enveloped in smoke. When it clears (an effect which, by the way, is so curiously like "Das Rheingold," that one almost expects to hear Anvils) the scene has changed to a vault where the dead bodies of the victims are thrown.

In this last scene of the opera as it stands Fanuel and Asteria come to seek the body of Rubria and find her still living. At last she is absolved from her sin and she dies a martyr to the true faith, but the real significance of this finale seems to be that it enables Boito to escape from the turgid realism in which his music has struggled into something of an ideal atmosphere. Of the third act it is necessary to add that not only had the extremely complicated ensemble been polished to a point of perfection by Signor Toscanini's untiring treatment, but the principals of the cast have been chosen with the utmost care for their fitness for the parts. Aurellano Pertile's performance in the exacting part of Nero is outstanding. Others are Signor Lazzarini, Simon Magus; Signor Galeffi, Fanuel; Signora Raisa, a powerful Asteria, and Signora Bertana, who sang the quiet music of Rubria with beautiful quality of tone. The whole production is a triumph of stagecraft, and Giovacchino Forzano shares the triumph with Toscanini in a production which must long remain a landmark in the annals of the operatic stage.

The enthusiasm of the audience grew with the unfolding of the opera, and storms of applause greeted the end of act three. The singers had to make their appearance before the curtain seven times and there were insistent calls for Toscanini, who, however, did not respond. At the end of the fourth and last act there was a great scene of enthusiasm and the performers and Toscanini had to respond to no less than eight curtain calls demanded by the audience.

MILAN, May 1.—What is considered to be probably the most important artistic event of the last half-century took place in the Scala Opera House tonight with the first performance of Arrigio Boito's opera "Nerone" before a cosmopolitan public of several thousand spectators who had flocked from every quarter of the globe to be present at the first night. For Italians it assumed the character of the apotheosis of the Italian lyric art.

News that Italy had been searched throughout its length and breadth for the best singers, that 1,000 actors would participate in this monumental opera, whose orchestration has been attended to by Arturo Toscanini himself, that chariot races would be held on the stage, that the management of the Scala lost over 2,000,000 lire ($90,000) through keeping the house closed for two weeks for rehearsals, sent prices soaring to hitherto unknown heights for Italy of 7,000 lire ($315) for ordinary stalls and anything from 25,000 lire ($1,125) up for boxes.

The critics, however, are unanimous in declaring that Boito's masterpiece can claim the right to become one of the classics of the Lyric Theatre on the strength of its intrinsic merits and quite apart from the notoriety conferred upon it by the magnificence and costliness of its scenic settings in today's performance.

MILAN, May 1 (Associated Press).—The receipts for the first performance of Boito's "Nerone" tonight amounted to 1,000,000 lire (about $45,000).

RAIDERS IN GALWAY WRECK A BARRACKS

Records and Effects Are Burned, but Occupying Force Is Not Molested.

BELFAST, Ireland, May 1 (Associated Press).—The Killormer barracks at Ballinasloe, County Galway, were attacked and wrecked after a preliminary fusillade early today.

The record books and the guards' bicycles and clothing were removed, but the occupants of the barracks were not molested.

Apparently in fear of a Free State raid, the Irish republicans in the County Monaghan salient facing County Fermanagh, where they are in considerable strength, dumped their arms and explosives in a field last night and destroyed them.

The explosions were heard eight miles away. The border guards have since been strengthened.

KIDNAP DRIVERS, GET $45,000 LOOT

Seven Bandits Steal Truckload of Silk on Busy Twenty-third Street in Broad Day.

SIMILAR CRIME AT A PIER

Inquisitive Taxi Man Is Also Kidnapped in Auto—Valuable Truck Seized in Garage.

Truck thieves, whose activities along the North River in the last few months have caused several hundred thousand dollars' loss to firms, yesterday morning kidnapped the driver of a silk truck and his helper and escaped with truck and load valued at $35,000. There were seven in the gang. It was also discovered yesterday that seven bandits, by kidnapping another driver, made off on Wednesday with a truck and merchandise worth $10,000 from in front of a pier a few blocks away.

Victor Landrigan, 241 West Twentieth Street, driver for the Susquehanna Silk Mills Company, 149 Madison Avenue, reported to Police Headquarters the loss of his truck and twenty-five cases of silk. He and his helper, William Meill of 43 Hopkins Avenue, Brooklyn, left Pier 68 shortly after 9 A. M. yesterday. Between Eleventh and Tenth Avenues, on Twenty-third Street, Landrigan declared, a jam in traffic occurred. His way was blocked by a large touring car, in which were seven men, one of whom jumped out.

Pretending there had been an accident, the man rushed toward Landrigan. The others left the touring car as the first man pointed a gun at Landrigan.

"Get down off there," he ordered. The others crowded around with drawn guns. The driver and his assistant alighted and were hustled into the touring car, where they were covered with blankets. The men, prodding them with revolvers, warned them to keep silent. Two bandits then drove the truck east.

Onlooker Also Kidnapped.

A taxicab driver, James McMullen, stepped up to look on at what he thought was a brawl. He, too, was thrown into the touring car, which set off uptown at great speed. At Thirty-fourth Street and Seventh Avenue the taxicab driver was thrown from the car.

At 168th Street and Jerome Avenue, the Bronx, the bandits pushed Landrigan and Meill out of the car and sped away. Landrigan called his company on the telephone before going to Police Headquarters. He was taken to the rogues' gallery, but was unable to identify any of the pictures there. The truck was found later in the day at River Avenue and 163d Street, the Bronx, but the $35,000 worth of silk had been removed.

Edward Salsman, Treasurer of the M. Feigel & Brothers Company, importers of chemicals, reported that on Wednesday afternoon a truck belonging to his company loaded with shellac was stolen while in the doorway of Pier 11, a Cunard Line pier. The driver, Harry Minskoff of East Third Street, was kidnapped by seven armed bandits, who drove him, hidden in a pile of rags, in a touring car to the Bronx. There Minskoff was taken to the cellar of an apartment house and handcuffed to a waterpipe. He wormed his wrists out of the handcuffs and told the police of the theft. Neither truck nor load has been recovered, but in a visit to Police Headquarters yesterday Minskoff picked out a photograph as that of one of the bandits.

Mr. Salsman said the truck and shellac were valued at $10,000.

Bind Watchman, Seize Truck.

Four armed men entered the Curran Automobile Transportation Company's garage at 183 Seventh Street, Brooklyn, early yesterday, bound the watchman, Philip Poleigria of 2,233 Eighty-sixth Street, in the front seat of an automobile and fled with a motor truck stored there by the Louis C. Hopkins Company of 101 Water Street, Manhattan, which was laden with $5,000 worth of crude rubber. The truck was valued at $3,000.

Sawing their way into the clothing store of Max Wertheim, 1,561 First Avenue, early yesterday, burglars carried away suits valued at $5,000 without setting off the burglar alarm.

Thomas Kehoe and Alfred Dorman of 29 Clinton Street, Brooklyn, reported to the police that three armed men held them up while riding in a taxicab and dragged them through the streets. Kehoe was robbed of $400 and Dorman of $200. Edward Fitzgerald, the driver, was arrested by Detective Campbell. He insisted that he did not know the bandits.

Anthony Storey, 904 East Fifteenth Street, was held in $10,000 in Essex Market Court by Magistrate George W. Simpson on a charge of burglary. Patrolman Goldberg alleged that he found Storey breaking into the drug store of Hyman Perlman at 270 Stanton Street early yesterday.

When Edward Werle was released from the Dannemora prison Wednesday, to which he was committed in March, 1920, for a life sentence as a habitual criminal, he was met at the prison gates by Detectives Dent and Kammerer of this city, who brought him to Police Headquarters yesterday. The arrest was on an indictment of December, 1919, charging him with being one of the burglars who broke into the offices of the Sheffield Farms Company, 331 West Twenty-eighth Street, blew the safe and took $26,000.

According to the detectives, Werle has spent sixteen of twenty years in penal institutions. As he was a model prisoner, he was released from Dannemora on parole.

WHERE MEAT REVENUES GO.

Packers and Wholesalers Get 76 Cents on $1 Consumers Pay.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Packers and wholesalers get 76 cents out of every dollar paid by consumers of meat to retail dealers; 19 cents pays the dealer's expenses and 5 cents represents the dealer's profit.

The Department of Agriculture gave out this information today in making public a survey of 143 retail meat stores in Chicago, Cleveland and New York from March, 1923, to February, 1924.

CITY BREVITIES.

A "safety parade" will be a feature of Public Safety Day, on May 17. A reviewing stand will be erected on Fifth Avenue, between Fortieth and Forty-second Streets, which will be in charge of Special Deputy Commissioner Barron Collier.

The formal opening by Senator Royal S. Copeland, at 223 West 115th Street, of the Children's Shelter of the Sisterhood of Social Workers, will take place on Sunday evening. The dedication ceremony will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. Maurice H. Harris. Mrs. Isidore Cohen is President of the Executive Board. Mrs. Aaron A. Kinstler and Miss Birdie Salke are Vice Presidents and Miss Belle Osterweis, Treasurer.

The Scarsdale Revue will be presented at Dyckman Hall, Scarsdale, tonight for the benefit of the building fund of the Women's Club, of which Mrs. Burchard Ducher is President. The club has outgrown its quarters in historic Wayside Inn and it is planned to build a new structure.

YOUNG LAW STUDENT A SUICIDE AT SEA

Unrequited Love for Chicago Girl Believed Cause of Thorndyke Hilton's Leap From Ship.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 1.—Thorndyke Hilton, a former University of Chicago law student, leaped to his death from the rail of the steamship Orduna in mid-ocean on Tuesday night because of his unrequited affection for a Chicago stenographer, once in his employ, according to the belief expressed by his friends here tonight.

Young Hilton, who was on the way to begin a law course at the University of Edinburgh, Scotland, deliberately took his own life, according to a radio message received by the steamship line from Captain G. E. Waters of the Orduna.

Henry N. Hilton, the young man's father, declared he knew of no reason for his son committing suicide, but a rumor linking his name with that of Miss Irene Horstman, a stenographer, was passed about the University campus.

Catalans Appeal to League.

GENEVA, May 1.—Professor Manuel Llorens, Deputy for the Province of Barcelona, has lodged a protest with the League of Nations, requesting that it intervene to settle the differences between the Catalans and the Spanish Central Government. The plea is based on the ground that the League guarantees to national minorities the use of their own language. Professor Llorens cites decrees issued by the Spanish Military Directorate against the use of the Catalan tongue and flag, dissolving the general councils and suppressing juries.

French Deny Battle in Syria.

PARIS, May 1.—Recent reports that French and Turkish troops had clashed in Syria are denied in semi-official quarters. A French airplane patrol simply dispersed a gathering of bandits, it is declared.

Dispatches from Jerusalem to London newspapers April 28 reported fighting between French troops and irregular Turkish bands in Northern Syria, in which 800 men were killed or wounded and the Turks captured a great quantity of arms.

UNWELCOME TRUTH.

The hearings on the World Court before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee seem very like the releasing of a dammed up flood. Lawyers, clergymen, philanthropists, honorable women not a few, have pressed forward to urge this most American of international projects. The Senate committee was very grudging and reluctant about affording any opportunity at all to this cloud of witnesses. Senator LODGE could not give his time or mind to such trifles, and turned the matter over to a subcommittee of which Senator PEPPER is Chairman. He felt compelled to address a polite rebuke to one of the ladies who had spoken of the possibility that there would be votes against the re-election of Senators who in this matter of the World Court set themselves against the wishes of the people.

This was too much for the delicate sense of propriety always displayed by the Senator from Pennsylvania. He gravely observed that many men in public office "resent the suggestion "that unless they agree with certain "propositions there is to be opposi-"tion." Senator PEPPER kindly undertook to inform the lady who had given offense that "sometimes a "proposition coupled with a threat "defeats its own ends." This is unconsciously humorous coming from a member of the Republican Party whose leaders ever since 1920 have maintained that they must renounce the League of Nations and all its works because a majority of 7,000,000 had given them an explicit mandate to do it. But now, when testimony is offered to show that there is a great preponderance of opinion in favor of the World Court, it is a thing to be looked upon with solemn disapproval because it contains a "threat." In other words, if the voters are on your side, they represent the majestic voice of the people which every public man must make haste to obey; but if they are against you, they are assuming a threatening attitude which conscientious men in office are bound to resent and defy.

GOVERNOR SMITH'S FRIENDS.

Mr. FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT'S acceptance of the chairmanship of the committee to work for the nomination of Governor SMITH as the Democratic candidate for President is significant. Mr. ROOSEVELT is one of the finest types of the independent Democrat, the Wilson Democrat, the progressive and courageous reform Democrat. As a State Senator he often pounded Tammany and he opposed Mr. SMITH, then in the Assembly, on some measures; but, in their different ways, the two men are alike. They are clean, straightforward, honorable, seeking, according to their lights, to promote the public welfare. They couldn't help becoming warm friends. It was Mr. ROOSEVELT who set going the nomination of Mr. SMITH in 1920. It was Mrs. ROOSEVELT, herself a highly intelligent and capable politician, who introduced into the Democratic State Convention last month the resolution, passed by acclamation, instructing the delegates to support the Governor for President.

Subtracting Mr. HEARST'S little bloc from "all of the people," there isn't one word of exaggeration in her description of the Governor:

> Who throughout over twenty years of distinguished public service has demonstrated his fitness for the highest public office and trust, has proved himself steadfast to the ideals of democracy, a man of unimpeachable honor and integrity, an Executive of the highest type and a public servant genuinely devoted to the public weal, demonstrating to the citizens of the nation as well as to the State his capacity for businesslike administration, his sane and well-balanced judgment in the disposition of public affairs, his broad-minded statesmanship and sympathy with the worthy ideals of the citizens of mind and heart that have endeared him to all the people.

We impress these characteristics, so familiar here, upon the Democrats of the country, to work in every honorable way for Mr. SMITH'S nomination, will be the task of the committee. Mr. ROOSEVELT'S character and national reputation and acquaintance make him peculiarly fit to be its head. It should be said at once that no attempt is made or needs to be made to gild Tammany Hall with respectability. Out of the too well known processes of Tammany has come, by the natural development of a strong and sincere nature, conquering circumstance, one of the most engaging, high-minded and competent public men of our time. His admirers and supporters are of all parties and all over the State. No man is more trusted by workingmen. The story of his career makes him a sympathetic figure to millions. Among all the candidates his is the one vivid personality.

In past years, Tammany has made itself a derision in some Democratic National Conventions by a blind obstinacy for the worse as against the better candidates. There seems small chance of a better candidate than Governor SMITH. The objections brought against him are thin and disingenuous. The majority of Democratic voters are interested, as an independent Montana journal, The Daily Missoulian, says it is interested, "only in the election of "a President who measures up to the "job * * * not interested in his re-"ligion or his views on prohibition, "a closed issue." It is noticeable that the sages at Washington predict a triumph of that blank page, Senator RALSTON. It would be curious if the gentlemen who affect to shudder at the raising of the "religious issue" should unite upon the man whom the Indiana Ku Klux Klan believes it elected to the Senate.

THE RESERVE BANK'S RATE.

Wednesday's reduction of the New York Reserve Bank's official rediscount rate to 4 per cent., as against the 4½ per cent. which had been maintained since Feb. 21, 1923, would have attracted little attention but for the strange ideas which have existed regarding the policy which regulates or ought to regulate such changes. The case as it stood when the rate came down was reasonably clear. Trade, which had been abnormally active when the rate was raised from 4 to 4½ fourteen months ago, had slackened; demand for bank credit, whether for ordinary business purposes or for speculation, had been substantially reduced. Open market money rates in Wall Street, which were rising above the Reserve bank's rate in the early weeks of 1923, had fallen below the bank rate last week. These circumstances, taken in conjunction with a percentage of reserve to deposits and circulation which had reached at the New York bank the highest figure since 1917, made Wednesday's reduction largely a matter of routine.

Much of the recent discussion of the Reserve bank rate, however, has been based on two assumptions that have confused the question. Mr. KEYNES has insisted, somewhat vehemently, that the Reserve system ought to have shaped its rate policy in line with the large and continuing influx of gold; the argument apparently being that the rate should have been progressively reduced along with the large gold imports since the 4½ per cent. rate was fixed last year. Reasoning on different lines, Wall Street has occasionally criticized the New York bank for standing in the way of reviving prosperity by continuing a relatively high rate.

The answer to Mr. KEYNES'S argument is that the gold movement cannot of itself be a determining influence when the international gold market is governed by wholly abnormal influences. It is quite true that before the war the Bank of England always accepted the gold movement as one essential consideration in fixing the discount rate. This was done partly because of the rise or fall of the bank's "reserve ratio" which came with excessive gold imports or exports, but largely also with the purpose of moderating a persistent gold export from Great Britain. Advance of the bank rate under such conditions, if London's open money market followed, would mean that floating capital which had been drawn to foreign markets where a higher rate was paid for it would return to London. This would reverse the exchange market's movement and check the outflow of gold.

The Reserve Board itself explained, in its annual report, why this automatic process cannot operate today in America, as regards either higher or lower rates. With the United States "practically the only free gold market "in the world," the movement of gold to this country does not reflect the relative position of home and foreign money markets, "nor does the move-"ment give rise to corrective influ-"ences, working through exchanges, "money rates and price levels." Even the Bank of England, under present conditions of regulated gold exports and suspended gold payments, takes no account whatever of the gold movement in acting on its discount rate.

The force of the argument that a given rediscount rate should be lowered to promote prosperity depends on existing circumstances. To have maintained during 1923, when trade was beginning to revive and member banks were increasing their borrowings at the Federal Reserve, the 6 or 7 per cent. bank rate of 1921 would have been palpably unwise. The Reserve Board itself has said that "if in-"dustry and trade are in process of "recovery after a period of reaction, "they should be given support by the "prompt establishment at the Federal "Reserve banks of rates that will in-"vite the use of Federal Reserve "credit."

But 4 per cent. is the lowest bank rate that the discount market called for, even in 1922. It is the lowest rate that the Reserve banks have fixed at any time since the system was established in 1914, even when the "reserve ratio" stood far above the present figure in the early war years. That maintenance of the 4½ per cent. rate would have stood in the way of business revival, or that a lower rate would of itself promote such recovery, is extremely doubtful. The real and proper reason for Wednesday's reduction was that it brought the bank more closely in line with the general money market.

LOOKING FOR TROUBLE.

Mr. WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE, head of the Emporia School of Philosophy, is never happy, politically, save when he is miserable. He isn't satisfied with the Republican Party. It's too conservative for a life-long reformer and insurgent. He looks hopefully, so far as he condescends to hope, upon Mr. LA FOLLETTE. That irrepressible "could carry six or eight Northwestern States." That seems to be certain, so long as he doesn't try to carry them. Mr. WHITE yearns to give them to him, throw the election into Congress, have the House unable to elect, let the Senate elect the Vice President. This is a contingency that has worried, perhaps unnecessarily, a number of passionate lookers into the seeds of time. Nobody else, however, has practiced the art of haruspication with a millionth of Mr. WHITE'S genius:

> If Senator CAPPER were the Republican nominee—as he very well may be—and Senator COPELAND were the Democratic nominee, as likewise seems probable * * * the contest would still be extremely close and very interesting. * * * Possibly there may be a lot of trouble ahead.

Mr. WHITE'S disinterested love of trouble is affecting. No good man would voluntarily stint the pleasure of that ingenuous soul. Yet, isn't it a joyous, rather than a sombre, vision that he sees? The only trouble that it can cause to roll over any impartial breast is the difficulty of choice between two such statesmen. ARTHUR CAPPER is not only an eminent Kansas multi-journalist, but he is the foremost encourager, promoter and patron of the hogs of Kansas, an undying theme of Kansas literature. His Boys and Girls Pig Clubs are famous throughout the world. Dr. ROYAL COPELAND is not only one of our busiest bonus-builders. His name is treasured in millions of American homes, to which he has brought light and joy and health and the most valuable directions How and When to Wash the Baby.

So the seeker of trouble is the bringer of felicity. But where is Mr. WHITE'S State pride? Why did he forget Governor JONATHAN M. DAVIS, not only a friend of the farmer, but actually a farmer?

TROTSKY ON INTERNATIONAL ETIQUETTE.

The Soviet delegates now discussing recognition and finance with RAMSAY MACDONALD are not receiving the most effective support from the men at home. Whatever may be the glaring distinctions discovered by Senator BORAH between the Soviet Government and the Third International, there can be no explaining away of LEON TROTSKY as a member of the Soviet Government. It is he who has just declared that he does not think much of Britain's Labor Government on general principles; that MACDONALD is guilty of suppressing "the struggle for freedom in Afghanistan"; and that "we are going to help the Eastern "peoples shake off the yoke of for-"eign domination."

Such notice served on Great Britain in respect to India is not conducive to the best understanding among the London conferees. It is true that TROTSKY made use of the familiar Communist formula about opportune occasions and inopportune times. The Red Army will be held in leash when the outlook is unfavorable. It will be let loose when the chances for standing Europe on its head are promising. This doctrine may satisfy at Moscow, but is likely to raise doubts in London. Making peace and establishing trade relations with a Government which announces that it is going to take advantage of the first dark night is an arduous undertaking. As a matter of fact, the pace of negotiations at London has been deliberate. And the reason is that both sides want time. The Soviet delegates want time for the Moscow orators to tire themselves out and be forgotten. Mr. MACDONALD wants a little time to see just whom he has recognized.

For the British Government there is no great need of haste. MACDONALD'S recognition of the Soviet Government was dictated, in reality, less by actual necessity than by political considerations. The extremist faction of Labor had to be placated, especially since it was in for a heavy dose of disappointment on domestic policies. Sentiment among certain British manufacturers and traders had to be taken into the account. The rosy hopes for British commerce in Russia are, of course, a dream. But when trade is slack the merchant is unwilling to overlook any chance; and there were still the echoes of LLOYD GEORGE'S lyric discovery of Russia's fabulous treasures, the "bursting grain-bins," and such like. So Russia was recognized.

Once that step was taken, it was not to MACDONALD'S interest to rush his people up against the cold Russian realities. The slower the discussions with the Soviet delegates the better. And they will become more and more deliberate if Moscow continues to serve notice of what it will do in India and Afghanistan when the time seems "opportune."

THE SISTER OF THE "Y."

The gift of JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER Jr. to the Y. W. C. A. for the establishment of a retirement fund for secretaries is an intimation not only of the well-established life of this organization, but of confidence in its future. It is now one of our national institutions. The movement, which began in England in 1855, only a decade after the organization of the Y. M. C. A. by Sir GEORGE WILLIAMS, and led to a modest beginning in New York City in 1858 with the maintenance of a boarding house for young women, has grown to tremendous proportions and has encircled the earth. It was not until 1906 that its national organization in America was formed, but it now includes over 2,000 centres with a total membership of over half a million and a total of budgets amounting to more than $23,000,000—which is, incidentally, $10,000,000 less than the budget of the Police Department in New York City alone.

The great gathering of the representatives of the Y. W. C. A. this week in New York not only supports the claim that it is an American institution, but also brings to public attention the fact that this national organization has penetrated through its secretaries to the very ends of the earth. At the dinner on Wednesday night addresses were made not only by the Hon. Mrs. WALDEGRAVE, the world President, and others to whom English is a mother tongue, but by native delegates and workers in China, Japan, India, Scandinavia, Esthonia, Latvia, Germany and other parts of Europe and Asia. There are in all 153 American secretaries in Europe, the Orient and Latin America. They are real envoys of understanding. In such places as the Baltic States, for example, where three or four nationalities have mingled in relations none too friendly, they become helpful neutrals. Or, again, in such a city as Constantinople they have illustrated international-mindedness where it was least practiced. In India the mingling of Western women of highest culture with women of differing castes has had a wholesome influence. Everywhere the aim of the Y. W. C. A. has been to better the physical conditions under which native women work, to extend educational advantages and to provide recreational opportunities. One particular post-war service has been to assist in carrying on European student relief.

The work at home is known to every community. It proved itself a necessity during the war. But it has in the efficiency of this past service but demonstrated what it can do in the future. Factories, offices, stores, hospitals, the telephone system and public schools all depend on the American young woman. In her assuming this new community service there has been a transition from the home life. The Y. W. C. A. has come in the emergency as the embodied wisdom and sympathy of thousands of mothers and sisters to advise, to strengthen physically, to protect morally and encourage spiritually those who have undertaken such work not only for their own livelihood, but for society as a whole. To help maintain and extend the activities of this institution is the highest kind of patriotism and the noblest form of philanthropy.

STRENGTHENING THE NEW ORDER.

There is pertinent truth in the statement of one of the League's most ardent supporters, Dr. BENES, in The Nineteenth Century, that "in striving "after the consolidation of Europe "and its individual parts, and after "settling some questions left open by "the war, it * * * still is neces-"sary to make use of other instru-"ments and methods than those of the "League of Nations." The Foreign Minister of Czechoslovakia had in mind the treaty recently signed between his country and France, which, as he rightly pointed out, offers the means of stabilizing particular conditions not yet sufficiently protected by the machinery of the League. Its special reason is the common interest between France and Czechoslovakia in opposing the restoration of monarchy and imperialism in Central Europe—a thing which would have unfortunate consequences for both countries. In other words, it is simply a reinforcement of the existing system for preserving the political framework resting on the peace treaties. Inasmuch as Czechoslovakia is, politically and legally speaking, a child of these treaties, she has a very special interest in seeing them maintained.

Incidentally, Dr. BENES admits that his country would have liked a treaty between France and Britain. The failure to come to such an agreement was, in his opinion, partly responsible for the Franco-Czech treaty. Here again the underlying principle is that an Anglo-French entente would assure stabilization in Europe by discouraging the Germans from attempting steps to undermine the Versailles agreement. It does not follow that the treaty between France and the Czechs has taken the place of a Franco-British pact. The Czech treaty affects only a limited area. But it is a force for treaty fulfillment, and so helps in maintaining stability in Central Europe.

Agreements supplementary to the Dawes report will have to be made, as happened in the case of the Versailles Treaty and the League. Just as Dr. BENES foresees a day when the Franco-Czech treaty may be superfluous as a result of the strengthening of the League, so agreements supplementary to the Dawes plan may also gradually become obsolete. Until such a time, however, there is little left to do, as the Czech statesman indicates, but "to prepare by degrees the way for "the future, which can be done by "settling disputes by friendly agree-"ments, safeguarding the new order "of things in Europe by partial "treaties and employing the methods "of the League of Nations."

Lord GREY recently expressed similar sentiments in discussing the problem of security for France. No specific arrangement, said he, within or without the League, can cover every possible contingency. "It would be "necessary to proceed step by step, "solving the biggest difficulties first. "As Carlyle said: 'Do the duty that "'lies nearest, and the next will al-"'ready have become clearer.'" It is this problem which RAMSAY MACDONALD now faces in discussing the political corollaries of the Dawes plan.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Sentiment in Business.

It is for a reason seemingly quite different from the usual one for bequeathing a business to employes that the late GEORGE R. KENDALL decided that after his death the New York Bank Note Company should belong to Miss ETHEL GRAHAM ALLEN, who long had been its Treasurer and his private secretary. As he explained, his purpose was not to reward faithful and efficient service, though he stated that Miss ALLEN always had given that, but to carry on the company as a sort of monument to himself, which was something he greatly desired.

It is evident that he regarded the business as something more than an instrument or means of making money, and this feeling may have been the stronger because Mr. KENDALL had carried on a long and rather bitter fight with the Stock Exchange in the defense of his company from what he regarded as unwarranted discrimination. With the rights and the wrongs of that contest the public has little or no concern, but to Mr. KENDALL it had a sentimental as well as a financial interest, and he desired that the enterprise should fall, not into the hands of heirs unable to do more than sell or close it up, but into those of a woman who knew, he said in his will, even more than he did himself about its affairs—a woman whom he considered capable of doing in its behalf such further fighting as might be necessary.

This curious element of sentimentality in a form that ordinarily would not be called sentimentality at all sets this case apart from others, and they have been rather frequent of late, when the owner of a prosperous business has transferred it, either in his own lifetime or after his death, to a selected few among its employes to whom he thought its success was in largest part due.

Mr. KENDALL explicitly declared that his thought was not to pay Miss ALLEN for work done; it was to impose on her a task the performance of which was essential to his happiness while alive and—by implication—to his peaceful sleep after he was dead.

To make the episode the more remarkable, Mr. KENDALL'S natural heirs, with whom he was on the best of terms, express contentment with the disposition made by him of his property, and the chances are, therefore, that they shared his own feeling as to his business.

Accountancy Needs Supervision.

In modern business the profession of public accountancy has come to occupy a status in many respects analogous to that of law or medicine. Upon the character and the competence of its practitioners the public's safety in no small measure depends, for unless the reports of these examiners and judges of the account books submitted to them can be trusted, they become a ready means of deception and fraud.

These obvious facts lend importance to the hearing on the McGinniss bill which Governor SMITH is to give today. In several instances reports recently have been made that turned out, under judicial examination, to have been the reverse of trustworthy, and the losses incurred, at least in part, because of them were heavy.

The purpose of the McGinniss bill is to enable the investing public to discriminate between the legally certificated accountants and those who are incompetent or unscrupulous. The members of both groups at present are free to call themselves "public accountants" or "expert accountants," and the bill aims to do away with the existing confusion by enabling the Regents of the University of the State of New York to exercise what experience has shown to be a necessary amount of supervision over all who proffer such services.

The bill has had the approval of the Attorney General, the State Superintendent of Banks, the New York State Society of Certified Public Accountants, the President of the New York Bankers' Association, the New York Credit Men's Association, the Faculties of Columbia, New York University and the University of the State of New York, as well as of many financial institutions in the State, and of many individual bankers, business men and law firms.

They Do Play Mah Jong.

As seventeen Chinamen have been arrested here this week because the neighbors thought they were gambling with mah jong, it no longer can be denied that Chinese do play it. And at least a few people have had their doubts about that, never having seen the game mentioned in any of the many books they have read about China and the Chinese.

The implements of mah jong do have an Oriental look, of course, and so do the characters marked on them (except for the numerals), but the rules are of a complexity to marked disaccord with the long familiar games of Chinese gamblers, and it does seem strange that until very recently no writers and no tellers of travel experiences have had anything to say about this enormously elaborate product of somebody's misguided ingenuity.

Possibly, too, on the other hand, the arrested Chinese had merely fallen in with an Occidental craze, and were interested in the game only as are their new neighbors.

Yet China is not one country but many, and the Chinese not one people but at least a dozen whose relationship is not very close. One group of them in one province may have been devoted to mah jong under that or some other name for ages, though if so they must be lacking in the intelligence generally credited to their race, even by its enemies.

Names Don't Need to Be Right.

With the lament made by one of THE TIMES'S correspondents over the absurdity of the name "Muscle Shoals" there must be general sympathy on the part of anybody who gives the matter a little thought, and so realises how probable it is that "Muscle Shoals" is wrong and how probable it is that "Mussel" Shoals would be right. Mussels do live in rivers and they are especially numerous in just such places as those where the great new dam is turning rapids into deep water.

It probably is too late, now, to get rid of "Muscle Shoals." It has been printed so often that a change back to plain sense is hardly possible, and perhaps is not desirable. The name of a thing is whatever people agree to call it, and rightness and wrongness hardly enter into the question, though etymologists and other fussy people insist that they do.

Another and more ironical correspondent suggested the other day that, while giving the mountain near Seattle an Indian instead of an English name, the good work should have been completed by the elimination of all the thousands of English names with which the map of every State is peppered, beginning with those of this city and Boston. So consistency certainly would be served, but a good guesser could be quite sure that it never will be done.

STARVING AMID PLENTY.

Charity Organization Says Any Real Distress Can Be Relieved.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In THE TIMES there was a letter from one of our citizens, referring to the recent death of John Burns, "who died in the midst of plenty" from starvation, when hundreds of people, had they known, would have been glad to help him.

The writer is quite right. New York is not ungenerous, but New York is big and of necessity impersonal. The only kind of poverty that worries an organization like ours is this sort of "poverty that hides."

There are two things every conscientious citizen should keep in mind so as to eliminate the possibility of such tragedies as that of Mr. Burns. One is that there is a place open day and night at 105 East Twenty-second Street where people in distress of any kind may be sent to have a fair hearing and be helped out of their difficulties if it takes days or months to finally accomplish this. Sometimes a neighbor might faintly guess that such a man as Mr. Burns was in need, but, hesitating to take on the responsibility of such a person, this neighbor might hope he had guessed wrong and do nothing. The private citizen usually hasn't the time or the training for seeing such a situation through successfully, but he can and should send these persons to the place where they can be helped permanently out of their troubles.

The second thing the citizen should remember is that the temporary dole of money never solved any one's problems yet. They go too deep for such short cuts. Therefore, indiscriminate giving not only fails to accomplish what one would wish, but it also does much harm. New York's welfare work is so organized that no one need beg for money; but so long as coin-tossing from a busy public brings in more money than special training and a job, just so long will our streets and subways be lined with beggars. Some years ago the mendicancy squad of the police force cleared our streets of them, and among all the cases, each of which was given an individual hearing, there was found practically no need of alms begging. The majority, in fact, were doing a more thriving business than our honest workingmen.

The New York situation of today is a disgrace to us as a community. There are two don'ts, then, that we would urge on the public: Don't give indiscriminately! Don't pass trouble by! Use the organization which was created by New York citizens and is still maintained by them to meet New York's needs.

Duse's Associates Thank America.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the name of the entire personnel of the dramatic company supporting the beloved and lamented Signora Eleonora Duse in her farewell American tour, so tragically interrupted by the death of that distinguished artist, I wish to express our gratitude to all who have contributed so generously in rendering homage to our departed leader and more particularly to his Excellency Prince Caetani, the Italian Ambassador, and the consular authorities of Pittsburgh and New York.

STRANGERS.

My good man has no gypsy blood—
He's always lived in town.
He wants his four walls and a roof
When night comes thickly down.

He could not sleep beneath the stars,
Nor rest beneath a hedge;
He would not like to race the wind
Along the far hill's edge.

But I am of a different mind—
Why did he mate with me
Who love the wind, the rain, the sun,
To wander and be free?

We live together year by year;
He thinks he knows me well—
That I am fond of home and him—
Suppose that I should tell!

He thinks I'm quite respectable—
Suppose he knew that I
Have longed to lay me down to sleep
With no roof but the sky;

That I have grown to hate his house,
So tidy and so prim;
For I, who have a gypsy heart,
What kin am I to him?

Some morning he will wake alone;
And all his life he'll say,
"She had my love, she had my house,
Why should she go away?"

MURPHY'S POLITICAL IDEAL.

It Is Represented as the Honesty and Fearlessness of Gov. Smith.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In connection with your editorial "A Questionable Model," appearing in the April 28 issue, it is conceded that Mr. Murphy was the leader of the Democratic Party in New York for the past twenty-odd years. It is a well-known fact that the party during that time and under his leadership was repeatedly given the sanction of a majority of the people, both in the City of New York and at other times in the State of New York. It is fair to assume that the banner of democracy when so carried to victory reflected the ideals of its leader, and unless critics take the position that the majority of the people in the city and in the State at the times when they elected the nominees of the Democratic Party to office had a false and perverted sense of values, it must be concluded that the leadership of Charles F. Murphy back of these victories at least stood for and championed the things that the majority of the people had in mind.

Not only is this true as a matter of logic but it is true as a matter of fact; for when we come to measure the achievements of the Democratic Party in the city and the State of New York under Mr. Murphy's leadership with those of its rival, the Republican Party, I think most people will agree that the Democratic Party has ably held its own. Indeed, just at this time it would seem that the ideals of democracy held and expressed by an admitted protégé of Charles F. Murphy in the person of Governor Smith are of such a dignified and attractive character as to claim the attention of the entire country.

Perhaps few if any persons were as close to Charles F. Murphy and knew him as well as Al Smith. When, therefore, Al Smith speaks of Charles F. Murphy as he did in the tribute to Mr. Murphy which you criticized, may it not well be that he expressed in that tribute the power, aspirations and high ideals of the real man Charles F. Murphy as he knew them and not as you think you know them?

After all, we can best measure a man by his works rather than by his words. Of Charles F. Murphy the silent, the inarticulate, we know nothing; but Charles F. Murphy the leader of New York who, handicapped by a humble origin and meagre education, was able to free Tammany from the taint of its former leaders, and who achieved and expressed in Al Smith the logical standard bearer of democracy for the entire United States, is a figure who may well be "a lesson and example to the youth of our country."

Well may the spirit of Charles F. Murphy, gazing with unruffled calm over the political arena of Madison Square Garden a few months hence, answer his critics and traducers by pointing to Governor Alfred E. Smith and saying:

"There is the ideal of my creation. Through twenty-odd years of misunderstanding I molded him for democracy. He is young, honest, fearless and able. Above all, he stands for that Americanism which is of the common people and belongs to them. His is the kind of equalising democracy which has repeatedly restored the balance of power in this country and saved it from the dangers of a too well entrenched and privileged autocracy. Go nominate and elect Al Smith as your President. In him I speak!"

MEMORIALS FOR WAR DEAD.

Opportunity for the Living Is Urged Instead of Tributes in Stone.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Have we no better way to keep alive the memory of the gallant men who died in the World War than by erecting memorials in cold, dead stone, such as arches, shafts or buildings for religious or communal use?

If they could speak, which would they choose, these formal and lifeless memorials, or would they long to live in the memory of coming generations through new opportunities given to the growing soul of man, new and ever new life?

Why not use the money planned for these votive offerings to endow scholarships in our public high schools, freely to be contended for by boys and girls who are eager for new opportunities of deepening life? Scholarships for college or university, scholarships for the arts, for research, for travel, all these possibilities firing the young soul with new endeavor, enriching each generation.

When these scholarships, a "Soldiers' Memorial," are earned and presented, let them be given with words urging to high courage, to self-control, to self-surrender, to an idealism instinct with life.

They give no gift that bounds itself and ends
I' the giving and the taking, theirs so breeds
I' the heart and soul o' the takers, so trans-mutes
The man, who only was a man before,
That he grows godlike in his turn, can give—
He also;
Brings forth new good, new beauty from the old.

"The Chrysalis."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Knowing that THE TIMES never intends to give its readers incorrect impressions, I want to call your attention to part of a headline appearing in this morning's edition on a story about the unveiling of Carl Akeley's statue "The Chrysalis." This reads, in part: "Unveiling of his bronze ape, in church."

These words give an erroneous impression of the propriety of having the statue in the church. Mr. Akeley's statue is not that of an ape, but of a man emerging from, and rising above, his animal ancestry, into the human form for which the great Creator ultimately intended him. A Unitarian Church is a fitting place for this beautiful statue, which is symbolic of one of the cardinal beliefs of Unitarianism, namely faith in the "continuous progress of mankind onward and upward forever," a faith which sees God as the Master Workman, of far vision and careful plan.

Coolidge and the Cabinet.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The President, in his address at The Associated Press luncheon, referring to the official corruption at Washington, said:

"A few public officers were guilty participants; but the wonder was not that this was so much or so many—rather that it has been so little and so few."

And thus the President congratulates the country because there were dismissed in disgrace only three of the members of a Cabinet composed of the ten "best minds" in America.

Can it be that the President means that five or six members of the Cabinet should be considered as the average expectancy of crooks in a "normalcy" Republican Cabinet constructed for "great business efficiency"?

MOSES GREENWOOD.

"GRAVE CONSEQUENCES."

Results of Japanese Exclusion Serious in a Number of Ways.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Encouraged by your stand against our Senate's action relative to Japanese exclusion, having spent over twenty years as a resident of Tokio, I wish to express my sentiments.

Ambassador Hanihara has explained the words "grave consequences" just as any one who understands Japanese character would understand them. One must be very simple-minded to think that a very intelligent, courteous and sagacious people like the Japanese would warn in advance. The words are simply an "honest-to-goodness" summing up of lamentable reactions against American friendship all over Japan, which will occur if our President endorses Congressional action.

The question is not of interfering in our internal affairs. It is not even of maintaining the gentlemen's agreement. Premier Kiyoura has said: "We were willing to accept only a nominal privilege." The question is that of courteous and fair dealing. The gentlemen's agreement was sealed by President Roosevelt and, from Japan's point of view, it was a treaty. It was more than "a scrap of paper." Japan looked upon it as a sacred and much-prized instrument. I know personally how laboriously and carefully they looked into the history and character of every Japanese whom they approved to sail away under its provisions. By agreement the "picture bride" concession was yielded by Japan. Any other alterations certainly could have been made by conference and compromise. But the Senate in undignified haste has not only scrapped the gentlemen's agreement, but has announced that no Japanese shall immigrate.

It was just seventy years ago that a very tactful American with seven black ships, already having waited a full year since a former visit, secured an agreement by which Japan opened her doors and came out from her more than two-century-old hole of seclusion. We diplomatically pried open the door when they wanted to keep it shut. Our insistence threw the country into a turmoil, there were assassinations, bitter rivalries and debates, ending in the revolution which restored the Emperor in 1867. Let us remember who it was who anchored off Yokohama in 1854 and was responsible for all this quickening change. Then to please our sugar planters in Hawaii several thousand Japanese left their homes to make wealthy Americans more prosperous. Japan is an Oriental gentleman whom we have introduced to the modern world. Let Americans not be too discourteous to him.

If we wanted to annoy, discourage and hinder the thousands of Americans all over the Orient, there is no surer method than to insult the Japanese nation. If these Americans can live and be happy with millions of Orientals around them, shall we risk their peace and comfort and declare that 146 Japanese coming annually to our shores are intolerable?

Japan during these seventy years has been watching us carefully. We have had a helpful influence over her. Our ideals have been felt in home, school, press and government. In Japan no foreigners are honored and respected more than George Washington and Abraham Lincoln. Townsend Harris set the pace decades ago for patient, honest and courteous diplomatic dealings. Verbeck was their inspiration educationally and the founder of their first university. Secretary Seward was their first foreign guest of distinction. General Grant on his world tour stiffened them to stand against the European clamor that they should not increase their import taxes.

Japan has but recently withdrawn from Shantung and the maritime provinces and largely to please us Americans and calm our fears. Out of friendship for us Japan has given up the English alliance. She did this to make the Washington conference a success. In view of these things, can they be blamed if some are confused and others hurt? Can we blame them if they look upon us henceforth as an unfriendly people?

Our President said at The Associated Press luncheon in New York: "After all the main support of peace is understanding. It is a matter of accurate information by one Government and one people about other Governments and other peoples." It is difficult for us practical, driving, rushing, brusque, money-making Americans to understand the Japanese. They are aesthetical, they stand on proprieties. The miniature landscape in the poor man's yard is more important to him than an eight-cylinder auto. They quickly sense and resent anything that is rude. In Japan, years ago, an ex-Vice Home Minister gave the deed while he refused to accept my note for a balance of a number of thousands due him on property which had already been taken over for a corporation I represented. To his Japanese mind for him to handle a note would have been discourteous.

It will not yield good dividends to gamble on future issues and deal with a drastic and an uncompromising hand on this immigration issue. It will not work toward world peace. No American and no Japanese asks that the bars be let down at the Golden Gate. With all our fears of Soviet Russia, I am just wondering if the laugh will not be on us if our Senate's action stands while the Communist of Russia invites the capable millions of Imperial Japan, whom our Senate has blackballed.

Dehles He is a Pacifist.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In THE NEW YORK TIMES of April 24, this headline appears on page 10: "Pacifist Denounced by Fellow Rector." Then you proceed to quote from a letter which I wrote to the National Civic Federation, to explain why I could not sign the anti-war pledge which appears in Kirby Page's book, "War: Its Cause, Consequences and Cure."

I object to the headline, on the ground that it calls me a pacifist. If you mean by a pacifist one who does not like war, then of course we are all pacifists, especially all who took part in the late "war to end war." I had supposed that a pacifist was one who believed that war was never just under any circumstances. I expressly said in my letter that I believed in wars for national defense. Therefore I am not a pacifist.

SELDEN PEABODY DELANY.
New York City, April 24, 1924.

Not in the Same Church Party.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the issue of your paper of April 24, in reference to the peace-pledge letter of Dr. Delany, your correspondent refers to me as belonging to the same party within the Church as Dr. Delany. I was glad to see myself as others see me, especially as I have never been able to classify myself as anything but just a plain churchman.

Perhaps your correspondent threw in that information just to make the incident a little more piquant; if so, he is forgiven. The fact is, however, that, whatever points of difference there may be in the churchmanship of my dear friend Dr. Delany and myself, on this I am sure we are both agreed that we do not belong to the same party.

REV. CLIFFORD P. GRANT.
New York City, April 24, 1924.

MRS. ALICE A. BLOCK TO WED E. J. KOHLER

She Will Marry the Son of the Honorary Rabbi of Temple Beth-El.

MISS BENNET TO BE BRIDE

Her Mother Cables From Mentone, France, Announcing Engagement to Englishman.

The engagement has been announced of Mrs. Alice Austrian Block of 29 West Eighty-fifth Street to Edgar J. Kohler, son of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. K. Kohler, of 2 West Eighty-eighth Street. Mrs. Block is the widow of Henry Block. She is a member of the Board of Directors of the Adoption Committee of the Free Synagogue, of the Home for Hebrew Infants, and of the Women's Summer Auxiliary of the Monmouth Memorial Hospital.

During the World War Mrs. Block was active in Red Cross and canteen work. Mr. Kohler's father is Honorary Rabbi of Temple Beth-El of New York and President Emeritus of the Hebrew Union College of Cincinnati. Mr. Kohler is a lawyer of this city and a member of the Bar Association and of the Harmonie, Civic, Century, and Bungalow Island clubs and a director of the Jewish Board of Guardians.

Abbott—Bennet.

Mrs. Henry Bennet, formerly of 821 Park Avenue, who has been living in Mentone, France, for two years, cabled yesterday from Paris to New York relatives to announce the engagement of her daughter, Miss Aima Bennet, to Laurence F. Abbott of London, England. Owing to the recent death of Miss Bennet's father her marriage to Mr. Abbott, which will take place this month in Paris, will be simple. Miss Bennet during the World War was a member of the Red Cross Motor Corps of New York. She is the sister of W. H. Bennet of this city.

Joseloff—Leiterman.

Mr. and Mrs. Moris Leiterman of 500 West 140th Street last night announced the engagement of their daughter Lillian to Morris Joseloff of Waterbury, Conn., and this city. Mr. Joseloff is head of the Academy Grocery Company, which operates a chain of stores in New England. Miss Leiterman is a graduate of the School of Pharmacy, Columbia University, and is the donor of the Leiterman medal for scholarship awarded annually in that school. She was the first woman delegate to the New York and New Jersey conventions of the New York State Pharmaceutical Society.

Bruggmann-Wallace.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—The engagement was announced today of Miss Mary Wallace, daughter of Secretary Wallace and Mrs. Wallace, to Dr. Charles Bruggmann, First Secretary of the Swiss Legation in Paris.

Dr. Bruggmann was First Secretary of the Swiss Legation in Washington for three years, having been transferred to Paris a year ago. The marriage will take place May 14.

MISS JULIET BRANHAM WED.

She Is the Bride of Charles Sumner Williams Jr.

IZAAK WALTON HOME OPENED TO TOURISTS

Lord Stafford Hopes Americans Will Visit Angler's Cottage They Helped to Restore.

STAFFORD, England, May 1.—Izaak Walton's cottage at Shallowford, near here, restored largely through American efforts, has been opened to the public by Lord Stafford.

The cottage now bears a memorial tablet to the late Julien Tappan Davies, who headed the movement to purchase and rehabilitate the cottage once occupied by the great devotee of the art of angling.

In the simple ceremony of opening the cottage, Lord Stafford said he hoped it would become a place of pilgrimage for visitors from overseas. More than half the cost of the restoration was assumed by Americans and Australians.

THOUSANDS IN LAST TRIBUTE TO DUSE

Great Throng at Church as Funeral Services Are Held for Italian Actress.

BODY ON SHIP BOUND HOME

Black-Shirted Fascisti Among Mourners as Procession Passes in Central Park.

The body of Eleonora Duse, the Italian tragedienne, is at sea on the way home after New York, with all the ceremony of the Roman Catholic Church and a public funeral procession, paid a final tribute to her memory.

It was a typical metropolitan crowd which early yesterday morning gathered outside the Church of St. Vincent Ferrer, 869 Lexington Avenue, many hours before the requiem mass was due to be celebrated, Italian-Americans sent large contingents to say farewell to their countrywoman.

When, at 8 o'clock, the doors of the church were shut to keep out a throng of women who clamored and struggled for entrance, 10,000 had gathered in the neighborhood of Lexington Avenue and Sixty-sixth Street, 100 police reserves were called out to keep order. A crowd of equal size had likewise commenced to assemble along the Seventy-second Street entrance to Central Park and the Mall, where the funeral cortege was due to pass at midday.

Inside the church Prince Gelasio Caetani, the Italian Ambassador, and the Italian Consul General, Ubaldi Recchiro, supervised the final arrangements for the service. Under their care banks of wreaths were arranged about the bier. The offering of King Vittorio Emmanuele, lilies and white roses bound with a ribbon of regal purple, was placed on the top of the casket. By its side was a bouquet from Premier Mussolini, with the inscription, "To Italy's First Daughter."

Notables at the Service.

Thirty minutes before the mass the doors were again swung open to admit the ticket-holders. Men and women of all creeds and nationalities filed reverently in. There were representatives from The Players, The Lambs, the Dante League of America, Inc., the Catholic Actors' Guild, the Actors' Fund, the National Vaudeville Artists, the Thespians, and practically every Italian local and national organization.

In the front pews were Prince and Princess Francesco Ruspiglioni, Robert Underwood Johnson, former American Ambassador to Italy; Princess Santa Borghese, Countess Irene de Robilant, Mrs. Paul D. Cravath, Mr. and Mrs. Otto H. Kahn, Morris Gest, who brought the tragedienne to this country on her farewell tour; Eva Le Gallienne, Mrs. William Guggenheim and Dr. Francesco Magliocco, the composer.

The service was conducted by Dr. W. G. Morgan, prior of the Dominicans and the pastor of the church. He was assisted by Dr. W. L. Whalen, deacon, and the Rev. Philip Robotti, subdeacon. The Rev. Edward Hughes was master of ceremonies.

As the priests entered the mass the strains of Pierre Yon's funeral song flooded the building and the chant was taken up by Giovanni Martinelli of the Metropolitan Opera. In a minor key the boys' choir under the direction of Professor Constantius Yon joined in the theme.

From the cloistered galleries above white-robed sisters of the Catholic Church looked down on the flag-draped coffin. Breathing prayers and making the sign of the cross they took an unofficial part in the service.

After the choir had sung the "Liberia," a quartet took up the "Dies Irae." Then Martinelli sang the Benedictus, which holy water was sprinkled on the casket.

After final benediction from Father Morgan the church service was over. The congregation streamed out of the church. From the side door of the church was borne to the waiting hearse. With it were six officers from the Italian Embassy as honorary pallbearers. As the coffin was placed in the hearse three choir boys stood at attention. One carried a silver crucifix and the others lighted candles. At that moment the two candles flickered, a puff of wind caught them and they went out.

Huge Crowd at the Church.

While the services had been in progress the crowds outside the church had grown until the police were taxed to keep order. Several hundred surrounded the cortège and impeded its progress.

Every foot of the way from the church to the foot of Fifty-eighth Street, where the Italian steamship Duilio awaited, was lined with mourning Italians and Americans.

As the procession came to the slope of the Mall in Central Park there was a pause for three minutes. Here had assembled a group of the Italian Fascisti in America, carrying their own, Italian and American standards. Black-shirted youths flaunted black streamers in the wind, as a symbol of mourning.

The flags were dipped. The young Italians with arms outstretched in salute downward and with bowed heads gave the Fascisti salute to the dead. Then Private James Cashin of the 165th Infantry shouted "Taps." All stood with bared heads in silent tribute for two minutes. Women and children strewed the road with white carnations and roses.

Mingled with the crowd were squads of Italian Bersaglieri and Arditi, the former crowned with flowing black plumes, the latter with white. They came to the salute as the notes of the last post rang out.

Movie Men Are Denied.

At the pier the casket was taken from the hearse and raised by ropes to the deck of the Duilio. One incident marked this action. Motion picture cameramen, who had taken pictures inside the church with the permission of the Roman Catholic authorities and along the way, were halted by the Italian Ambassador with the following words: "I think it is disrespectful of you to want to take pictures here. You have had every opportunity to take pictures before this, and I think you should not do so here."

As the coffin was being swung upward two priests completed the ceremonies of the Catholic Church here with a final blessing and benediction.

In the small group of intimate friends who were at the pier was noticed Lady Catherine Onslow, the actress's companion for twenty years. She was reported as having disappeared owing to the fact that she had not been consulted about the funeral arrangements. She was also present at the church, it was learned.

Guard Over Coffin on Ship.

The massive oaken box forming an outer cover for the casket within was lowered to a special compartment on the liner. The coffin, for its sea journey, lay buried beneath two huge wreaths, Premier Mussolini's being now placed by the side of that of the Italian King and Queen's. At the head of the bier was a column of white roses, at the feet two bronze wreaths—one from the Fascisti of New York, the other from the Italian actors of this city. Close to the bier was a large wreath of palms, from the Italian troupe which accompanied the tragedienne to America and which returns to Italy with her body.

The Duilio sailed at 6 P. M. and every effort was made to conclude the arrangements before the first passengers arrived.

When the guests had left, a ship's officer was placed at the iron stairway leading down to the funeral quarters. Entrance was forbidden to those who wished to survey the scene. All the way to Italy a guard will be at the entrance. Tapers will burn continually, a large box of ornamented candles being placed there for this purpose.

Her body will be conveyed to Naples and from there to Rome. At the Italian capital it will lie in state and then will be born to the highlands of Trentino, where, in the picturesque village of Asolo, it will be finally laid to rest.

SAYS HAMON WANTED SON TO BE PRESIDENT

His Widow Discloses Late Politician's Ambitions as He Told Them to Her.

CHICAGO, May 1.—The ambition of Jake Hamon, Oklahoma politician and oil man, was not to be Secretary of the Interior. It was to make his son, Jake Jr., President of the United States, according to Mr. Hamon's widow, who returned today from Washington, where she was summoned to testify before the Teapot Dome investigation committee and then was not asked to take the witness chair.

"He wanted to be nothing else but Chairman of the Republican National Committee," Mrs. Hamon said.

"'I'll get it and I'll hold it for years, until Jake Jr. is old enough to take it over,' he told me," she said. "'Then I'll make him Chairman in my place and let him hold it until he is wise enough and old enough, and when that time comes I'll make Jake Jr. President—the youngest President of the United States.'"

Hamon swung his support from former Governor Lowden of Illinois to Warren G. Harding in the 1920 Republican Convention at her request, Mrs. Hamon said. Mr. Harding, she explained, was a distant relative of her family. Then the widow, who was married to a Chicago man and divorced since Mr. Hamon's death, paid a tribute to the dead man.

"I want to be known by his name; I shall have no other. I shall henceforth be known always as Mrs. Jake Hamon."

HARVARD AWARDS PRIZES.

Men From Massachusetts, New York and Michigan Are Honored.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 1.—Russell S. Hubbard Jr., '24, of Milton, Mass., has been nominated by the President and Fellows of Harvard College for the Charles Fiske 3d scholarship for study at Trinity College, Cambridge University. Hubbard came to Harvard from St. George's School in Rhode Island. He has been active in the Glee Club and was a substitute tackle on the varsity football team last Fall.

The award of the scholarship is in the hands of the Council of Trinity College following such nomination. It was established in 1919 in memory of Lieutenant Charles H. Fiske 3d, Harvard '19, who died of wounds received in action in France in August, 1918.

Harold G. Ships of Grosse Pointe Park, Michigan, a freshman, has been awarded the Harvard Club of Michigan scholarship and Elbert A. Sanford, '26, of Rochester, N. Y., the Rochester Club Scholarship.

EXPLORES ALASKAN WILDS.

Geological Survey Discovers Passes and Headwaters of Rivers.

WASHINGTON, May 1. — Passes through the mountains into the northern Arctic drainage and location of the headwaters of rivers in the Northern Alaskan wilderness embraced within Naval Petroleum Reserve No. 4 have been discovered by the Geological Survey party exploring that territory.

A telegram from Dr. Philip S. Smith, in charge of the expedition, which left the northern outpost of Alaska at Tanana on Feb. 17, has just been received by the Interior Department, having been relayed by team drivers. The message, which was dated March 29, says the party planned to descend from the headquarters of newly located rivers in canoes when the ice breaks up.

On the date of the message, the party was exploring the region near the northern limit of timber north of the Arctic Mountains and extending their surveys down the Colville River.

HEADS WILSON FOUNDATION

Norman H. Davis Is Elected President—To Select Jury Soon.

Norman H. Davis was elected President of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation at a meeting yesterday at the home of Franklin D. Roosevelt, 49 East Sixty-fifth Street. Mr. Davis, Professor William Scott of Princeton and George W. Norris of Philadelphia were elected trustees. Miss Mary Woolley, President of Mount Holyoke College, and General Tasker H. Bliss were elected Vice Presidents. Mrs. Charles L. Tiffany was re-elected Secretary.

Mr. Roosevelt said that steps would be taken to complete the jury of award to decide the prize to be given on Dec. 28, Mr. Wilson's birthday. This prize is to go to the person adjudged to have performed the most meritorious public service during the preceding year. The foundation's fund now amounts to about $730,000 and it is expected that $25,000 will be available for the award.

HONDURAN FACTIONS AGREE.

General Tosta Is Chosen for Provisional President.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—A preliminary agreement has been signed between the disputing factions in Honduras whereby General Vicente Tosta was selected to be provisional President of the republic, Sumner Welles, Special Commissioner of the United States, reported to the State Department today from Amapala.

It is stated that General Tosta was apparently selected through agreement of all the various elements of sufficient power to warrant consideration, and that there is nothing to indicate that a split will result between adherents of Dr. Davila and General Tosta.

SAN SALVADOR, May 1 (Associated Press).—The fighting which culminated in the capture of Tegucigalpa, capital of Honduras, by the revolutionary forces lasted twelve hours with many dead and wounded on both sides.

6,000 MINERS QUIT STRIKE.

10,000 Are Still Out in Pennsylvania—22,000 Threaten to Join Them.

SCRANTON, Pa., May 1.—Three of the twelve anthracite collieries tied up yesterday by a strike of 16,000 employes of the Glen Alden Coal Company resumed operations today. More than 10,000 men, however, still are idle.

District union leaders expect that more collieries will start work tomorrow and that by Saturday the strike will have ended. A number of local unions have called meetings for tonight for the purpose of taking a vote to return to work.

While President Cappellini's assistants were endeavoring to end the Glen Alden tie-up, another strike of 22,000 employes of the Hudson Coal Company threatened. The General Grievance Committee of the Hudson Company will meet here Saturday to take a strike vote because of the alleged failure of the company to adjust long-pending grievances.

Tokio for New Arms Conference.

TOKIO, May 1.—Authorization voted by the United States Senate to permit President Coolidge to call a second arms conference was welcomed generally in Tokio. Naval officials in guarded statements reaffirmed Japan's readiness to cooperate in further efforts toward navy limitations. The press urges fullest cooperation by Japanese in this connection, but see a serious obstacle in the French attitude.

Two More Pall Mall Club Dances.

Two additional dances will be given by the Pall Mall Supper Club this season, the first of which will be held tomorrow night and the second on Saturday night of next week, at the Hotel Lorraine. At the dance next week the entertainment will be under the direction of Miss Frances McCann.

H. M. BYLLESBY DIES IN DENTIST'S OFFICE

Prominent Chicago Engineer Succumbs Suddenly to Heart Attack at 65 Years.

ONCE WORKED WITH EDISON

During the War He Was Purchasing Agent in London for the the A. E. F.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 1.—Henry Malison Byllesby, head of the bond and engineering house bearing his name, nationally known promoter of public utilities and onetime co-experimenter in electricity with Thomas A. Edison, died suddenly this afternoon of heart disease.

Mr. Byllesby was stricken in the offices of Dr. William H. Logan, his dentist, at 29 East Madison Street. With him at the time was his nurse, Miss Mary W. Kindigh who, with Dr. Logan, placed him on a couch when he said he felt weak, and called a heart specialist. But when the latter arrived Mr. Byllesby was dead. He had been afflicted with heart disease for many years.

Mr. Byllesby was 65 years old. He had no children and is survived only by his widow, who was Margaret Stearns Baldwin of Roselle, N. J. Mrs. Byllesby was at their Chicago residence at the Drake Hotel when informed of the death.

In addition to being President of H. M. Byllesby & Co., Mr. Byllesby was an officer and director in a number of public utilities companies all over the United States, principally gas and electrical companies.

He served during the war, despite his age of 60 years, as General Purchasing Agent for the A. E. F. In this capacity he was stationed at London. When he was discharged in 1918 he was awarded the Distinguished Service Order by the British Government, and later he received the American Distinguished Service Medal.

He was a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and the Union League and University Clubs of Chicago.

FRANK PLUMLEY.

International Lawyer and Vermont Political Leader Dies at 79.

NORTHFIELD, Vt., May 1.—Frank Plumley, former Congressman, international lawyer and Vermont political leader, died at his home here last night at age of 79. He had been in failing health since January. Mr. Plumley gained international note as umpire of the Mixed Claims Commission to adjust the differences of Great Britain and Venezuela and Holland and Venezuela at Caracas in 1903, and later as umpire of the French Venezuela Commission in 1905.

Mr. Plumley was a member of Congress from the Second Vermont District from 1909 to 1915. He was delegate from the United States to the Interparliamentary Convention at Geneva in 1913, had held a seat in both branches of the State Legislature, and was United States Attorney for Vermont from 1899 to 1904.

He was delegate-at-large to the National Republican Convention in 1888 and Chairman of the Republican State Convention in 1896. He was born in Northfield, and studied law at the University of Michigan.

Mr. Plumley was lecturer on international law at Norwich University, of which he was Trustee and Vice President. His son, Charles A. Plumley, is President of the university.

'FATHER' OF YALE BOWL DIES

Evarard Thompson Stricken by Heart Disease on Way to Japan.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 1.—Evarard Thompson of New Haven, Conn., "father" of the Yale Bowl and of the Sheepshead Bay Speedway, died here today of heart disease superinduced by pernicious asthma. He arrived in San Francisco last Tuesday and was to have sailed next Tuesday for Japan. He was taken ill in Chicago two weeks ago but continued his trip west. Mrs. Thompson, his widow, will depart for New Haven, Conn., with the body tomorrow.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 1.—Evarard Thompson conceived the idea of building the Yale Bowl, which now stands as a monument to his farsightedness. The old Yale football grounds, in the opinion of Mr. Thompson, were far too small to handle the crowds and he proposed to construct an arena that would seat 80,000. The bowl now is inadequate to accommodate the spectators.

JOSEPH P. McCARTHY.

Democratic Politician Was Secretary to City Judge La Fetra.

Joseph P. McCarthy, secretary to City Judge Edward B. La Fetra, died at noon yesterday in New York Hospital, following an operation for gallstones. Mr. McCarthy, a brother of Deputy Register Michael J. McCarthy, was well known in Democratic circles on the west side. He was born forty-eight years ago, in County Limerick, Ireland, and is survived by his widow, Mrs. Agnes Fitzmaurice McCarthy, and several children.

The body was taken to the home of his brother at 453 West Forty-third Street. Requiem mass will be celebrated tomorrow morning at St. Michael's R. C. Church, on West Thirty-fourth Street. Interment will be in Calvary Cemetery.

BRIG. GEN. LITTELL.

Had Charge of Constructing Cantonments During the War.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Brig. Gen. Isaac W. Littell, retired, died here today after a short illness. During the war he was in charge of construction of cantonments and National Guard camps.

General Littell was born in Elizabeth, N. J., in 1857 and graduated at West Point in 1883. The last twenty years of service he spent in the Quartermaster's Corps, of which he was made a Brigadier General in October, 1917, retiring from the army the following February. Since then he had been Secretary and Treasurer of the Soldiers' Home in Washington. He was married in 1885 to Miss Julia Barrett, daughter of Captain Gregory Barrett, U. S. A.

HYLAN TO GET PEACE YIELDS TO CRAIG

Consents to Put Over Sinking Fund Action Objected To by Controller.

FOR HARMONY AT ANY COST

"We Will Acquiesce to the Whims of the Controller Hereafter," He Says.

After Mayor Hylan and Controller Craig had indulged in personalities at yesterday's meeting of the Sinking Fund Commission and it appeared that the proceedings would not be different from those that have taken place for the past year, the Mayor announced a change of policy. He said he would go to any limits in the future to promote peace and harmony.

"I decline to vote on the resolutions before us until they have been read by the secretary," said Controller Craig when the meeting began. "I have not seen them and cannot tell what traps their phraseology may conceal. Anyhow, they are full of illegalities."

"Evidently the Controller is trying to embarrass the Sinking Fund Commission to a point where it cannot act," commented the Mayor. "We will acquiesce to the whims of the Controller hereafter. I move that all matters on the calendar for adoption be put over two weeks, including those we have just passed over the Controller's opposition, so that all resolutions may be sent to the Controller for his consideration and report. I will go to any limits to secure peace and harmony."

"It's impossible," broke in Chamberlain Philip Berolzheimer who has had frequent clashes with Mr. Craig.

"I know it's impossible," said the Mayor, "but he'll see that we will do anything to secure his cooperation so that the work of this commission can go on."

In accordance with the Mayor's decision most of the items on the calendar were put over from two weeks to a month and the Secretary was instructed to prepare hereafter copies of all resolutions for adoption for delivery to all members of the commission at least two weeks before the meeting.

"This is only what you should have done a long time ago," was the Controller's parting shot at the Mayor.

If we had a store on Fifth Avenue—

If we packed our celebrated chocolates in lace-lined boxes—

If we had an elaborate shop on the Avenue; if we packed our delicious Gotham-made Chocolates in fancy, enameled, lace-lined, frilly useless boxes that cost as much as 25c each, then we could not afford to sell our chocolates for the low price of $1 for 2 lbs., with postage paid. But we don't! We sell our chocolates direct to the consumer thru the mails. And we pack them in a modest, inexpensive box. This means that those two items, which often increase the cost of chocolates to you by 50% or more and which do not improve the taste or the quality of the chocolates, are eliminated!

If you like chewy caramels—toffees—cocoanut royals—peanut squares—Brazil nuts—nougatines—marshmallows—croquettes—dates—French centers—figolets—peppermints—raisin clusters—solid chocolates—pineapple fruits—almonds—pineapple, Italian, maple, walnut, coffee, cocoanut and strawberry creams—all covered with rich, not-too-sweet luscious chocolate, then we want you to try our chocolates on approval.

If you know anything about good chocolates, you will agree with the thousands and thousands of our satisfied patrons that Gotham Exquisite Chocolates are as fine, as tasty and as well assorted, as pure and fresh—even fresher than any chocolates you've ever tasted at even twice or more the price we ask—2 lbs. for $1.

If you think our proposition a fair one and our guarantee liberal and four-square, we want you to pin a dollar bill or your personal check to this ad. Write your name and address plainly on the margin of this ad and mail it at once. We will send you, postpaid,* a full, freshly packed, 2 lb. box of Gotham Exquisite Chocolates. Eat a full pound—either layer—and if, for any reason whatsoever, you are not satisfied, return what is left and we'll refund your money at once. You be judge and jury!

If you think it's impossible to sell good, pure, tasty chocolates at our price—2 lbs. for $1—we want you to send in a dollar on an absolute money-back guarantee and try a box of Gotham-made chocolates. We want you to eat as much as a pound—either layer—and to test them for freshness, flavor, chocolate quality and purity and assortment, and if they are not satisfactory in every respect, return what is left and we'll refund you full purchase price immediately. Don't take our word for it! You've been told for many years that good chocolates must cost at least a dollar a pound. We will prove to your entire satisfaction that this is the worst kind of "bunk."

If you are one of the many thousands of readers of this newspaper who have already bought a box of our chocolates—we want you to send us $5 or $10 and we will send you a 2 lb. package at $1 per package every week (or as often as you wish) as long as the money lasts. Thus you can save yourself time and trouble in chocolate buying. You can now afford to let your children eat as much as they want of these pure, fresh chocolates.

If you know anything about merchandising you will understand the logic of our business. We cut out all retail rents and sales overhead; we eliminate fancy, expensive packages; we specialize on just one package which we make as well as chocolates can be made; and sell direct to the consumer by mail with all postage paid,* instead of thru several intermediate, profit-making, useless middlemen.

*If you live more than 300 miles from New York add 25c—stamps or coin—for extra packing and postage.

Cushions the Truck Cushions the Load

This Firestone MAXI-CUSHION Truck Tire is one of several specialized types we recommend and sell.

The unusually tough, elastic rubber compound, the generous depth and scientific design of the MAXI-CUSHION assure not only long mileage and low upkeep, but the greatest cushioning qualities.

A most responsive tire: Light trucks, buses, speedwagons can make fast time with the MAXI-CUSHION because it protects both the truck and the load against shocks and vibrations from pounding of the road.

As Firestone Truck Tire Service Dealers, we are truck haulage experts. We have the experience to advise you and the stock to equip you promptly with correct tires for every road, load and condition of service.

Our special study of local haulage conditions places us in a preferred position to render efficient, economical service to truck owners. It is our business to reduce operating costs for all sorts of trucking enterprises.

Let us discuss your trucking problems and offer recommendations which will make your truck transportation units more efficient and save you money.

Laura Spelman Fund Assumes Liability of the Secretarial Retirement Plan.

OTHER LARGE DONATIONS

Payne Whitney Contributes $100,000, and Debt Is Cut to $163,000.

URGE THAT WE JOIN LEAGUE

Delegates to Convention Cheer Resolution Pledging Members to Seek This Nation's Entry.

Delegates to the eighth national convention of the Young Women's Christian Association, at the Hotel Commodore, yesterday adopted a proposed amendment to the constitutional radically affecting the system of selecting convention delegates, cheered a resolution advocating the entrance of the United States into the League of Nations, learned in one breath that they were in debt to the extent of $502,000 and in the next that it had been reduced by two gifts to $163,000, accepted an offer from the Laura Spelman Fund of the Rockefeller Foundation to cover the accumulated liability of the secretarial retirement fund and ended the day's program with a reception last night at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, where they were the guests of the trustees of the museum.

The proposed amendment passed the convention by the necessary two-thirds vote but does not become operative unless it passes next year's convention by the same vote. The resolution on the League was referred to a committee and will not be acted upon until later. One of the gifts, it was learned, was $100,000 from Payne Whitney, while the secretarial retirement deficit will be more than $1,000,000 and probably nearer $2,000,000. Resolutions of appreciation to both John D. Rockefeller Sr. and Mr. Whitney were adopted.

Changes in Constitution.

The only discussion from the floor was on the subject of changes to the constitution. These were read by Mrs. Robert L. Dickinson, Chairman of the committee that had the matter in hand, and those of less importance were adopted without a dissenting voice. At present delegates to the national convention are chosen on a basis of membership. The proposed change, as originally presented, suggested that there be one delegate for every hundred voting members, until the representation reaches five. Above that it was suggested that there should be an additional delegate for each additional 200 voting members until the representation reaches ten. Those having more than 1,500 voting members should be entitled to one additional delegate for every 500 voting members until the representation reaches fifteen and no member association should have more than fifteen delegates.

"The reasons for these proposals," Mrs. Dickinson said, "are that a large convention is unwieldy and thorough discussion of any topic very difficult."

Instant objection came from the large cities, for the proposal meant that while a small association with 500 voting members would have five delegates a large city with many branches would have no more than fifteen delegates. New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Boston and San Francisco at once protested. Delegates from this city pointed out that New York now had 107 delegates but under the amendment she could not have more than the maximum of fifteen. So many interests were concerned in a city of this size, it was pointed out, that with only fifteen delegates there would not be real representation. Various amendments were offered but voted down. Finally the proposal was adopted with the amendment that where any city had more than fifteen branches it should be entitled to a delegate for each branch. But even that did not satisfy the New York delegates. They pointed out that it involved an interpretation of what a branch is. Under the present organization there are branches and centres. What is called a branch in some cities is known as a centre in others. New York City actually has only seven branches, but it has a total of twenty-six branches and centres. Under the amendment, however, it would be entitled to only fifteen delegates.

Remarks on the League.

The resolution on the League of Nations was read to the convention at the afternoon session by Miss Henrietta Roelofs of New York.

Miss Roelofs said there were three problems to which the national association might be supposed to make a valuable contribution. These were: The contribution of the association to the problems of family life and marriage; helping to bring together the humanitarian idealism of our nation and our political expression, and the problem of the relation of the United States to the family of nations. On the last named subject, she said:

"The Y. W. C. A. has had a long and vital and most happy experience in international relations through our world fellowship program. From the position of happy fellowship with the women of other countries, it has seemed inevitable that we should move on to a great concern over those economic and political situations which make or defeat the possibilities of extending this process of fellowship among nations themselves. It has been inevitable that we have felt a sense of responsibility for the part which the United States Government takes in efforts designed to lessen the possibilities of war and to provide a basis for constructive peaceful relations between nations.

"Our own [referring to the Y. W. C. A.] experience as a national member of a world organization gives us a unique position favorable to understanding the League. We are in company with our sister members of the world's association perfecting the machinery of our international organization out of our experience in working together. Our reward has been hundred fold. We have learned to know and respect other people; we have learned to be humble in the face of the suffering and fortitude of women of other nations. This experience makes it seem inevitable that we should take some responsibility for trying to bring light to the question of the United States and the League.

Called Foundation for Peace.

"Has the time now come when we shall add to our other efforts in the cause of international cooperation an effort to secure the entrance of the United States into the League? It has been difficult for the American people to see our relation to the League clearly, divorced from the partisan struggles which have surrounded it. Perhaps the national association can help lift it out of its entanglements, and help to present it to the American people, standing on its own merits as a well established concern trying to build a sure foundation for international peace."

As she concluded her address, Miss Roelofs, on behalf of the national board, introduced the following resolution, which was greeted with enthusiastic applause and referred to a committee for consideration and presentation to the convention at a later date:

"Whereas, we are convinced that the League of Nations should be considered as a nonpartisan issue; and

"Whereas, the United States is increasingly cooperating with the League of Nations in humanitarian activities, such as representation on the following commissions: Health, Opium, Traffic in Women and Children, Industrial, Hygiene, and

"Whereas, the Young Women's Christian Associations in forty countries are united in a world Young Women's Christian Association, and all but five of these countries (the United States, Russia, Germany, Turkey and Mexico) are now members of the League of Nations,

"Be it resolved, That on the basis of actions of former conventions expressing our conviction that war should be outlawed, and our feeling of responsibility for the promotion of peace and better understanding between nations; and in view of the action of the National Board endorsing the entrance of the United States into the Permanent Court of International Justice; and with the conviction that the League of Nations offers itself as a further means toward developing stable and equitable relationships among nations; we, the Young Women's Christian Associations of the United States, pledge ourselves to use our efforts to secure the entrance of the United States into the League of Nations."

Mrs. Lewis H. Lapham, Chairman of the Finance Committee, reported that at the beginning of the present year the debt of the National Board was $502,000. This was cut to $163,000 through the two gifts, but in the meantime in order to live within its budget the association had lopped off $219,000 by reducing the work in the foreign field.

Miss Mary Sims of New York City, presenting the report of the City Department, said that it was now working with local associations in 250 cities having a combined population of about 42,250,000.

Some of the problems confronting girls in industry were presented to the convention in the report of the Industrial Group.

"When factory workers are paid by the piece," this report said, "the married woman always holds out for a ten-hour day on the ground that she cannot accomplish enough to support her family in a shorter day. Time after time, the girls testified, employers replied to their requests for shorter hours with 'If you don't like what you're getting, I know plenty of married women who will be anxious to work for anything.'"

MAY STOP PAID CHOIRS UNDER BLUE LAWS

Church Organists Also Would Suffer Under Pennsylvania Prosecutor's Plan.

Special to The New York Times.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., May 1.—Successful in clamping down the lid on all sports in Fayette county, a region notorious for crime and violence, District Attorney E. D. Brown, it was reported today would "play the game regardless of greed, belief or color," and stop the performing of paid organists and choirs in churches on Sunday, just as he has stopped the playing of baseball, football and golf and other recreational sports on the Sabbath Day.

While this announcement has not been made officially, churchmen who say that they are in touch with Prosecutor Brown and have aided him in enforcing the blue laws, declare that the District Attorney will enforce the Sunday Laws to the limit and prevent the working of any class on that day.

Some churchmen who were jubilant when the District Attorney closed down all sports on Sunday are now inclined to resent his reported intention to interfere with church matters.

Liberals on the other hand declare that recreation sports are not commercialized and therefore do not violate the law, while earning money on Sunday as do the organists and choristers is a clear violation of the blue laws.

MISSING GIRL STUDENT DROWNED NEAR HOME

Fisherman Finds Miss Aylesworth in River Near Binghamton—Disappeared Feb. 26.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., May 1.—The body of Eleanor Aylesworth, a high school girl, 16 years old, for whom a nation-wide search has been made since her mysterious disappearance from her home here on Feb. 26, was found in the Susquehanna River nine miles west of this city late today.

The discovery was made by A. J. Fisher of Union, who had been fishing and noticed an object lodged against a small island in midstream. Close inspection revealed what appeared to be the feet of a human body.

Fisher called Police Chief Frutiger of the village of Endicott and they with several officers removed the body from the water. It was taken to an undertaking establishment in the village.

CHANGE IN POLICE RULE.

New System of Assigning Reserves at Fires Is Contemplated.

The present system of assigning police reserves to two-alarm fires will be changed shortly, it was learned at police headquarters last night. Instead of turning out all reserves at extra alarm fires, the police are considering the adoption of the two platoon system now used by the Fire Department, in which the minimum amount of apparatus is turned out on the first alarm and extra alarms sounded when more is necessary.

If the new system is aadorted it will mean that a minimum number of reserves will be assigned to guard fire lines. The number will be increased at the request of the sergeant in charge, who will call upon the station houses in the district to furnish the men needed.

Hylan Threatens Arrest Of Inquiring Reporter

Mayor Hylan, whose attitude toward the candidacy of Governor Alfred E. Smith for the Democratic nomination for President, has been considered doubtful, resisted yesterday the attempt of a reporter to interrogate him on the matter.

The Mayor was approached by the reporter as he was about to ascend the stairs in City Hall to go to the Board of Estimate room where the Sinking Fund Commission was in session.

"Mr. Mayor, do you favor——" the reporter began.

"Keep away, keep away," exclaimed the Mayor.

"All I wanted to ask, Your Honor, was whether or not you favor Governor——?"

"If you don't go away, I'll have you locked up," shouted the Mayor.

The reporter retired with his question unanswered.

RYAN HALTS SCHOOL DEAL OF $3,000,000

Holds Up Installation of New Furnace Grates Recommended by Hylan's Physician.

O'SHEA TELLS OF PLANS

Ettinger's Successor Says Politics Will Be Barred—Promises Freedom for Teachers.

George J. Ryan, President of the Board of Education, announced yesterday that he had held up the installation of the Economy furnace grates in the public schools. On March 26 the board voted to place these grates in school buildings at a cost of more than $3,000,000 after Commissioner John A. Ferguson, Mayor Hylan's personal physician, had urged such action.

Dr. William L. Ettinger, who retired yesterday as Superintendent of Schools, sent out to each member of the board, as one of his last official acts, an adverse report on this grate, a short time after he had issued a statement to the public school teachers of the city attacking the "installation of particular types of school equipment in which certain well-connected persons have a financial interest."

Ryan Gives Out Statement.

"In the latter part of March," Mr. Ryan said in the prepared statement given out in his office at the Board of Education Building, "my attention was called by Mr. Joseph Miller Jr., Secretary of the Board of Education, to the adoption by the board on March 26, 1924, of the following resolution:

"'Resolved, That in all new school buildings provision be made for the installation of a type of grate tested in Public School 64, Brooklyn, and that as soon as financial ability exists provision be made for replacing with such grates the present grates now in use.'

"This was during the period that I was confined to my home through illness. As soon as possible I consulted with Dr. William L. Ettinger, Superintendent of Schools, at Atlantic City, where I was convalescing, and suggested to him that he take steps to have any work under the terms of the resolution stopped, upon my return to the city I learned that nothing had been done.

"Two weeks ago I conferred with Mr. William H. Gompert, Superintendent of School Buildings, and directed him to limit his action under the resolution to the old school building in which grates needed replacement, and to report the result of this further experiment to the Board of Education, and that I would submit the matter to the board for its approval of my action."

O'Shea Outlines Policy.

Dr. William J. O'Shea, who was elected City Superintendent of Schools last week to succeed Dr. Ettinger, took up the duties of his new office yesterday. Dr. O'Shea gave out a statement in which he indicated that the first problems to which he would devote attention were the housing of children, the teaching of children and the relation of the teachers to the Department of Education and to their work.

"I believe," he said, "that the things accomplished later will speak for themselves better than anything that I might say about what I expect to do in this office. The task is an enormous one and I shall need and I invite the cooperation of all those interested in the schools, whether they are serving within the system or whether they are outside.

"We have been making strides in recent years in providing better housing for the children in school. We shall need to keep on building more schools and completing them more rapidly. It is important not alone that we shall house our children decently but we should also strive to reduce steadily the number of over-large classes, seeking to achieve a condition where no class in the public schools shall have more than forty-five children.

"Teachers may be assured that so far as lies within my power they, too, shall have the greatest freedom for service. The children shall have the largest opportunity to advance—each according to his or her abilities. Opportunity to modify courses of study to try out newer ideas will be encouraged not in a few schools, but freely in all. The course of study must be made so flexible as to permit its adjustment to suit the needs of the children in our city, which is a vast grouping of widely different conditions and child abilities.

Will Bar Politics, He Says.

"I want to emphasize at this time that the policy which has guided me in many years of service to the schools of this city shall be continued. Influences, social, religious or political, have no place in a public school system save as they are directed to the upbuilding of the service of the schools to the children. Educational and professional considerations alone should, and will during my administration, determine the policies recommended and the persons named to fill positions of great or lesser importance in the school service.

"It has been my aim in the Board of Superintendents to make sure that teachers are assigned to schools where each one shall be happy. The best kind of service can come only from a teacher who is happy and who can be an example to the children in mental, physical and moral growth."

$2,100 PAID FOR HOOK RUG.

Largest Ever Offered at Public Sale Bought by H. D. Bannister.

The largest hook rug ever offered at public sale brought $2,100 yesterday afternoon at the American Art Galleries, where it was an item in the dispersal of rugs collected by James M. Shoemaker of Manhasset, L. I. It is 14 feet 8 inches by 13 feet 7 inches, and a handloom was set up to weave its foundation. It is said that more than forty women worked on it. It is an eighteenth century carpet, and the pile is still more than half an inch deep. The field of black with banded pink gray oblong centre has diamond medallions and further elaboration, including many pastel hued flowers. The rug went to H. D. Bannister, who also bought six rugs ranging in price from $105 to $360.

Mrs. James Marshall paid $450 for an 1820 hook rug with an ivory tan ground, large central bouquet of lavender and crimson flowers, and a border of scrollings, leaves and flowers in matching hues. She also paid $100 for an oval rug having on a tan-ivory medallion four large full-blown roses and buds and sprays in crimson and green.

O. Moon Jr. paid $225 for a hooked runner more than twenty-four feet long and nineteen inches wide, patterned in golden-yellow squares, each occupied by a sprayed blossom interrupted with a diamond lattice in crimson, yellow and green on a grayish-black ground—a most unusual type.

Gail H. Carter, B. F. Courtley and Robert Thalman each paid $100 for an early rug.

There were 370 items and the total receipts for the two days was $13,972.

Mauretania to Sail on June 11.

The Mauretania will re-enter the Cunard Line's service between New York, Cherbourg and Southampton on June 11, it was announced yesterday. The liner is now in drydock being refitted with turbine blades that are expected to give her an average speed of twenty-five knots an hour.

Higher Pay for the Rural Carriers and Postmasters Voted by House Committee

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Increased compensation would be granted to third and fourth class postmasters and rural mail carriers under amendments to the Postal Salary bill adopted today by the House Post Office Committee.

One amendment approved would give third class postmasters, numbering 10,900, a flat increase of $100 a year in salary, and would provide for a scale of clerk hire allowances ranging from $240 to $1,000 a year, based on receipts of the offices and the pay of the postmasters.

An aggregate increase in pay estimated at $1,000,000 would be authorized for fourth class postmasters under another amendment, the amount to each to be based on the amount of stamp cancellations. Each postmaster would be entitled to 160 per cent. of the cancellations, instead of the present 145 per cent.

In addition to their flat salary of $1,000 a year, rural carriers, the committee decided, should receive an allowance of 4 cents a mile. This, it was estimated, would average about $300 increase for each carrier. The House and Senate Subcommittee, which framed the bill, recommended an allowance of three cents a mile.

The House Committee also voted to increase the annual pay of first grade messengers, laborers and watchmen in the Postal Service to $1,500 and to fix the pay in the second grade at $1,600.

Provisions dealing with railway clerks remain to be disposed of, as does an amendment by Representative Kelly of Pennsylvania, to provide a time differential for night work.

CITY PAYS HOMAGE TO ITS ROYAL BABIES

Tiny Kings and Queens Toddle in Health Day Procession in Central Park.

AIRPLANES DROP FLOWERS

All Boroughs Represented at Celebration—Children Dance on Long Island.

National Child Health Day was observed in New York yesterday afternoon with an elaborate program. The principal feature was the exercises held on the sheep meadows in Central Park under the auspices of the Department of Health, where baby kings and queens from each of the boroughs were crowned.

Mayor Hylan reviewed the loyalty parade from a stand in Twenty-fifth Street, and was then whisked up to the park in time to look over the baby kings and queens, some of whom were just able to toddle past the stand, the youngest queen being only 18 months old. With the Mayor in the park stand were Health Commissioner Monaghan, Dr. J. L. Blumenthal and Mrs. William R. Hearst, head of the Mayor's Committee of Women, who arranged to supply each child in the parade with a six-ounce bottle of milk. Little Katherine Best recited a poem addressed to Mrs. Hearst.

While the parade and fête were in progress, three airplanes from Mitchel Field flew over the park and dropped flowers. Their participation in the fête was by order of Secretary of War Weeks.

The Fire Department band, George Briegel, director, and the band from the battleship Colorado, played for the fête, which consisted of a community sing by the school children, calisthenics and toothbrush drills and health dances, with a real Punch and Judy show as a side attraction. The trick elephants from the Hippodrome also performed.

But the little kings and queens furnished the most amusement for the crowd, and Mayor Hylan and Dr. Monaghan, each with a little queen in his arms, posed for the battery of movie and still cameras.

The oldest royal pair from this city were Evelyn Marie Carlin, 4 years old, and John Wims, 6, who had his little brother Robert as the page. But the king was bashful, and all the king's horses and all the king's men could not make the king kiss the queen when they posed for the movies. The queen puckered up her lips but his majesty looked straight ahead and refused to stoop for the proferred kiss. And several of the little queens cried when they were having their pictures taken, disarranging their crowns.

From Richmond Borough came Robert G. Randolph Jr. and Shelia Weber, both 27 months old, to be crowned, while Martin A. Levin, 21 months, and Renes Haussemann, two months, Jr., were the royal couple from the Bronx. Little Albert Bodenstein and Ruth Collins were from Queens, Norman Reamer and Eleanor Kues, from Brooklyn, and Stephen Ragussis and Margaret Schnall, from Manhattan.

Some of the health inscriptions on the banner, carried by the children were enjoyed by the spectators. One read: "Masticate or Stomach-ache," and another, "Toothless roses never bloom on cheeks." Still another was, "Your weight is your fate."

The sun, after being hidden for three days, shone upon all the May Day celebrations. The parade down Fifth Avenue marked the annual celebration of Boys' Health and Loyalty Day. The boys were divided into ten divisions, representing the schools of New York as well as the various agencies of boys' work organizations. Grand Marshal Colonel John J. Byrne, led the parade, and the marshals were followed by George Bronz, the boy Mayor, who, with his Board of Estimate, fell out of ranks at Twenty-fifth Street and joined Mayor Hylan and representatives of the army and navy on the stand. There was a second, unofficial, reviewing stand at St. Patrick's Cathedral, where Cardinal Hayes for a time watched the parade.

More than 250 children, representing fifty settlement houses, health centres and relief agencies, took part in the Child Life Carnival, under the auspices of the Council of Lower West Side Agencies, which opened yesterday afternoon in Greenwich House, 27 Barrow Street, and will continue until Saturday, afternoons and evenings. The proceeds will be devoted to fresh air outings during the Summer.

The day was celebrated at Ocean Side, L. I., when the Child Welfare Committee of the New York City Federation of Women's Clubs laid the four cornerstones of the Model House of Childhood. There also was a May pole dance by children of all nations. Mrs. Park Mathewson was Chairman of the committee.

Decorated floats bearing groups of children from the public schools of Staten Island will feature the parade and exercises to be held at St. George tomorrow, in connection with National Health Week.

NEGROES SUE PLAYHOUSE.

Allege Discrimination at Maxine Elliott Theatre—Had Tickets.

Henry J. Nethersole of 137 West 142d Street and Elouise Da Costa of 2,100 Fifth Avenue, West Indian negroes, appeared yesterday as plaintiffs in the Seventh District Municipal Court in actions brought under the Civil Rights law against the Elliott Theatre Company, Inc., and George J. Appleton, manager of the Maxine Elliott Theatre. The law provides that persons discriminated against because of race or color can recover a penalty of from $100 to $5,000. The plaintiffs allege discrimination at a performance of "Rain" the night of Feb. 9.

They testified to the purchase of two seats at the McBride agency. On the day down the aisle to their seats in the orchestra another usher met them, asked to see their checks, told them there must be some "mistake" and sent them to the box office.

As they passed out of the theatre, they testified, the usual checks for readmission were given them. At the box office, they said their money was waiting for them, and Manager Appleton told them a mistake had been made and offered to give them seats for some other performance, and finally, at 9:50 P. M., offered them other seats for that evening, which they refused. So they went home.

Witnesses for the defense said that two sets of tickets for the same seats had been sold that evening and that when the plaintiffs arrived the seats already were occupied. Other seats were offered them as early as 8:30 o'clock, it was maintained. Witnesses also testified that tickets for another performance were offered. It was denied their color had anything to do with the matter.

Justice Michael S. Blake reserved decision.

GETS DEATH THREAT IN A LOVE TANGLE

Counsel for Girl Suing Ex-Fiance, Who Married Another, Is Menaced.

LETTER IS SIGNED 'K. K. K.'

City Commissioner Hires a Detective for a Guard—Wedding Prevented by Difference in Religion.

ORANGE, N. J., May 1.—The triangular love tangle in which Russell B. Albinson of 17 Hill Street, Bloomfield; Gertruda Corby of 158 Grafton Avenue, Newark, and Alice M. Walsh of 541 Freeman Street, East Orange, are the principals has resulted in a law suit over a hope chest and a death threat which City Commissioner Richard J. Fitz Maurice, counsel for Miss Walsh, says he received through the mails. The Commissioner today received a long letter, purporting to come from the Ku Klux Klan, in which he is threatened with death if he does not give up his activities for Miss Walsh.

Albinson, a Protestant, was to have married Miss Walsh on April 21, and a Catholic priest was to have performed the ceremony. When her parents learned that he intended to have his brother, a Protestant clergyman, perform a second marriage the wedding was called off. Albinson then proposed to Miss Corby, a former sweetheart. They were married by his brother the day his wedding with Miss Walsh was to have taken place. They live at the Hill Street address.

Miss Walsh sent to the Albinson apartment for a hope chest kept there which she says belongs to her. Albinson refused to give it up, maintaining it was his. The chest is said to contain linens, Miss Walsh's trousseau and silverware.

Miss Walsh retained Commissioner Fitz Maurice to begin suit in the Orange District Court against Albinson to obtain the chest. Papers were filed Monday.

Miss Walsh has received more than seventy letters, thirty signed "K. K. K.," in which she was chided for attempting to marry a Protestant. All the letters lauded the action of Albinson in marrying Miss Corby.

Commissioner Fitz Maurice, who is also a Catholic, has hired a detective to accompany him on his rounds of duty and has asked the Orange and Newark police to watch the mails for further threatening letters.

"Stick to the law and leave religion and received, read:

"Stick the law and leave religion and the public schools alone. One death in your family is enough. We would regret another for your relatives to mourn. You are young and still, probably, under the influence of the black robes' teachings. We hope you will outgrow that. We are willing to give you the chance to prove it.

"Take it or die."

The letter was signed, in red ink, "K. K. K. of Newark, Bloomfield and vicinity."

"If this is meant seriously it is an outrage," the Commissioner said today. "This letter will not stop me from going on with Miss Walsh's case. The bodyguard is a temporary precaution."

The previous death mentioned in the letter refers to that of the Commissioner's daughter, Dorothy, 2 years old, who died at Deal Beach recently.

Miss Walsh continues her work as stenographer for an insurance firm in Newark.

The rest of the letter received by the Commissioner dealt with his opposition to the proposed $1,000,000 high school for Orange. The letter charged that his religious teachings were the basis for this opposition. The Commissioner has repeatedly pointed out that the city cannot stand the cost of such a school and has advocated a junior high school to be constructed at a cost of $500,000.

LONDON VISITORS ASSURED.

Hotels Will Not Increase Rates During Exhibition, Cunard Line Says.

London hotels will not increase their rates because of the inrush of visitors attracted by the British Empire Exhibition to that city, according to the Cunard Line, which has made an investigation. It was said yesterday that the Cunard report had been corroborated by A. J. Davidson, Secretary of the Incorporated Association of Hotels and Restaurants.

The Cunard Line had members of its London staff visit the leading hotels, including the Ritz, the Savoy, Claridges, Alexander, Hans, Crescent, Basil Street, Berkeley, Hyde Park, Piccadilly, Carlton, Burlington, Carter's, Connaught and Gordon. Managers of a number of restaurants visited said that to raise prices would be against their best interests and unpatriotic.

Dr. Weizman, who has just completed an American survey for the Zionist cause, leaves for Europe next week.

Louis Lipsky, Chairman of the American Zionist Organization, and Dr. Ozias Thon, member of the Polish Parliament and a Zionist leader, reviewed the work and the ideals of Zionism.

GOLF SHOW DEEPENS MILITIA MYSTERY

Col. McLeer Rescinds His Ban on Use of Armory After Gov. Smith Approves It.

REMOVALS NOT EXPLAINED

Officers of 71st Regiment Interested in Company Concerned in Arrangements for Show.

The mystery surrounding the circumstances of the removal by Governor Smith of Colonel J. Hollis Wells as commander of the 71st Regiment was intensified yesterday when the new commander, Colonel Edward McLeer Jr., canceled the contract for the National Golf Show, which was scheduled to begin in the armory next Monday and to continue all week. Colonel McLeer rescinded his action when counsel for the golf show prepared papers in an injunction suit, and announced that he would begin court action at once to compel the commander to permit the show to go into the armory.

The cancellation of the contract for the golf show brought to light the existence of the New York Guardian Association, a New Jersey concern, which contracted to deliver the 71st Regiment Armory to the Peerless Exhibition Company, which is managing the golf show. Officers of the 71st Regiment are said to be officials of the New York Guardian Association, and the income of the organization is said to be used largely for the promotion of the interests of the regiment.

Cause of Removal Not Explained.

Thus far Governor Smith has declined to state why he relieved Colonel Wells and Lieut. Col. James Eben of their commands. Major Gen. Charles D. Berry, division commander, has declined to discuss the affair and has issued orders which seal the lips of the officers of the regiment.

The entire National Guard is keenly interested in the developments in the Seventy-first Regiment, and members are wondering why Colonel Wells and Lieut. Col. Eben were suspended by the Governor without charges. Even Colonel Wells and his aid, it was reported yesterday, were not notified why they were removed.

Richard J. McKay, representing O'Brien, Malevinsky & Driscoll, lawyers, of 1,482 Broadway, at the suggestion of George F. Lahey Jr. and Robert E. Harlow, managers of the golf show, prepared papers in an injunction suit when he was advised that the golf managers had been notified by the new regimental commander that the contract for the use of the armory had been canceled.

Mr. Mackey called up Terence Farley, counsel to the Governor, at Albany and was told that the Governor had no objection to the use of the armory for the golf show. Mackey said the contract for the use of the armory called for a payment of $6,500 to the New York Guardian Association, that the document was executed last November and that the final instalment of the rent had been paid several days ago.

Following the talk between Mr. Mackey and Mr. Farley, a conference was held at the armory. Among those present were Colonel McLeer, Colonel Wells, Mr. Mackey, Mr. Harlow, Mr. Lahey and G. W. Sutcliffe, secretary of the New York Association.

Colonel McLeer Rescinds His Action.

Colonel McLeer, whose previous attitude had been that the golf show could not go on, as he had not signed the contract, decided that inasmuch as Governor Smith had no objection he would enter into a new contract with the golf show managers.

C. C. Wenderheck, the architect who was engaged by the golf show managers to erect a model clubhouse in the armory, was disturbed by the refusal of the armory authorities to permit three truckloads of material to be carried into the building. When the affair was straightened out the lumber was carted into the armory and workmen began preparing the building for the show. Walter Hagen, the golf champion, is on his way to New York from Florida to take part in the show.

It is said that never before in the history of the National Guard has an officer been relieved of his command except on the filing of direct charges. Friends of Colonel Wells were reported to be under the impression that had the reason for his removal been a serious one he would not have been restored temporarily so that he could review the regiment Wednesday night.

Whether the subletting of the armory through the medium of the New York Guardian Association was a factor in causing Governor Smith to act could not be learned. In some quarters it was held that the intervention of the Guardian Association might possibly be construed as a technical evasion of the military law.

OBJECT TO OUR LAW ON FOREIGN WIVES

British M. P.'s Discuss It—Overtures Will Be Made Here Against It.

LONDON, May 1.—Difficulties arising from the American law providing that women retain their own nationalities on marriage, thereby clashing with the laws of most other countries under which women assume the nationality of their husbands, were called to the attention of the Commons this afternoon, and the Home Secretary, Arthur Henderson, said that he was prepared to make overtures to America to have the anomaly removed.

Under existing conditions a foreign woman marrying an American becomes a woman without a country, it is held here. These wives, it was pointed out, cannot even secure regular passports for travel, and it was this feature of the report which interested the House.

The American rule, it was stated, makes it impossible for English girls who have married Americans and gone to the United States to secure passports for visits to their former homes in England.

The situation has worked great hardships in the past. For instance, if an English-born woman in London wished to go to her American husband who was ill in Paris, just across the English Channel, she was entirely dependent on the courtesy of Consular officials. She could not have a passport, but if she could satisfy officials that she was the wife of the American in question she might be passed through to her destination as an act of grace.

American officials here finally arranged with their colleagues in other countries so that wives in this category could travel on affidavits in which the wives proved their marriage status. Consuls now visé these affidavits, but any Consul would be quite within his rights in refusing to do so.

P. R. R. Asks All Employes To Take Annual Health Test

To encourage the safeguarding of health and promote longevity among its 211,000 employes, the Pennsylvania Railroad issued a general notice yesterday urging them all to undergo a complete physical examination at the company's expense at least once a year.

A corps of physicians under the direction of Eden B. Hunt, Superintendent of the Voluntary Relief Department, will be available for this service.

The new campaign, it was explained, was entirely apart from the regulations requiring certain train service employes to undergo periodical tests of sight and hearing.

MAY CITE MANN ACT IN POISONING CASE

Authorities Consider Federal Action to Get Evidence Against Baring.

MILDRED BEAM STAYS AWAY

Mrs. Baring Has Received Many Threatening Letters Since Her Husband's Arrest.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 1.—The April Grand Jury of Westchester County wound up its work today by taking up again the charges that Clarence O. Baring of White Plains tried to poison his wife with arsenic and germs of typhoid, pneumonia, diphtheria and scarlet fever. Baring's attorney, Charles E. Long, was before the Grand Jury twice this afternoon under a subpoena duces tecum.

Dr. Henry J. Vier, Mrs. Baring's physician, also appeared before the Grand Jury. Mrs. Baring conferred with District Attorney Arthur Rowland. Long was said to have refused to produce certain documents bearing on the case on the ground that, as Baring's attorney, he could not be compelled to disclose any information in his possession relating to his client.

There was a persistent report that the indictment of a woman was sought on the charge of being an accessory. Mr. Rowland's efforts yesterday to see Mildred E. Beam, the Elizabeth, N. J., high school teacher and close friend of Baring, proved futile. The prosecutor has been intent on learning whether any letters passed between Miss Beam and Baring that would justify him in taking steps toward compelling her appearance in New York State.

The District Attorney conferred yesterday at the Bar Association in New York with a representative of Miss Beam. He would not disclose what arrangement had been entered into, if any, to bring about Miss Beam's testimony in the case. But after the conference Mr. Rowland was not as confident as he previously had been that Miss Beam would come before him voluntarily, and a representative of the young woman said to reporters: "She would be foolish to come over from New Jersey."

The possibility that the Federal authorities might be asked to invoke the aid of the Mann act in developing one angle of the case to insure the appearance in New York of all witnesses desired here was under serious discussion here today by officials engaged in the case, but no definite steps have been taken.

On her visit today to the District Attorney's office Mrs. Baring produced a number of letters condemning her for brining the name of Miss Bean into the case. Some of the letters received by Mrs. Baring were threatening, but none of them was presented before the Grand Jury.

It was learned today that Baring's real name originally was Burgess and that he changed it by permission of the Supreme Court in New York in 1911 to Baring. He was divorced in Philadelphia at about that time by Estelle Spiegel, who is now living in Germantown.

Baring Booked Passage Abroad.

It was learned yesterday that Baring had booked passage for "Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Baring" for a trip to Europe on the steamship Belgenland on June 7. Though Mrs. Baring was reported yesterday to have declared she knew nothing of the trip contemplated by her husband, Attorney Long, for the prisoner, said that the passage had been booked by Baring for himself and his wife and was evidence of his devotion to her, and evidence contrary to the State's contention he planned to kill her. Return passage had been booked for the Leviathan, arriving here on Aug. 5. The itinerary arranged by Baring included visits to cities in Belgium, France, Germany and England.

Attorney Long said today that on May 7 he would move before County Judge William F. Bleakley for permission to inspect the minutes of the Grand Jury in the case, so that he might use them in a motion for dismissal of the three indictments found against Baring.

Baring remained in jail today and no further effort was made to obtain bail. The District Attorney will ask that the amount be $100,000, a sum higher than any of Baring's friends have shown an inclination to risk.

MAKE 25 ARRESTS IN TOKIO.

Workers Celebrate Under a Heavy Guard of Police.

TOKIO, May 1 (Associated Press).—Under the watchful eye of 3,000 police reserves and with other officers stationed at strategic points, more than 10,000 workers paraded through Tokio at noon today in one of the most picturesque and orderly May Day labor demonstrations witnessed here.

One speaker was arrested when he attempted to discuss the alleged slaying of workers and radicals by police during excitement following the earthquake disaster. By way of precaution, police at daybreak had arrested ten radical leaders and enjoined known anarchists to remain at home.

The May Day celebration was on a nation-wide scale, demonstrations also being held at Osaka and other industrial centres. These were enthusiastic but apparently orderly.

Later arrests in Tokio brought the total for the day to twenty-five. Ten thousand workers paraded in the Osaka demonstration and 400 in Kyoto.

QUIET MAY DAY IN FRANCE.

Only the Taxi Drivers Quit Work in Paris.

PARIS, May 1.—Today was the quietest May Day throughout France since the World War. The taxi drivers were the only strikers in Paris, while in Northern France, Alsace-Lorraine and the Loire mining, metallurgical and manufacturing districts were practically normal.

The day was a safe, sane, ordinary day, with the workers flourishing the lily of the valley instead of brandishing blackjacks and pelting brickbats.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, May 1.—May Day was quiet this year as mourning for Lenin, without army parade or speeches. From the early hours of the morning workers' organizations and other civilian bodies passed through the Red Square with bands playing and flags waving. No one was allowed to enter Lenin's mausoleum, a squat sombre building which might be imposing atop a small hill, but is sadly dwarfed in its position at the foot of the huge red wall of the Kremlin.

As the groups passed it banners were lowered and the bands played a funeral march.

At noon Kalinin, Kamenev and Zinoviev, with Rykov, who has just returned from a convalescent trip to the Caucasus and is looking better, but not over-robust, stood on wooden stands near the mausoleum and acknowledged salutes of the crowd, calling on the latter to cheer for the revolution, the Communist International, &c.

Trotsky was conspicuous by his absence, but THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent learns he is resting after a busy ten days of speechmaking since his return from the south. Everywhere he spoke Trotsky was immensely enthusiastic over his reception and there is little doubt he is far the most popular individual in Russia.

Heavy rain that began to fall about 1 o'clock put a damper on proceedings, though it could not check the ardor of the camion loads of youngsters with red hats and rosettes, embowered in fir branches, singing and cheering shrilly as they dashed about the streets.

Tomorrow is also a holiday. It will be the first big celebration of the "Young Pioneers," a sort of Bolshevist Boy Scouts, who will parade ten or fifteen thousand strong to the Red Square in the morning and give a physical drill display in the Zoological Gardens in the afternoon. It is said Trotsky may address them in the Red Square.

MOSCOW, May 1 (Associated Press).—Bolshevist Russia today departed from its usual custom of observing May Day with spectacular parades of units from the Red Army and Navy, confining its celebration to peaceful demonstrations at the tomb of Lenin.

The authorities having decided to allot two days to the celebration, tomorrow will be given over to parades of the Communistic Boy Scouts and children of the working classes, who will take the oath of allegiance to the revolutionary principles at Lenin's shrine.

DEMPSEY AND WILLS TO FIGHT SEPT. 6

Rickard Announces World's Championship Bout for Boyle's Thirty Acres.

DEMPSEY NOT YET SIGNED

But Champion Is Bound to Meet Opponent Selected by Him, Says Promoter.

PREDICTS $1,000,000 GATE

Rickard Breaks Off With Firpo, and Buenos Aires Sees Finish of Luis's Ring Career.

Jack Dempsey will defend his title against Harry Wills, New Orleans negro challenger, on Saturday afternoon, Sept. 6, in Tex Rickard's wooden bowl on Boyl's Thirty Acres, Jersey City, according to an announcement made yesterday by Rickard. In making this statement Rickard admitted that while Wills has already signed articles to fight for him this Summer, he had not yet signed Dempsey, but that, nevertheless, he considered the match as clinched.

Rickard said he has Dempsey bound to an agreement to fight any opponent selected by him. At the same time the promoter announced that he had broken off all further negotiations with Luis Firpo, the Argentine boxer, and would no longer consider the South American in any of his future plans.

Wills's chance at the title, Rickard said, was contingent upon only one condition—that he score a victory over either Quintin Romero, the Chilean heavyweight, or Erminio Spalla, the Italian, who holds the European heavyweight title, either of whom Wills will be asked to face in a preliminary test some time in June or July. Should Wills emerge victorious from this bout, Rickard said he would concentrate his entire attention on the championship match between Wills and Dempsey.

Rickard believes that a title match between the heavyweight champion and his negro challenger would tax the seating capacity of the New Jersey bowl, estimated at 100,000, and that with the top prices for tickets at $25, as permitted under the Jersey Boxing Commission's regulations, the gate receipts would reach more than $1,000,000. This would make this bout rank second only to the Dempsey-Carpentier bout in 1921, which totaled $1,600,000. For that bout, however, a top price of $50 was permitted. Attendance for the Dempsey-Carpentier bout was 90,000, which was exceeded only once, that being last Summer, when it was estimated that 100,000 persons saw Willard and Firpo fight in the Jersey arena.

Dempsey to Get $500,000.

What the fighters' shares will be in this million-dollar battle, Rickard would not disclose. It is generally understood, however, that Wills's contract with Rickard calls for a guarantee of about $200,000, while Dempsey's portion will be in the neighborhood of $500,000.

Although admitting that he had not definitely signed Dempsey for the match, Rickard said he expected to have no difficulty in coming to terms with Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager. Rickard said that his agreement with Kearns calls for the champion to fight for Rickard in the Fall against any opponent the promoter may select. That opponent, Rickard has now decided, will be Harry Wills, unless the negro should unexpectedly meet defeat at the hands of one of the two invading boxers he will be asked to meet in a final test to prove his fitness for a championship match.

"I am now convinced," said Rickard, "that Firpo has no intention of coming to terms for the important bouts I had planned for him for this year. He has turned a deaf ear to my offers and has come back with propositions we could not consider. I therefore have decided to break off all further negotiations with him and have dropped him from all further consideration. I now intend to give my full attention to staging the championship match between Dempsey and Wills on Sept. 6. Wills will be given one test by me against Spalla or Romero, either in June or July, and only in the event that Wills should lost this bout will there be any change in this plan.

"Dempsey may be considered as good as signed. I have an agreement with Kearns calling for the champion to meet the best man available in the Fall. I don't think there will be any hitch there."

Jersey Approves Match.

Rickard likewise expects to encounter no difficulties from New Jersey officials in the promotion of this match, as the Jersey Boxing Commission recently went on record as stating that it would not be opposed to a title match between Dempsey and Wills.

Wills thus appears to be nearer his goal than at any time since he began his drive for a chance at the championship more than three years ago. The bout will bring to a head a controversy that has been stirring pugilistic circles for more than three years. Wills's drive began shortly after Dempsey's victory over Carpentier on July 2, 1921, when Dempsey demonstrated that he was by far the superior of all white heavyweight boxers. Objections to "mixed bouts," however, frustrated Wills's attempts to close a match with the champion, although Dempsey himself at all times professed a willingness to meet his negro challenger and stressed the point that he never intended to draw the "color line."

In July, 1922, Wills filed a formal challenge with the New York State Athletic Commission and posted the required $2,500 guarantee required by the commission. That body, then under the chairmanship of William Muldoon, upheld Wills's challenge and directed that Dempsey sign tentative articles of agreement to meet the negro. This was done, but for one reason or another no promoter came forward to stage the match, and the bout continued to hang fire.

Rickard Gives Wills Chance.

It was not until early this Spring that Wills finally saw a rift in the clouds. Then Rickard signed him to a contract said to give the promoter exclusive rights to the negro's services for one or two preliminary bouts and, if successful in these, culminating in a championship match with Dempsey in the Fall. One of these preliminary bouts Rickard had planned for Firpo, but this apparently has now been abandoned, so that either Romero or Spalla alone now stands in the negro heavyweight's path.

Wills's contract with Rickard is to become effective immediately after his bout with Bartley Madden, scheduled to take place in the Queensboro Stadium in Long Island City May 12.

For a time last year some apprehension was felt by followers of the negro boxer over the condition of his hands and this feeling was aggravated several months ago when he injured one of them. Wills, however, is reported to have recovered completely under massage and electrical treatments, and in his workouts at Grupp's gymnasium, where he is now preparing himself for the Madden bout, he is said to be hitting as hard as ever.

When Wills was informed of Rickard's announcement yesterday he was highly elated. He declared that to meet Dempsey for the title had been his one ambition for more than four years and he never lost confidence that the opportunity would some day som to him. He added that he was coming around in wonderful shape and that he would easily demonstrate his qualifications as the foremost challenger for the heavyweight championship.

FIRPO THROUGH WITH RING.

Thus Buenos Aires Interprets News of Dempsey-Wills Match.

BUENOS AIRES, May 1 (Associated Press).—The announcement that Tex Rickard has matched Dempsey and Wills for a fight in September is viewed in sporting circles here as signifying not only that Rickard has definitely abandoned his efforts to induce Luis Firpo to return to the ring, but has eliminated any possible chance of his return under any other promoter, at least this year. It is held that there are no other opponents for the Argentine heavyweight who would make a fight sufficiently attractive.

When the news was received of the Dempsey-Wills match Firpo was speeding northward by automobile on a business trip to various cities that will occupy several days.

Close friends of Firpo do not believe that he will ever return to the ring. They say that the impression which appears to prevail in the United States that Firpo has been holding off from signing up with Rickard and other promoters for the purpose of obtaining more money is a mistaken one, as he was sincere when he announced his intention to retire. They admit that he found it difficult to resist the pressure of American promoters and influential Argentines to induce him to change his mind, that sometimes he wavered, taking the various offers under consideration, but always declaring that he did not want to fight any more.

His final response was that under no circumstance would he go to the United States to fight until a promoter had deposited a $50,000 guarantee in Buenos Aires, which it seems no one is willing to do.

These spokesmen in behalf of Firpo further assert that, while he "hates the boxing game," with its severe training and bruises, he is proud of his record and the occasions when his decision wavered have been when he was taunted with being afraid of defeat. They disclaim the truth of the report that he was influenced to abandon boxing by a young woman in whose company he has often been seen, declaring that he prefers a business life, for which fighting has given him a start that he never could have obtained otherwise.

"News to Me," Says Kearns.

LOS ANGELES, May 1.—Jack Kearns, manager for Jack Dempsey, world's champion heavyweight pugilist, when informed that Tex Rickard had announced arrangements for a fight between Dempsey and Harry Wills on Sept. 6, declared that "this is news to me."

Kearns added: "I have made no such arrangements. However, if Rickard wants to talk about arrangements for such a fight I shall be willing to meet him."

VICENTINI MEETS PAL MORAN TONIGHT

Pair Will Box Twelve Rounds in Madison Square Garden—Duane to Face Leonard.

Luis Vicentini, Chilean lightweight, will make another bid to gain recognition in this country as a world's championship contender when he meets Pal Moran in the featured event of twelve rounds that will top the card at Madison Square Garden tonight. The show will mark the next to the last of the indoor season at the Garden, the final show being scheduled for next Friday night, when Floyd Johnson meets Quintin Romero.

Vicentini, who left for Chile late last Fall, following his defeat at the hands of Johnny Shugrue in the Garden in a fifteen-round bout, is confident that his drive to a title match with Champion Benny Leonard will be successful this year. The Chilean showed unusual promise when he arrived here last year and gave good account of himself in minor bouts, showing himself to be a hard puncher. He was still lacking in experience, however, when he tackled the more seasoned Shugrue and lost the decision after putting up a stubborn battle. Since then, Vicentini believes he has improved steadily and he is now confident that he is ready to be recognized as a championship contender.

Despite Vicentini's optimism and that of his countrymen, Moran will enter the ring tonight a favorite to repel the invader. Like Shugrue, Moran is far more experienced than the Chilean. He has been fighting in his best form of late and has generally come to be recognized as the logical contender for Benny Leonard to meet in a lightweight championship bout this Summer. As a matter of fact, both Moran and Vicentini have been tentatively signed for a championship match, so that the winner of tonight's bout virtually will clinch a chance at the title for himself.

The fight promises to be a stirring one as both men are of the free-hitting type, aggressive and inclined to mix matters at every opportunity. Both have trained hard and faithfully for the meeting and each reports himself ready to put up the best fight of his career. The men will appear at the State Athletic Commission offices at 2 o'clock this afternoon to weigh in, and neither is expected to tip the beam above the lightweight limit of 135 pounds.

The twelve-round semi-final to this match also promises to be an interesting battle with Carl Duane of the Bronx, and Allentown Johnny Leonard as the principals. Both these contenders are seeking title matches with Johnny Dundee for the 130-pound championship and it is likely that the winner will receive his opportunity.

Joe Glick, another promising junior lightweight boxer, will meet Joe Hutchinson in a six-round bout, while the opening four-round preliminary will bring together Davey Abad and Jimmy Russon. In another six-rounder Joe Coletti will clash with Terry Miller.

FLOWERS IN BOUT HERE.

Atlanta Boxer to Meet Jamieson Tomorrow at Commonwealth S. C.

Tiger Flowers, light heavyweight of Atlanta, and Ted Jamieson of Milwaukee, are ready for their twelve-round bout which will top the card of the Commonwealth Sporting Club in Harlem tomorrow night. Both men wound up their heavy training yesterday and each reports himself in top form for the coming battle, which has created considerable interest. The two will engage only in light work today.

In the twelve-round semi-final, Al Brown, the Harlem flyweight, will engage Bobby Burns of Jersey City, while Andy Tomoske and Eddie Fatchett will clash in the six-rounder. The opening four-round preliminary will be between Frankie Hyland and Eddie Crozier.

CARPENTIER STOPS TOWNLEY IN SECOND

Referee Declares Knockout, but Crowd of 15,000 Protests Blow Was Foul.

BRITON FLOORED IN FIRST

French Boxer Scores Three Knockdowns Before Finishing Touch—Forces In-Fighting Throughout.

VIENNA, May 1 (Associated Press).—Georges Carpentier, the French fighter, knocked out Arthur Townley of England in the second round of their bout here today. The referee declared Carpentier had won by a knockout, but the crowd protested that the winning punch was a foul.

In the first round the Frenchman was the superior of Townley in the in-fighting and floored the Englishman just before the gong.

In the second round Carpentier sent Townley down for four seconds at the outset. Immediately afterward the Englishman went down again for the count of eight and then finally for the knockout.

Carpentier surprised his friends by making a close, mixup fight of it instead of standing off and boxing. With his chin firmly imbedded in the taller and heavier man's shoulder he thumped away at the Englishman's stomach throughout the first round. Townley wrestled the Frenchman back to the ropes just previous to the end of the first round. Georges, upon working himself free, clipped his famous right to the chin.

Townley Is Groggy.

Townley, who was down at the bell, was still groggy when the men were called to the centre of the ring for the second round. Carpentier was cautious and worked for an opening, putting the finishing touch upon his day's work after 90 seconds of fighting.

The decision of the French referee, Bernstein, is considered by fight experts to be perfectly regular, but the Austrian judges, unused to boxing matches, hesitated before declaring a knockout. They announced that the Austrian Boxing Federation would decide the case, although Breach and British observers expressed belief that the knockout blow was perfectly fair.

To some of the uninitiated Austrians the knockout blow appeared to be low, but experts of the fighting game seated at the ringside were of the opinion that it was one of the cleanest cut knockouts on record. The Vienna Boxing Association was appealed to against the manner in which the final blow was delivered and will render its verdict on the fairness of the knockout tomorrow. Meanwhile the purse money will not be paid.

May Delay Departure.

The withholding of the association's decision may cause a delay in the departure of Carpentier from Havre for the United States on Saturday to meet Tom Gibbons.

It was a prosaic and scienceless lumberjack battle as far as it went, and its quick ending was a rude jolt to the spectators, coming as it did in less time than it took those in the high-priced seats to count out their stacks of crowns to pay for the privilege of seeing what had been advertised as an exhibition of manly art. Although there was keen disappointment for awhile, hero worship finally prevailed and the 15,000 persons present, among whom there were numerous women, cheered the victor.

At the sound of the first gong Carpentier rushed to close quarters with his opponent and engaged him in fierce infighting. Townley was badly punished about the body during the milling. Then, just before the gong ended the round, Carpentier stepped back and whipped over his famous right to the jaw. Townley fell flat, and was lying prone on the canvas when the session ended.

Coming out for the second round Townley appeared to be groggy. Carpentier, nevertheless, was wary. After sparring for a moment the Frenchman again clipped Townley on the jaw, and the Englishman took a count of four seconds. When he arose Carpentier sent him down for the count of eight. Again arising, the Englishman endeavored to stave off defeat by clinching. Carpentier, however, worked in and drove a right to the solar plexus. The Englishman's knees suddenly dropped to the floor and was counted out.

Although Townley failed to land but four clean blows during the fight, he defended himself against the onslaughts of the Frenchman with great gameness.

The crowd in attendance, although not up to the expectation of the promoters, was the largest ever gathered together in Vienna excepting for one of the great football matches.

Parisians Expected Victory.

PARIS, May 1.—The victory of Georges Carpentier over the Englishman, Townley, at Vienna today failed to arouse enthusiasm among the Paris boulevardiers, who learned of the decision with a characteristic shrug of the shoulders. The only surprise expressed was that the knockout came so early, as there had been a well defined opinion on the boulevards that Carpentier would win in the fourth. Many bets were laid on that particular round.

Townley was looked upon as a set up, preparatory to Carpentier's trip to the United States, and sporting men in Paris this evening gave it as their opinion that the fight was terminated as quickly as possible because of Carpentier's desire to get to Havre to catch the steamer for New York.

LOMBARDO IN DEBUT BOUT.

Panama Featherweight to Clash With Hausner at Pioneer S. C.

José Lombardo, Panama featherweight, who has arrived here in quest of a world's featherweight championship match with Johnny Dundee, holder of the title, will make his début in this country on Tuesday night, when he will appear in one of the three star ten-round bouts arranged by the Pioneer Sporting Club. His opponent will be Jack Hausner of the East Side. If Lombardo is successful in his coming bout he intends to renew his efforts to obtain a title match with Dundee.

In another of the ten-rounders, Sammy Cohen will clash with Sammy Marino in a return engagement. Frankie Casano, the West Side batamweight, and Willie Darcy of Harlem will be the principals in the third ten-rounder. The opening four-round bout will bring together Charlie Rosen and Georgie Staker.

RICHARDS RECALLS TENNIS RESIGNATION

Indoor Champion, in Letter to U. S. L. T. A., Asks His Withdrawal Be Canceled.

ELIGIBILITY UNQUESTIONED

Again Is Back on Davis Cup Team and May Yet Be on American Olympic Squad.

Vincent Richards, the national indoor champion, is back on the Olympic tennis team and Davis Cup squad. In a letter sent to George W. Wightman, President of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, made public yesterday, Richards asked to have his resignation withdrawn. His action follows a second conference with Holcombe Ward, Chairman of the Amateur Rule Committee and Jones W. Mersereau, Vice President of the national organization, held on Wednesday to consider his amateur standing.

At the conference, Richards makes known in his letter, he was assured by Mr. Ward that he is eligible to play for the United States; that no action will be taken on his status as an amateur under the player-writer interpretation of the amateur rule during the present year and also that if at any time after Jan. 1, 1925, when the interpretation goes into effect, his status should be questioned because of his writing activities he would be given the opportunity to present all the facts of his case before the committee empowered to decide upon his eligibility. The Executive Committee of the U. S. L. T. A. is the only body that has this power to establish the status of a player.

Amateur Standing Assured.

This assurance that his eligibility to play for the United States is unquestioned and that no action will be taken to deprive him of his amateur status next year without being given an opportunity to defend his writing activities led Richards to reconsider his resignation and to ask to withdraw it. As no action has been taken on his resignation other than the perfunctory acknowledgment of its "conditional" acceptance by Mr. Wightman, to whom it was presented, it may be assumed that Richards is back on the Olympic team and the Davis Cup squads, for which he was named by Julian S. Myrick's Davis Cup Committee.

It was believed before Richards handed in his resignation that he would not be a member of the Olympic team, as he had announced that he was going abroad as a writer and not as a player. The rule passed by the American Olympic Committee against members of the team writing for publication while under its jurisdiction bars Richards from playing on the team in itself. But in his letter to Mr. Wightman, Richards says that he may not be able to play in the Olympic Games unless he can obtain the consent of the news service for which he is under contract to write. This may mean that Richards will seek to be released from his contract to write during the period of the Olympics. With both Tilden and William M. Johnston out of the Olympics, his presence on the team would strengthen it considerably.

The Letter to Mr. Wightman follows:

Richards's Letter to Wightman.

At our informal meeting Tuesday evening at the Harvard Club with Holcombe Ward and Jones W. Mersereau, when my resignation as a member of the Olympic and Davis Cup squads was accepted by you, and at our meeting on Wednesday, where Mr. Ward and Mr. Mersereau were present, I conferred with Mr. Ward as Chairman of the Amateur Rule Committee concerning my amateur standing. He has assured me that I am eligible to represent the United States, and that no action will be taken concerning my amateur standing under the player-writer interpretation during 1924, and with the further assurance from all tennis officials present at both conference that if at any time after Jan. 1, 1925, any question shall arise regarding my amateur standing because of my profession as a news paper writer, I would be given an opportunity to be present and heard at any conference when my standing as an amateur was being discussed. For this reason and because I believe it will be for the good of the game, I have reconsidered my resignation and ask to withdraw it.

I may not be able to play in the Olympic Games because of the ruling of the American Olympic Committee without the consent of the Universal News Service, which I shall represent at Paris as a general sports writer during the Olympic Games; but if at the time the players of the Davis Cup team are named my tennis shall warrant my selection as one of them, I will be glad to play and will give the best there is in me.

I have taken up general newspaper work as a profession and a means of livelihood, and I feel that I should not be considered a professional if in the course of my duties I am assigned to report a tennis game or write a tennis article.

Within the last week I covered the running matches at Philadelphia and the Havers-Sarazen golf match at the Westchester Biltmore Club, but do not feel that by so doing I become a professional runner or golfer.

I believe that the United States Lawn Tennis Association is an organization controlled by men who have the best interests of the game at heart, and that the will of the majority should and will prevail; that at the meeting when the player-writer interpretation of the amateur rule was adopted the sentiment of the majority at that time was conclusively proven by the overwhelming vote in its favor.

If at present or any future time public opinion—and the success of every game depends upon public opinion—shows that a change is desirable, the majority of members of the association can always modify or revoke an unpopular or undesirable rule. Assuring you that I am always willing to do all in my power to further the advancement of clean tennis, I am, VINCENT RICHARDS.

Wightman Grants Request.

BOSTON, Mass., May 1.—George W. Wightman, President of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, upon receipt of information concerning Vincent Richards's letter seeking the withdrawal of his resignation as a member of the American Olympic and Davis Cup teams, sent the following letter to Richards:

The substance of your letter of May 1, 1924, addressed to me as President of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, has been telephoned to me from New York and I understand that you have reconsidered your resignation from the United States Olympic team and Davis Cup squad for 1924 and that you now ask to withdraw your resignation. I am glad to grant your request.

It is good to know that you will be available for selection to represent our country in the Davis Cup competition.

Permit me to say that I consider your action most commendable. It does credit both to yourself and to the game of tennis. Yours very truly

GEORGE W. WIGHTMAN,
President U. S. L. T. A.

NEWARK DEFEATS TORONTO, 10 TO 7

Despite Cold, 5,000 Fans Turn Out for Opening of Baseball Season in Queen City.

TORONTO May 1.—Cold weather greeted the Toronto Leafs and the Newark Bears for the opening of the International League season here today. The Bears won, 10 to 7, before 5,000 fans—the lowest attendance in history at a local opening.

Jess Doyle was clouted for fourteen hits, including two home runs by Kane, and one each by Sheehan and Whitman. Fillesifter and Musante were wild, but they were fairly effective in the pinch, twice retiring the Leafs with the bases full.

MOUNTAINEERS WIN, 2-1.

Defeat Catholic University Nine Despite Their Eight Errors.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—West Virginia University scored a 2 to 1 victory over the Catholic University team on Killian Field this afternoon in a game full of blunders. The Mountaineers made eight errors to three for the losers.

The three misplays charged against the Brooklanders aided materially in their defeat. While West Virginia outhit Moran's charges, only one blow resulted in a tally, the other runs coming by way of the wild heave and boot route.

C. C. N. Y. CONQUERS LAFAYETTE, 16 TO 9

Lavender Drives Yeisley and Halstead From Box With Fusillade of Hits.

LOSERS LEAD AT START

Pile Up Seven Runs in First Two Innings, but Victors' Infield Tightens in the Third.

The C. C. N. Y. varsity baseball team continued its winning streak by handing the Lafayette team, conquerors of Army and Georgetown, among numerous others, a severe drubbing in a game played yesterday in the Lewisohn Stadium. The score of the game was 16 to 9.

The contest was one of the greatest slugging matches seen in the uptown field in many years. C. C. N. Y. scored in every one of the first six innings, tacking up a big 7 in the fifth.

Lafayette looked like an easy winner at the start. The Eastonians scored seven runs, while C. C. N. Y. could get but one, in the first two innings. The Lavender got busy and made three in the third. Although his team still held a three-run lead, the Lafayette coach thought it best to take no chances and sent in Yeisley, his southpaw ace, to start the third inning.

City College treated Yeisley's offerings unmercifully, overcoming the Lafayette lead, and sending him to join Halstead, after scoring ten runs off him in three innings. The high-water mark of this attack was a triple by Captain Trullo with two men on base in the hectic fifth frame.

The pitching of Josephson, the star Lavender right-hander, combined beautifully with his team's work in cutting off runs. The C. C. N. Y. nine was nervous and played miserably in the first two innings. Errors were almost entirely responsible for the visitors' early seven runs. But the victors found themselves in the third inning and began supporting Josephson in fine style.

Josephson has things his own way from that point on. He turned the Red and Black batters back with remarkable ease, allowing only a few scattered hits.

Lafayette got the jump with two runs in the first. Willever was safe on Plaut's fumble. He reached second on Brunner's infield out and scored on Ernst's double to centre. Ernst got to third on a passed ball and continued home when Hodesblatt threw wild to catch him.

The Pennsylvanians made five more in the next inning. Kirkileski singled off Morasco's glove and stole second. He made third on Hodesblatt's wild throw for him. Wismer walked. Slotkin scored J. Hughes's ground-er, Kirkileski scoring and Wismer going to third. Josephson filled the bases in hitting Halstead. Willever singled, scoring Wismer and J. Hughes. On the throw-in Willever took second and Halstead went to third. After Brunner had fanned Halstead came in on a passed ball. Ernst grounded out to Slotkin, Willever scoring.

City College was fighting hard and scored one in the first, three in the second, one in the third, went into the lead with three in the fourth, and then came the seventh inning orgy which put the game far away.

Match's drive which hit the second sack was good for a base. Halperen flied out to Wismer but Josephson sent Match t othird with a double to left. On a squeeze play Match scored and Slotkin was also safe when Yeisley threw badly to first. Josephson also scored on the error and Slotkin was able to get all the way around to third. Plaut hit to short but Slotkin beat the throw to the plate and both men were safe. Raskin walked. Morasco's Texas-leaguer scored Plaut and put Raskin on second. Trullo's triple to deep centre brought in Raskin and Morasco and Hodesblatt's

YANKEES' STREAK ENDED BY SENATORS

After Hugmen Knock Johnson From Box in Seventh Marberry Holds Lead and Wins, 3-2.

MEUSEL AND DUGAN FAIL

Miss Chances to Win Game in Seventh Inning—Defeat First for Yankees at Stadium.

The Yankees came to the end of their long trail of victories yesterday and lost a ball game, just to vary the monotony of success that extended unbroken back to the 21st day of April. As some one has remarked before, it's a long lane that has no turning, and the Yanks were due to turn, after having clicked off eight triumphs in a row.

It was the Washington Senators who did the trick at the Stadium by the score of 3 to 2. The Yanks knocked Sir Walter Johnson off the mound in the seventh and the visitors returned the compliment by knocking the Yanks flat for the full count, by way of showing that the Hugmen couldn't temper with their star pitcher and get away with it. It was the Yank's first defeat on their own grounds.

The Ruppert forces summoned all their pinch hitters, two catchers and three pitchers in an heroic effort to overcome Washington's three-run lead, but they weren't quite up to the assignment. The pitching, in the hands of Waite Hoyt, was a shade short of adequate, and the Yanks' hitting in the pinches—and the clinches—was more than a shade away from the desired quality. Huggins's sluggers were potent enough to chase Johnson into obscurity, but the best bat-swingers of the team lacked the finishing punch when the base lines were crowded in the last two innings.

The Yanks found it easy to get runners on the lines and hard to get them into the station where they counted as runs. Meusel fouled out with the bases full in the seventh and struck out ungracefully in the ninth with the same situation facing him. Scott had a chance to bring Pipp in from third with a mere sacrifice fly in the eighth—and fanned. Schang then raised the most docile of foul flies into Ruel's mit. When a single or a fly meant a run or more, the Yankee hitsmiths struck out or popped out or rolled out in a manner agonizing.

Storm Hits Johnson.

For all of which blame the Washington pitchers—Walter Johnson and his successor, young Mr. Marberry. Johnson was unhittable for four innings, but the Yanks began feeling him out in the fifth and sixth, after the Capital folks had rolled up three runs. Meusel singled uselessly in the sixth—something that he couldn't do later on—and in the seventh the slowly gathering storm broke around Mr. Johnson's head. Ward opened with a triple between Goslin and Rice and scored when Scott sent a low-flying fly through the same opening, also for three bases.

Much to the surprise of the crowd, Johnson left the box at this interesting juncture. He conferred with Stanley Harris, his boss, and then took himself out of the game. The Big Train is his own manager and he felt that he was slipping fast. Hence the sudden exit, followed by the entrance of Marberry.

With Scott on third and none out, Schang rolled a grounded to Prothro and was thrown out, but during the episode the runner slipped in from third. Still eager to get the tying run on the bases, Huggins sent Hendrick to bat for Sam Jones, and the pinch batter delivered with a single to left. Witt beat out a bunt to Prothro, and the stands went wild with glee. But the saddest part of the story is still to come. Dugan fanned on a swing at a ball around his neck. Ruth's walk filled the bases, but Ruel got under Meusel's none too robust pop foul.

More wasted opportunities in the eighth. Pipp opened with a single, stole second, went to third on Warde's sacrifice—and stayed there. Scott and Schang failed ingloriously, not hitting the ball past the catcher.

With one gone in the ninth, Witt singled to left. Dugan's rap toward right was too much for Harris to handle, but the manager saved the ball game by knocking the hit down, preventing it from getting past him into right field and holding Witt to a one-base advance. Whitey, on third, would have brought in the tying run on Ruth's out—another sparkling play by Harris, incidentally. The ball was too warm for Judge and rolled through him, but Harris was on it like a flash, Judge hustled back to first base and the Babe was nipped by an eyelash.

Meusel Failed in Pinch.

But there still were runners on second and third, and a single by Meusel at the eleventh hour would have saved everything. After working the count patiently to three and two—with the crowd breathless and silent—Robert hit one into the catcher's glove, and that was the end.

The Senators took the liberty of sampling Hoyt's delivery for all three of their runs. In the first inning Harris doubled inside third with one out and, after Rice had grounded out and Goslin had walked, scored on Judge's single to right.

One more in the fourth. Judge cracked the session open with a hit to centre and was neatly sacrificed a base onward by Ruel. Prothro was a victim on strikes but Peck's brief fly fell safely in centre, allowing Judge to canter in from second.

Hoyt's last inning, the fifth, was marked by another Washington outburst. Harris singled with one gone and started for second with the next pitch, which Rice smacked inside first base for two bases. Harris's headway gave him more than enough time to negotiate the plate successfully.

CUBS BEAT REDS, 8-1; HIT MAYS AND MAY

Chicago Makes 17 Safe Drives Off Three Hurlers—Move Into Second Place.

CHICAGO, May 1.—The Chicago Cubs pounded Carl Mays and Jakey May hard in the early innings and defeated the Cincinnati Reds, 8 to 1, in the first game of the series here today and move into second place in the league race. The extra base hitting of the Cubs was a feature. Their 17 hits being good for a total of 28 bases. Vic Aldridge pitched in fine form. The visitors being able to bunch hits in only one inning, when they scored with the aid of Statz's error and a sacrifice.

GIANTS BEAT BRAVES 9 TO 1, BEHIND DEAN

Drive Genewich From Mound in Fourth-Inning Rally That Scores Seven Runs.

FRISCH IN DOUBLE STEAL

Scores in Theft With Young—Victorious Pitcher Also Aids by Timely Work With Bat.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, May 1.—Wayland Dean's pitching, plus a solid attack massed by the Giants, defeated Boston today in the first game of the series, 9 to 1. Joe Genewich, who opposed Dean in the box at the start of the game, lasted only until the fourth inning, when the Giants sent him scurrying to cover under a steady fire of hits. Tim McNamara, called upon to replace Genewich, pitched the balance of the fourth inning and the fifth. Jim Yeargin finished the game and was hit for the two runs. Heinie Groh delivered four hits in five appearances at the plate. The only time Groh did not hit safely he expired on a line drive to Cunningham in deep left.

Dean again had a fine breaking curve, good control and steadiness under fire, though there were few times when he had to prove his gameness. Most of the time the Braves were easy enough for him. Casey Stengel was the only enemy hitter who bothered the youngster. Casey made three of the eight hits allowed by Dean and it was a slow roller from his bat that led to the scoring of the Braves lone run.

Dean in Trouble.

The only inning in which Dean found himself in danger was the fourth. Even then the danger that threatened was not serious, since the Giants already had scored seven runs. A fumble by Jackson of Cunningham's grounder in the fourth was followed by a double play on Tierney's rap, also to Jackson. McInnis singled and Stengel did likewise. A pass to Padgett ff d the bases, but Dean got rid of O'Neil quickly, who grounded to Jackson.

Dean, not content with baffling the Braves, helped also to bring them down by making two hits. He drove in one run and twice crossed the plate himself.

Genewich was in trouble in the first inning, but was saved by a fine double play started by McInnis. He had some difficulty getting through the second and third innings without being scored on. In the fourth he cracked suddenly and the Giants, batting around, piled up seven runs.

Giants Rout Genewich.

Meusel, leading off in the fourth, walked and was sent to third on a single by Kelly. Jackson singled to left and Meusel scored. Snyder hit to Padgett and Kelly was nailed between third and the plate. Dean singled to right, scoring Jackson. A pass to Southworth filled the bases. A single by Groh scored Snyder, and another by Frisch scored Dean. Genewich was taken out and replaced by McNamara. Young lifted a sacrifice fly to Cooney, on which Southworth scored, and when Cooney's throw carried past third, Groh also scored and Frisch went to third, Meusel taking his turn at the bat for the second time in the inning, doubled to left centre, scoring Frisch. McNamara then managed to stem the flood of runs by getting rid of Kelly on a short fly to Cooney.

Southworth hit Yargin for a single to left in the sixth, but after Groh had filed to Cunningham, Frisch forced Southworth. A single to left by Young sent Frisch to third, and a double steal followed, Frisch scoring.

Meanwhile, Dean had been turning the Braves away without a great deal of trouble, but in the home half of the sixth he faltered long enough to permit the scoring of a run. Cooney came with two out, and into the making of it went an infield hit by Stengel and a two-base blow by Padgett. Dean committed a balk that sent Padgett to third, but the inning closed with Groh throwing out O'Neil.

Dean led off in the eighth inning with a single to right. A sacrifice by Southworth pushed the pitcher down to second base, and Groh's fourth hit, a single to left centre, enabled him to score.

BROWN BEATS TIGERS WITH THREE HOMERS

Williams, Tobin and Jacobson Hit for the Circuit to Win by 8 to 7.

ST. LOUIS, May 1.—Batting Whitehill out of the box, the St. Louis Browns won from the Detroit Tigers today, 8 to 7, in the first game of the series. Ken Williams and Tobin both hit homers with two men on. Jacobson also got a four-bagger. Urban Shocker was in uniform for the first time since his recent illness.

WHITE SOX BEAT INDIANS.

Shaute's Error Starts Rally for Chicago in First—Score 13-7.

CLEVELAND, May 1.—With two out and none on, Pitcher Shaute dropped Burns's throw to get Collins in the first inning, starting a rally which netted Chicago four runs. The Cleveland Indians never overcame the lead, losing 13 to 7. The White Sox went into third place in the American League by the victory.

Fewster, who replaced Stephenson after he collided with Sheely in the first, made three hits and scored three runs in three times up.

"SHORTY" cops the CUP

"Shorty" was the club's perpetual runner up. He was six feet tall but they called him "Shorty" because he couldn't get a bit of distance in his shots. Except for that his game was great. Then somebody tipped him off to Gray Goose and "Shorty" straightway started to hit 'em a mile. Now the president's cup gleams on his mantel at home.

You owe it to your own game to give Gray Goose a trial. Listen for the clean, sweet "click" when you hit it. Watch it carry—straight and far. A dollar ball from the core out—but costing only 75 cents.

CANO, 20 TO 1, NIPS SHERMAN BY A NOSE

Form Players Receive Jolt as the 7 to 20 Favorite Fails to Get Away at Jamaica.

Cano, carrying the white silks with green sash and cap of the Oak Ridge Stable of Clendennin J. Ryan, nosed out the Rancocas Stable's Sherman to capture the Highland Claiming Stakes for three-year-olds over the course of six furlongs at the Jamaica track yesterday afternoon. Because L. Fator dallied with the Sinclair colt Rival, so that his brother, M. Fator, on Sherman, the other Rancocas entry, might get up, Cano slipped up on the outside and nipped them both.

The winner, a chestnut son of Omar Khayyam and Bonnie Tess, making his first start of the season, was a despised outsider, opening at 15 to 1 and going to 20 to 1 at post time. Merimee had the mount on the winner, which carried 105 pounds and earned $3,100 for his owner. The race was run in 1:15 over a muddy track.

Bright sunshine brought out a larger attendance than on the previous day, although a cutting wind made heavy garments desirable. Three favorites came home in front, but the players were twice hit hard. The Rancocas entry in the stake event was a strong favorite, while in the closing number the Greentree Stable's Briony, the 7-to-20 choice, was left flat at the post and cantered over the course.

In the fifth race Fairlight was practically left at the post and H. C. Fisher's Bright Idea was left flat when the field got away in the first race. There was another bad start in the third, in which J. E. Madden's pair, Repulse and Al Levy, had not a chance when the others were sent away.

Nine in Feature Race.

Nine paraded for the featured event, with the Rancocas pair the choice at 13 to 10 at post time. There was a good start in this race, and L. Fator sent Rival out into the lead, which he held until well down the home stretch. The Greentree Stable's See It Through followed the pace until the turn into the stretch, where the Jim Gaffney gelding stopped and M. Fator brought Sherman up. L. Fator had waited too long with Rival, and in the last sixteenth Merimee came along on the outside with Cano, which had been a well-placed fourth all through. The Rancocas outfit woke up when it was too late, as Cano nipped Sherman in the last jump, with Rival a length behind his stablemate. Billy Warren closed a big gap in the stretch to finish fourth.

Scratches reduced to four the field in the Richmond Claiming Handicap, a six-furlong dash for three-year-olds and upward, in which Charles A. Stoneham's five-year-old King James horse Flannel Shirt beat his opponents handily. A. J. Contento's Masquerado tossed off Jockey Burns as they were lining up at the barrier, but he quickly remounted and there was only a minute's delay. The start was good and Flannel Shirt, breaking from the inside position, was away with a rush. Not so Clarence Buxton's Missionary, second choice in the wagering, which was off poorly from the outside.

Flannel Shirt opened up a winning lead in the first quarter and was never seriously menaced. Missionary, once he got under way, was his most dangerous rival, closing a wide gap around the turn and being only two and a half lengths back of the winner at the finish. Flannel Shirt had top weight of 118 pounds up, giving three to Missionary and six to St. Allan, which finished third. The winner closed at 9 to 10, with Missionary backed down to 13 to 10 at post time. It was the second winner Jack Goldsborough had saddled at the meeting.

Alex Woodliffe Wins Agile.

Half a dozen juveniles ran the five furlongs for the Agile Purse, third on the card, getting away to a straggling start, with the Madden pair having all the worst of it. The winner was P. H. Sims's Alex Woodliffe, well seasoned by his New Orleans campaign. He ran second to Permanent Wave on the opening day of the meeting and was made the favorite at post time, closing at 7 to 5. The son of Torchbearer and Mary Sullivan was away with a rush and quickly opened a lead, but Burke had to ride him out in the stretch to hold off A. G. Blakely's Stampdale. Bill Dwyer took down third money. J. S. Cosden's Cloudland, just up from Havre de Grace and an almost equal choice with the winner, gave a dull performance and finished fourth.

MEYERS WINS AT ICELAND.

Captures One-Mile Class A Handicap Event From Scratch.

Eddie Meyers, skating unattached, won the men's Class A one-mile handicap race at Iceland last night from scratch, leading Paul O'Brien, unattached, across the finish line by a yard margin. O'Brien, who had a handicap of 40 yards, finished 10 yards ahead of Sam Goldberg of Iceland, who also started from scratch. Meyers's time for the distance was 3:13 1-5.

A thrilling finish feature the finish of the 220-yard handicap for ladies, Miss Dot Jackson of Iceland finishing less than a foot in front of Miss Marie Bertold of the Women's Skating Association. Miss Elsie Muller, who started from the scratch mark, fell on the first lap of the race.

The summaries:

Men's Class A One-Mile Handicap—Won by Eddie Meyers, unattached (scratch); Paul O'Brien, unattached (40 yards), second; Sam Goldberg, Iceland (scratch), third. Time—3:18 1-5.

Ladies' 220-Yard Handicap—Won by Miss Dot Jackson, Iceland (30 yards); Miss Marie Bertold, Women's Skating Association (40 yards), second; Miss Marie Saltis, Women's Skating Association, third. Time—0:24 1-5.

Men's Class B Three-Quarter Mile Handicap—Won by James Jaffe, unattached (45 yards); Walter Rutter, Colonial Skating Club (scratch), second; Roy Lehs, Fearless Skating Club (40 yards), third. Time—3:20 2-5.

440-Yard Class C Scratch Race—Won by W. B. Eder, Colonial Skating Club; Ray Murray, 161st Street Ice Palace, second; H. Fein, Colonial Skating Club, third. Time—0:61.

PIMLICO FEATURE TO SHUFFLE ALONG

A. C. Bostwick's Filly Beats Big Blaze by 8 Lengths in $6,000 Handicap.

EXTERMINATOR FAILS AGAIN

Veteran Gelding Is Third to Martingale and Spick and Span in the Merchants at Track Opening.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, May 1.—Shuffle Along, A. C. Bostwick's shifty son of Luke McLuke and Black Brocade, this afternoon came home a long way in front of his field to win the second running of the $6,000 Jennings Handicap, the featured number of the inaugural day of the eleven-day meeting of the Maryland Jockey Club at the Pimlico course. The four-year-old gelding picked up top weight of 110 pounds and easily beat eight others of various ages over the course of six furlongs, running the distance over a fast track in 1:11 4-5, just four-fifths of a second slower than the track record. The winner, with Stevens up, was the short-priced favorite and paid $5.10 for a $2 ticket in the mutuels. The race was worth $5,050 to the owner of the winner.

Nine paraded for the featured number, and the start was only fair. Shuffle Along broke in his stride from his post position second from the rail and he quickly opened up a length on the Glen Riddle Farm's three-year-old colt Big Blaze, which broke from the barrier at the same instant. Stevens rated Shuffle Along in front under slight restraint until they came to the last quarter, when he drew away into a long lead. He had only to gallop to lead Big Blaze past the finishing post by seven lengths.

Big Blaze, which was nearest the winner, dropped back temporarily behind Sunspero and Golden Rule, but came again in the stretch battle to take the place, outlasting Sunspero and beating him by a narrow margin of a neck. Golden Rule was two lengths in front of Sunfrag to take fourth money.

Old Exterminator once more was forced to take the dust of younger horses in the Merchants' Handicap, a journey of a mile for three-year-olds and upward. Willis Sharpe Kilmer's nine-year-old gelding, in the past the hero of many a glorious turf battle, was always outrun and struggled along back of the leaders for most of the journey. He came again at the end like the shadow of his old-time self to outlast Mrs. W. M. Jeffords's three-year-old colt Diogenes and take third money by a length. Exterminator packed 126 pounds, top weight, and Johnson rode him.

The summaries:

FIRST RACE—For two-year-olds; maidens; allowances; the Interrogative Purse; purse $1,500; four furlongs. Barbard Fritchler, 113 pounds (Marinelli), $9.40, $4.20, $3. first; Goldpiece, 115 (Taylor), $21, $10.40, second; False Face, 115 (Hurn), $6.10, third. Time—0:48 1-5. HELFFRICH PULLS TENDON.

Penn State Track Captain May Not Run in Syracuse Meet.

Special to The New York Times.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., May 1.—Captain Alan Helffrich of the Penn State track team may be unable to run in the important dual meet with Syracuse here on Saturday, it was learned today from Coach Nate Cartmell. The Nittany flier, who is national and intercollegiate half-mile champion, pulled a tendon last Saturday at the Penn relays and has failed to respond to treatment this week.

Without Helffrich Penn State's chances are dim, for the veteran was counted upon to win both the quarter and half on Saturday. It is not believed that the injury will keep him out for more than a week.

Unbeaten Sarazen Is Named To Start at Jamaica Today

Sarazen, unbeaten son of High Time and Rush Box, and the star of the Fair Stable of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt 2d has been named overnight as a starter this afternoon in the Lynbrook Handicap, a six-furlong dash for three-year-olds and upward, fourth on the card. The three-year-old gelding, Winter book favorite for the Kentucky Derby until displaced in the advance wagering by J. E. Ward's Western star Wise Counsellor, has been asked to pick up top weight of 115 pounds against nine others. The gelding, which Max Hirsch is pointing for the Preakness Stakes, has run some recent brilliant trials and yesterday was sent an easy half in 0:50 3-5 at Belmont Park, with three-eighths in 0:36, in preparation for today's race.

Walker to Defend His Title Against Tendler on June 2

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 1.—For the first time in the history of boxing a world's championship will be decided in a Philadelphia ring. Mickey Walker, welterweight champion, will defend his title against the southpaw punches of Lew Tendler on the night of June 2, at the Philadelphia National League ball park. Walker and Tendler signed articles of agreement, posted $10,000 forfeits for weight and appearance, and every other detail in connection with the championship bout was arranged today at a meeting of the principals here. The weight will be 147 pounds, eight hours before the bout. This is the first time Walker has defended his title in a decision bout since he wrested it from Jack Britton in 1922.

RURAL ROUTE WINS IN TOBACCO STAKES

Captures Second Running of Event at Lexington From Dress Goods.

Special to The New York Times.

LEXINGTON, Ky., May 1.—Hal Price Headley's chestnut filly Rural Route, by Ultimus—Rustic Maid, starting for the second time in his racing career, this afternoon won the second running of the Tobacco Stakes, a dash of four and a half furlongs for two-year-olds. The filly won handily by two lengths from A. W. Young's Dress Goods, running the distance in 0:57 3-5 over a heavy track. The winner, coupled with the same owner's Elizabeth K., was third choice in the wagering. The victory was worth $4,260 to the owner of the winner, which was in light with 114 pounds. A. W. Young's Dress Goods, coupled with F. Grabner's Stepalong, was the public choice at odds of 9 to 4. The winner paid $20.20 for a two-dollar ticket in the mutuels.

Rural Route broke slowly, but was clear of interference and came around the others from an outside position to take the lead in the first eighth and win handily under mild urging. Dress Goods also had good racing luck, but seemed to dislike the stiff going and faltered repeatedly. She just lasted to nose out Kitty Fat. The latter saved much ground and was up in time to nose out Ocean Current for third money. Stepalong was half a length back.

The summaries:

STARS TO OFFICIATE IN COLLEGIATE POLO

Milburn, Stoddard, Webb and Cooley to Referee in Tourney Starting Tomorrow.

Four of the leading polo players in the United States will alternate as referees in the intercollegiate championship tournament, which starts on the field at Fort Hamilton tomorrow, according to the announcement of Major Gen. Robert Lee Bullard, commanding the Second Army Corps Area, under whose auspices the play will be conducted. Devereux Milburn, one of the greatest performers in the world; J. Watson Webb, a member of the last American international team; Louis E. Stoddard, Chairman of the United States Polo Association, and James C. Cooley will act as officials. General Bullard said that it has been left to the convenience of the international stars to arrange the dates on which they will work, but that it was probable that Devereux Milburn would referee the opening contest between the United States Military Academy and Cornell tomorrow.

Interest in the college championships was increased yesterday with the arrival of forty sleek, clean-limbed ponies, with manes and tails braided and ribboned and each groomed to the highest degree of perfection. These mounts represented the strings of the Army, Cornell and Pennsylvania Military College combinations. Solicitous cavalrymen from Fort Hamilton whisked the four-footed players away in army trucks to the Bay Ridge stables, where special accommodations have been arranged for the strings of the eight colleges entered in the tournament.

That a great crowd will witness the opening encounter tomorrow is assured by the fact that the boxes, numbering over 1,200, have been entirely sold out for the inaugural contest, and the heavy advance sale of the other reservations indicates that the tournament will get a record for polo attendance in New York, according to General Bullard.

"Last year was the first in which the intercollegiates were played and the events were keenly contested and proved interesting to the thousands who journeyed to Fort Hamilton to witness the play. This season's tournament, according to advance indications, will not only bring forth the same throngs of spectators but will provide even finer and closer competition.

LECONEY STARTS TRAINING.

Former Sprint Champion Tuning Up for Olympic Tryouts.

Special to The New York Times.

EASTON, Pa., May 1.—J. Alfred Leconey, former Lafayette College track star and 1922 intercollegiate 100-yard and 220-yard champion, reported on March Field, Lafayette College, today for six weeks' training in preparation for the Olympic tryouts, under his old coach, Harold A. Bruce, of Lafayette. Leconey appears to be in fine shape and expects to be able to qualify for the Olympic team.

ANOTHER TRIUMPH FOR AMBER CREST

M. B. Fuller's Chestnut Wins Leg on Vanderbilt Cup in Saddle Class at Durland's

SPRING HORSE SHOW ENDS

Miss Bedell's Powder Puff Scores Upset in Saddle Class for Riding Club Cup.

The New York Spring Horse Show which closed at Durland's Riding Academy last night was gratifying to its sponsors and all lovers of fine horses. Not only were all three sessions of the exhibition well attended, but the entries were larger and the classes better balanced than at any time in recent years. Coming the week after Brooklyn's successful show, the exhibition at Durland's was conclusive proof that there still exists a genuine interest in horses and that that animal occupies a place in the affections of mankind that will never be filled by any other.

The feature of the closing night's program was the impressive victory of Mortimer B. Fuller's nine-year-old chestnut gelding, Amber Crest, in winning a leg on the Reginald C. Vanderbilt Cup, which amounted practically to the saddle horse championship of the show. Amber Crest, which scored sweeping victories in the Brooklyn Horse Show last week and continued on his unbeaten way in the Durland ring, was distinctly the best among the field of five which competed in the Vanderbilt Cup, and practically proved himself to be the best saddle horse in the East.

The veteran horseman, Harry Hess, had the mount on Amber Crest and showed him to good advantage. George Crouch, who won a leg on the Vanderbilt Cup last year with his Norma, tried hard to repeat this year with his chestnut gelding, Sun King, but Amber Crest was not to be denied. Mrs. John R. Gladding's Suzette won the reserve honors in this class.

Amber Crest Double Winner.

Shortly after his triumph in the Vanderbilt Cup Amber Crest again won the plaudits of the crowd, when, paired with Miss Katherine Cahill's Woodford Rex, he was victorious in a class for pairs of saddle horses.

The cup offered by Miss Michelle S. Newborg for the best hunter in a class for field performers went to the Knaresborough Farm's chestnut gelding, Storm Signal. The red ribbon in this class went to Michael J. Devaney's Sandy and the yellow to Fred Wettach Jr.'s consistent performer, King's Own.

Interest in last night's classes frequently amounted to enthusiasm, as was the case when the Durland prize pony was awarded to Master Robert Leland after that precocious young rider had showed his superiority over eighteen other boys and girls.

The cheering and handclapping of the well-filled galleries continued for several minutes after the award was announced, and the elated youngster had mounted his beautiful dark gray prize pony and ridden it out of the ring. The prize could not have been improved on for an 11-year-old lad that can ride as Robert could and did, but it was not an easy victory.

There were eighteen others that wanted that pony and not a one of them but is an accomplished equestrian. After careful deliberation the judges reduced the field to six, and then the real task of selecting the best rider of the lot began. The judges and the galleries finally cut the field down to two—Leland and Miss Miriam Hall, the winner in the girls' class on Tuesday evening.

Smallest Rider in Ring.

The officials reached their conclusion on ability, but the public was probably swayed by the fact that these two were the smallest among the riders still in the ring. Twice the rivals were called out to put their mounts through their paces.

GREENLEAF BEATS ALLEN FOR TITLE

Keeps World's Pocket Billiard Championship With Victory in Play-Off.

FINAL SCORE IS 125 TO 38

FINAL STANDING.	W.	L.	H.R.	B.G.
Greenleaf, Phila.	9	4	83	9
Allen, Kansas City	8	5	59	11
Taberski, Detroit	6	8	54	16
St. Jean, Minneapolis	2	10	31	20

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., May 1.—Ralph Greenleaf of Philadelphia retained his world's pocket billiard championship by defeating Benny Allen of Kansas City, 125 to 38 in 14 innings at the Recreation Billiard Theatre tonight. The regular tournament was completed last night with Allen and Greenleaf tied for first place with eight games won and four lost, and the match tonight was a play-off to decide the winner. Greenleaf started poorly and Allen gained a big lead in the tournament, which opened at Minneapolis and then moved to Detroit. The Kansas City star lost his great opportunity Wednesday night when he lost to Andrew St. Jean of Minneapolis. The latter won but two games and both of these were at Allen's expense.

Greenleaf got away badly in tonight's block, the score standing 42 to 38 in his favor at the conclusion of the thirteenth inning. Greenleaf then stepped up to the table and electrified the big crowd of fans which packed every available space in the theatre by running out with an unfinished break of 83, thereby establishing the high run record of the tournament. In this remarkable run Greenleaf made almost every conceivable variety of shot known to the pocket billiard game. Allen's best run was a cluster of 20 which he clicked off in the third inning.

At the conclusion of the game Greenleaf was presented with a diamond, emblematic of the world's championship.

The score by innings:

Greenleaf—0 14 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 4 10 0 0 83. Total, 125.

Allen—0 3 20 6 0 7 0 0 2 0 0 0 0. Total, 38.

HARVARD ATHLETES DEFEAT VIRGINIA

Carpenter Sets Crimson Discus Mark of 152 Feet 2¼ Inches —Point Score Is 82-44.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 1.—Harvard won the dual track meet with Virginia, 82 to 44, this afternoon, in the stadium, one Harvard record being shattered.

Virginia and Harvard were strong in the dashes and hurdles respectively, Castleman of the visitors capturing both the dashes, and Fletcher of Harvard both the hurdles. The "440" was a thrilling race, Captain Marshall Bohanon of Virginia defeating his teammate Talbot in 51 seconds.

Walters, Cutcheon and Tibbetts, the strong Crimson distance trio, each won his race—the half-mile, mile and two-mile runs. Tibbetts, who performed for the Harvard-Yale team against Oxford and Cambridge last year in England, ran a splendid race. He defeated Rosenburgh of Virginia by forty yards in 10:03 2-5.

The Crimson strength loomed up in the weight events. Bob Hyatt led the list, winning the broad and high jumps, while Carpenter broke the Harvard record in the discus throw, his distance being 152 feet 2¼ inches. In the shotput the Crimson reliables, Dunker and Eastman, finished first and second respectively. Eastman's distance was 44 feet 9 inches.

Kernan, the football centre, annexed the javelin event. The only field event taken by Virginia was won by Lambert in the pole vault.

HAITI SENDS RIFLE TEAM.

Gendarmerie Marksmen En Route to France for Olympics.

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, May 1.—The rifle team of the Gendarmerie d' Haiti has left for France to take part in the Olympic and international rifle matches to be held at Chalons and Rheims, respectively, in June. Major Gen. D. C. McDougal, Chief of the Gendarmerie, and Colonel H. L. Smith, both of whom have captained winning Marine Corps teams in the American national matches, are in charge of the team, which numbers two Haitian lieutenants and six non-commissioned officers.

The expenses of the team are covered solely by voluntary contributions by officers and men of the Gendarmerie. The riflemen will be Haiti's only representatives in the Olympics.

SYRACUSE WINS, 7 TO 0.

Defeats Yale Lacrosse Team—Two Players Hurt In Game.

NEW HAVEN, May 1.—Syracuse University, Intercollegiate Champions, this afternoon easily defeated Yale in an intercollegiate lacrosse game, 7 to 0. Yale was outclassed from the start, though the Blue played strongly in the second half. Syracuse made four goals in the first half through the fine work of Longley and Jenkins.

Captain Readel of the Yale team played a strong defensive game. Two Yale men, Rossiter and Sumner were painfully injured and were compelled to leave the game. Rossiter's knee was wrenched and Sumner was cut over the eye.

Billiard Results.

E. Enequist won his game in the play-off of the three-cornered tie in the Manhattan billiard tournament at the John and Nassau Academy last night from J. Krone by the score of 75 to 53 in thirty-four innings. Each had a high run of 12. Tonight O. P. Wolfe will meet Enequist in the final.

Edwin Rudolph defeated Edward Gray in a special pocket billiard match at the Hoppe Academy last night by the score of 100 to 15 in three innings. The winner had a high run of 44 and the loser, who was playing for 60, a 14.

P. Henf led twelve entries in the three-cushion rapid fire handicap tournament at the Strand Academy last night. The winner was playing for fifteen points. M. Feinman, playing for eight, was second and W. McCann, playing for thirteen, third.

James Maturo won the final block in the special 400 point billiard match at the Brooklyn Recreation Academy last night from W. Barg. The score was 118 to 48 in 37 innings. The winner had a high run of 34 and the loser 24. The final score was, Maturo 400 and Barg 356.

Tiff Denton of Kansas City defeated George Moore of New York in both games in the National Championship Pocket Billiard League at Thum's Academy yesterday. In the afternoon the score was 50 to 34 in 70 innings. Each player had a high run of 4. In the evening session the score was 50 to 35 in 46 innings. Denton had a high run of 7 and Moore 5.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 1.—The undefeated Syracuse lacrosse team today won from Yale, 7 to 0.

$1,000 Student Subscription Starts C. C. N. Y. Athletic Fund

The class of 1915 of the College of the City of New York, yesterday, before the assembled student body and Faculty at chapel exercises, made the first move outside the institution to put the athletics of C. C. N. Y. on a par with the biggest schools in the country.

Hyman Schwartz, acting for the class, presented the college with a $1,000 bond subscribed at the tenth anniversary dinner of the class, the interest of which is to go for symbolic award to the athlete who does greatest work of the year in bringing glory and fame to C. C. N. Y. on the athletic field. The members of the committee which had charge of the collection and presentation of the fund were, in addition to Mr. Schwartz, Jesse R. Raphael, Hyman L. Roth, Bertram Sommer, Joseph X. Netler, Sam Davis, E. A. Obstfeld and Dan Nessler.

COLUMBIA EIGHTS ARRIVE AT DERBY

Penn Oarsmen Also at Scene of Yale Regatta on the Housatonic Tomorrow.

Special to The New York Times.

DERBY, Conn., May 1.—Nine eight-oared crews which will race over the Housatonic mile and a half course Saturday were together this afternoon for their first practice. There were no time trials, but the three sets of three eights paddled over their racing distance, attempted a few short stretches under the watch and dressed in time for dinner.

The University of Pennsylvania squad reached here shortly after daybreak and arrived at the Hotel Clark in time for breakfast. The men did not attempt rowing until the afternoon, and spent the morning in the Bob Cook boathouse awaiting their shells and other rowing equipment. They were first on the water this afternoon, however, the second varsity starting first, with Coaches Joe Wright and Jim Rice giving them, and later the freshman and first varsity eights, individual instruction. The second eight boasted of being the first visiting crew to use the new boathouse.

The Columbia squad arrived in time for morning work. Coach Fred Miller sent his varsity eight more than three miles upstream and back, rarely raising the stroke to thirty. The freshmen were drilled by themselves, paddling slowly over most of their four-mile jaunt.

Yale's three crews did not take the water until nearly 6 o'clock. Coach Leader following the first and second varsity and George Murphy the freshmen. In the 1927 eight John Lee Bunce of Hartford succeeded Veitha at No. 5 and D. R. Welles of Duluth replaced Britingham as coxswain.

Throughout the afternoon the water was rough and a strong wind blew down the course. All the coaches tonight declined to discuss at length their respective chances, but insisted that they have selected their crews finally, barring accident or illness. The Pennsylvania and Columbia oarsmen will be sent over their racing distance twice tomorrow, when several time trials will be ordered.

President William M. Robbins of the Yale navy said tonight that the applications for tickets to the regatta Saturday exceeded the seating capacity of the thirty-two cars and that several hundred have had to be returned to the applicants. There will be no public sale. The automobile crush will be the heaviest at any boat race ever held in Connecticut, it is expected.

29 TIGER OARSMEN OFF TO RACE NAVY

Three Princeton Crews to Drill on Severn Today for Tomorrow's Regatta.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 1.—A squad of 29 Princeton crew men, in addition to coaches and managers, left here today for Annapolis, where they will race the Navy on Saturday. The three races will consist of varsity, junior varsity and freshman contests, and the meeting will be the first of the season for the Tiger oarsmen. They will hold their next workout on the Severn tomorrow morning. Dr. J. Duncan Spaeth, director of rowing, gave out the following statement before leaving:

"I am not very well satisfied with the work of the last two weeks, as the crews have been too much disorganized on account of the numerous shifts. All of the men are in good shape, however, and I expect them to row a good race."

The final shifts in the varsity resulted in Thorpe and Gretzkinler moving up into the Orange eight in Nos. 6 and 3, respectively, and this combination has been retained during the last ten days. With the introduction of both of these men the varsity seemed to take on power as well as speed, and the combination finally succeeded in beating out Coach John Fitzpatrick's freshman boat, which had shown the best form of the season. It is generally felt here that the yearlings have a better chance in their race, with the plebes than has either of the varsity boats.

During their stay at Annapolis the Tiger oarsmen will stay at Bancroft Hall as the guests of the midshipmen, and will not return to Princeton until Sunday night. Their next workout will be on the Severn tomorrow morning.

In addition to coaches Spaeth and Fitzpatrick, Manager Yandell, Assistant Manager Mivar and Freshman Manager Brush accompanied the squad. No substitutes were taken for the varsity shells, but Van Vleck and Harris of the second freshman crew were taken as possible substitutes in the yearling boat. Dr. Spaeth stated that the following seatings will be used at Annapolis unless some last-minute change is necessary:

Orange Varsity—Bow, Dwyer; No. 2, Hayden; No. 3, Rentschler; No. 4, Austin; No. 5, Forrest; No. 6, Thorpe; No. 7, Darnell; stroke, Pirie; coxswain, Kennedy.

Black Varsity—Bow, Chisholm; No. 2, Berry; No. 3, Beemer; No. 4, Helmrath; No. 5, Trimble; No. 6, Vangytenbeek; No. 7, Connor; stroke, Scull; coxswain, Laidlaw.

Freshman Boat—Bow, Ekkerson; No. 2, Wilson; No. 3, Collins; No. 4, Magee; No. 5, Ballard; No. 6, Clark; No. 7, Goodman; stroke, Aitken; coxswain, Pirie.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 1.—The Princeton rowing squad reached Annapolis this evening. Tomorrow the crews will work out over the course which will be used for Saturday's races against the Naval Academy eights. The distance will be a mile and three-quarters.

SYRACUSE-TECH READY.

Varsity Eights Have Last Drill for Boat Race on Seneca Today.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., May 1.—Eight-oared varsity crews of Syracuse University and Massachusetts Institute of Technology, which are to race over a course of one mile and five-sixteenths tomorrow afternoon, practiced on the Seneca River late today. The Bay State oarsmen displayed an impressive style, though handicapped by using a Syracuse shell, having brought along none of their own. In the contest between the two crews last year, Syracuse won by a narrow margin.

The race will be the first of the season for Syracuse, which has been slow in developing because of unfavorable water conditions. Massachusetts is confident of giving Ten Eyck's oarsmen a hard race.

BEHR AND TILDEN DEFEAT JAPANESE

New York Player Causes Upset in Clay Court Match, Beating Harada, 3-6, 7-5, 6-2.

FUKUDA ALSO ELIMINATED

Champion of Nippon Bows to American Titleholder in Philadelphia Tourney, 6-0, 6-0.

PHILADELPHIA, May 1.—The first upset in the Middle States clay courts tennis tourney occurred yesterday afternoon when Hakio Harada, singles champion of Japan, was eliminated in the third round by Allen S. Behr of New York, 3—6, 7—5, 6—2 at the Germantown Cricket Club, Manheim.

Manosuke Fukuda, the 1923 Japanese champion, also was eliminated, bowing to William T. Tilden II., national titleholder, 6—0, 6—0. Harada was within two points of victory in the second set of his match with Behr, but grew wild and tossed away four points in a row to give Behr the match game of the set.

Behr followed this by taking the next three games with a loss of only three points, to square the match at one set all. Harada's wildness was permanent. He took only two games in the next set.

The point score:

FIRST SET.

										Pts.	G.
Behr	0	2	5	0	4	2	2	3	1	25	3
Harada	4	4	3	4	2	4	4	5	4	34	6

SECOND SET.

											Pts.	G.
Behr	1	2	6	6	2	4	1	4	4	4	40	7
Harada	4	4	4	4	5	1	4	4	2	2	35	5

THIRD SET.

											Pts.	G.
Behr	4	0	4	5	7	4	1	4	—	—	29	6
Harada	2	4	3	2	5	3	4	0	—	—	22	3

Immediately after Harada was eliminated, Bill Tilden put Fukuda out of the tourney in less than fifteen minutes. It was another time when Tilden rose to the supreme heights of tennis—a repetition of the wonderful stroking ability which he displayed against the flashy Manuel Alonzo in the nationals last year. Fukuda never had a chance. Tilden allowed his opponent only ten points in the first set and not one game went over time. During the entire entire match only three games went past deuce. It was in these three games—the second, fourth and fifth of the second set—especially that Tilden excelled with the wizardry of his racquet.

The point score:

FIRST SET.

										Pts.	G.
Tilden	4	1	4	4	4	1	4	—	—	24	6
Fukuda	1	1	1	3	2	2	2	—	—	10	0

										Pts.	G.
Fukuda	3	3	2	3	3	0	—	—	—	13	0
Tilden	4	5	4	5	5	4	—	—	—	27	6

In another Middle States singles match Manuel Alonso defeated C. Rautenberg, 6-0, 6-3. A. H. Chapin Jr., New England champion, and Wallace F. Johnson of Cynwyd also advanced to the fourth round, gaining by default.

Alonso won his fourth round match by defeating Chapin, 7-5, 6-0.

Carl Fischer, intercollegiate champion, advanced to the fourth round with a 6-2, 6-1 victory over Tatnall.

The summaries:

Singles, Third Round—Linglebach defeated Snyder, 6—1, 5—7, 6—3; Manuel Alonzo defeated C. B. Rauterberg, 6—0, 6—3; Wallace Johnson won from Dr. Rosenbaum by default; Carl Fischer defeated R. Tatnall, 6—2 6—1.

Fourth Round—Carl Fischer won from Wallace Johnson by default; Manuel Alonzo defeated A. H. Chapin Jr., 7—5, 6—0; William T. Tilden defeated M. Fukuda, 6—0, 6—0; Allen S. Behr defeated Takio Barada, 3—6, 7—5, 6—2.

Doubles, First Round—R. Norris Williams and Sam Hardy defeated Steele and Vahneman, 6—0, 6—0; Wallace Johnson and Manuel Alonzo defeated Robinson and Neal Sullivan, 6—0, 6—0; Tilden and Wiener defeated Baxter and Innis, 6—0, 6—0; Coffin and Pfingst won from Behr and H. Fischer by default; M. Fukuda and T. Harada defeated S. Bradley and Clarke, 6—3, 6—1; G. Carlton Shafer and Van Dyke Johns defeated Carl Fischer and A. Chapin, 6—4, 6—4.

Second Round—Tilden and Wiener defeated Coffin and Pfingst, 4—6, 6—1, 6—2.

WINGED-FOOT CLUB HAS STRONG TEAM

Carries Total Handicap Rating of 46—Westchester Biltmore's Tourney Attracts Attention.

The Upper Montclair, Siwanoy and Westchester Biltmore clubs, which have been able to muster considerable strength for team matches in the past and which have more or less dominated the district, are to have a rival in the field this year. The new Winged Foot Golf Club, having recently added Jess Sweetser, former national amateur champion, to its list of notable players, now is able to put into the field a ten-man team with a total handicap rating of 46.

The team is captained by John G. Anderson, twice national runner-up, who is rated as a three-handicap player in the metropolitan district. Sweetser is a scratch player, and the others, with their handicap ratings, follow: Charles Paul, 4; Tom Sherman, 5; Eddie Sturges, 5; D. B. Geddes, 5; A. McAleenan, 6; H. McAleenan, 6; Walter Purcell, 6, and H. C. Richards, 6.

Sherman has been a prominent player in national circles for several years, while Sturges is the Westchester County amateur champion having won the title for the last two years.

Few events in the metropolitan district have attracted the interest that the second annual donation tournament at the Westchester Biltmore Country Club has, and close to three hundred players have entered the event, which will be played tomorrow on both the west and south courses. Among the notables who will take part are Jack Wheeler, Jim Montague, Frank Condon, Rex Beach, Rube Goldberg, Bob Edgren, Ring Lardner, Bugs Baer, Grantland Rice, Frank Craven and Briggs. As early as last week one whole room at the Westchester Biltmore was crammed full of donations which ran the gamut in variety—golf bags, clubs, balls, radio sets, rugs, wedgreed dogs, silver, coffee, sugar, perfumery, clothing, cut glass, automobile tires—everything. The only things lacking were a house and lot and an automobile. Although the committee sent out notices to the effect that $20 be the maximum spent on each prize, it was estimated that the actual value of the donations would double that amount. According to the terms of the competition, every player is bound to receive a prize. Last year Walter Hagen, who was one of the entries, won a ton of coal. Being an habitué of hotels, Walter had little use for it, but he had no trouble in trading it off to one of the suburbanites. The event has made such a hit with the male members of the club that the women are now planning to hold a similar event in the near future.

The newly formed intercollegiate league, comprising Harvard, Dartmouth, Yale, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Williams and Columbia, will start its season today at the Westchester Biltmore. Harvard and Columbia are scheduled to meet in the morning, while Harvard and Penn will meet in the afternoon.

AMERICANS HAVE WORKOUT.

Olympic Rugby Team Impresses Paris Experts—One Player Missing.

PARIS, May 1.—Sam Goodman, manager of the American Olympic rugby team, and seven of the members of the team who had remained in England when the others came on to Paris recently, reached here today.

The only missing man now is Allan Valentine, a Rhodes scholar at Oxford, who has been playing on the Oxford team throughout the Winter. He will join the Americans in Paris shortly. He is in perfect condition and does not need the strenuous training which the other members of the team will have to undergo before the regular contests.

The Americans had a hard workout today, which was witnessed by the officials of the French rugby federation,

N. Y. A. C. MEN SCORE WITH TWO WEAPONS

Nunes and McPherson Qualify for Finals With Epee and Sabre in National Bouts.

TITLES DECIDED TONIGHT

Breckinridge, Callaway, Calnan, Dr. Gignoux, Schoonmaker, Dimond and Castner Also Advance.

Leo Nunes and Chauncey McPherson, both of the New York A. C., qualified with both the epee and sabre for the final round of the national fencing championships last night in the semi-final round of the tournament conducted under the auspices of the Amateur Fencers' League of America at the New York A. C. Nunes also qualified for the final of the foils championship on Wednesday evening, so that he will be a contender for all three titles in the finals, which will be held this evening in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Astor, beginning at 8 o'clock.

Six men qualified for the final of the épée championship yesterday afternoon and six for the final of the sabre championship in the evening. The four others who will compete for épée honors, in addition to Nunes and McPherson, are Henry Breckenridge of the Fencers' Club, C. H. Callaway of the United States Navy, who holds the Intercollegiate title; Lieutenant George Calnan of the Boston A. A., the defending title holder, and Leon Shore of Washington, D. C. The four men who will compete with Nunes and McPherson in the final round of the sabre championship are Dr. J. E. Gignoux of the New York A. C., L. V. Casther of West Point, Leon M. Schoonmaker of the Fencers' Club, the defending champion, and John Dimond of West Point.

The six men who survived the semi-finals in each weapon began the final round robin last night in order to make tonight's program as short as possible and do away with the long drawn out final round that has prevailed in the past. Nunes made a fine start in the final round robin of the epee championship, winning three straight bouts. A victory in either of his two remaining bouts tonight will clinch a tie for first place for him. Breckinridge won two bouts and lost one to Nunes. Calnan and Callaway each won one bout and double touched in one.

In the final round robin of the sabre championship the competition was much closer. Three men won two bouts each and the other three each won one. Nunes, Gignoux and Dimond each won two, and the competition between the three promises to be exceptionally close. One of the best bouts of the night was that between Nunes and Castner. Castner won it by the score of 3 to 2, after the most cautious sort of tactics by both men, each of whom respected the other's steel. There was little of the spectacular to the bout, but it was exceptionally fine fencing and the men were greeted with the loudest applause of the evening.

In the semi-finals of the epee championship, Nunes and Callaway qualified on strip No. 1, the former winning five bouts. Callaway and E. P. Mengel of Yale University each won three bouts and fenced off, Callaway winning.

The summaries:

LONG ISLAND REALTY HIT BY TRAIN CUTS

Whitestone Builder Says Loans Were Refused After Proposed Reduction in Service.

RAILROAD OFFICIALS HEARD

General Passenger Agent Admits New Schedules Will Not Be as Advertised.

The Transit Commission continued yesterday to hear protests of North Shore residents of Long Island against the proposed curtailment of service on the Whitestone division of the Long Island Railroad by the cancelling of five trains daily in each direction.

William W. Wiesner, a retired fireman and at present a builder, told the commission he had built twenty-three houses, some of them recently, at Whitestone, and that loans on them were refused because of the projected changes by the railroad company.

Dr. John Holley Clark Sr., a resident of Flushing for thirty-seven years, testified that while real estate values in Flushing, in his opinion, would not be materially affected by the train curtailment, he believed points farther out on the island would suffer. He added, however, that residents of Flushing would be greatly inconvenienced.

Long Island Railroad service for Flushing had been so much better than the city's rapid transit service, he said, that the people were willing to pay the greater fare for the accommodation. He held that the railroad company had a legal responsibility to furnish the necessary transportation facilities.

Schedules Not as Advertised.

P. H. Woodward, general passenger agent for the Long Island Company, admitted that running time on the Whitestone Landing line, under the coming schedules, would not be as it has been advertised, but he refused to admit that advertising matter put out with the company's sanction was a misrepresentation of facts.

C. K. Kobet, trainmaster of the Pennsylvania Railroad in charge of the tunnel traffic from the Pennsylvania Station to the Long Island side of the river, testified concerning under-river tube congestion. The average headway between trains during the busiest periods of the day, he said, ranged from one minute and forty-five seconds to one minute and fifty seconds. He thought it would be safe to operate trains at intervals of one minute and forty-two seconds if speed were slightly reduced.

Although last Summer's service was much handicapped because too many trains were passing through "the neck of the bottle," the company, he said, intended to put on the Summer schedule seventeen additional trains, none of them on the Whitestone line. All these additional trains, however, would be long-distance carriers, and only one was to be added in the rush hour period.

Under the ruling of Vincent Victory, Assistant Corporation Counsel, the trainmaster later admitted that trains could be sent through the tunnels on a one-minute interval, assuming that the speed be greatly reduced and that changes be made in the signal system.

Figures on Tickets Disputed.

Testimony by Mr. Woodward that the number of tickets sold on the Whitestone branch during March, 1924, compared with March, 1923, showed a decided decrease was objected to by Maurice Hotchner, attorney for the aggrieved commuters, who declared that the figures submitted were contradictory to those of George F. Daggett, traffic bureau chief of the Transit Commission, and of other recent reports of inspectors, which showed a 52 per cent. average increase this year. The commission was requested to direct Mr. Daggett to go over Mr. Woodward's report and make a thorough investigation of his figures.

On the question of misleading assertions in the 1923 year book Mr. Woodward admitted that many of them would have to be modified after passengers on the Whitestone line have to change to and from city rapid transit trains at Woodside Junction as they will have direct access to and from the Pennsylvania Station in Manhattan. This undoubtedly would add somewhat to the elapsed time in transit between points, in addition to compelling passengers to use long flights of stairs between the two rail levels. In the 1924 edition of the year book, the general passenger agent said, these inconsistencies would be made to conform to the new abridged train schedules on the Whitestone Landing branch.

Mr. Hotchner in one instance caused the witness to admit that there is now no express train to and from Elmhurst, although the booklet said there was. The local trains to and from Elmhurst for a long time have been advertised with a running time of fourteen minutes from the Pennsylvania Station. Mr. Woodward conceded that under the new plan they would require several minutes longer.

MAYOR "STALLING," HE SAYS.

Commissioner Harkness Comments on Hylan Letter to Hulbert.

Mayor Hylan's letter of Wednesday to Murray Hulbert, President of the Board of Aldermen, brought disappointment to thousands of residents who had hoped that actual digging might begin within two weeks on the new Brooklyn cross-town subway.

George McAneny, Chairman of the Transit Commission, informed the Mayor in writing that if the Board of Estimate approved the contract awarded last Wednesday by the commission for a section of the Brooklyn crosstown line and voted the necessary funds, the dirt would begin to fly within about fourteen days.

But Mayor Hylan in his letter to Mr. Hulbert on the same day declared that the whole subject of new subways must now be held in abeyance until he appoints his new Board of Transportation next July. The Mayor clearly intimated that even the routes themselves, which met with his written approval and that of the Board of Estimate nine months ago, will be subject to revision and change by the new board and that in the meantime everything should wait.

Transit Commissioner Leroy T. Harkness was asked yesterday if he had any comment to make upon the position now taken by Mayor Hylan.

Yes," he said. "In length it is just one word—'Stalling!'"

NEW SUBWAY IS INSPECTED.

Business Men, Guided by Transit Engineer, See 14th Street Tube.

The Fourteenth Street-Eastern subway line, part of which is expected to be in operation by early Summer after seven years of work, was inspected yesterday by members of the Fourteenth Street and Central Mercantile Associations under the guidance of Robert Ridgway, chief engineer of the Transit Commission.

From the terminus at Fourteenth Street and Sixth Avenue, the party went through the tunnel to Union Square, traveling thence by bus and automobile to Montrose and Bushwick Avenues, Brooklyn, where the line will terminate until it can be extended to East New York. There the group again descended to the tracks and walked through the subway to the station at Grand Street, which is almost finished.

Construction of the subway from Sixth Avenue to Grand Street, a distance of about four miles, is practically complete and is expected to be put in operation by July 1. The section between Grand Street and Montrose Avenue will not be ready until late Summer or the Fall.

TILT AT HEARING ON PHILIPPINE BILL

Schaefer Starts It With Question Reflecting on General Wood and Governor Forbes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—A lively tilt was provoked at today's hearing of the House Insular Committee on the Fairfield Philippine Government bill as a result of questions asked by Representative Schaefer, a Wisconsin Republican, designed to bring out testimony that Governor Leonard Wood and W. Cameron Forbes, a former Governor of the Philippines, were or are interested in a business way in corporations that are alleged to be fighting Philippine independence.

Mr. Schaefer's suggestion that Governor Wood and Governor Forbes were influenced by business considerations in drawing up the report they made in 1921 to President Harding protesting against immediate Philippine independence, evoked sharp protests from Representatives McLafferty of California, and Kless of Pennsylvania.

"If it is your intention to question the motives that animated General Wood and Colonel Forbes in making their report in 1921," said Chairman Fairfield, addressing Mr. Schaefer, "common decency dictates that we should give these two gentlemen an opportunity to present their testimony on the subject."

"I would be glad if General Wood and Colonel Forbes were asked to appear before us," replied Mr. Schaefer.

Mr. Schaefer's remarks came up in the course of testimony offered on the Fairfield bill by Charles M. Swift of New York, President of the Manila Electric Company. Mr. Schaefer asked the witness if Colonel Forbes was associated with the firm of J. G. White Company of New York. Mr. Swift replied in the negative, adding that Mr. Forbes was interested in the firm of Stone & Webster of New York.

Mr. Schaefer asked the witness if he knew anything about a report that an attempt had been made in General Wood's administration to turn over steam railroads in Luzon to the J. G. White Company. Mr. Swift replied that the New York concern suggested to the Philippine Government that it would like to take over the management of a railroad in Luzon, but that the proposal was rejected by General Wood.

CHINESE BANDITS ROB AMERICAN PRIESTS

Father Gleason and Father Ford of Maryknoll, N. Y., Are Freed on French Intercession.

HONGKONK, May 1.—The American priests, Fathers Ford and Gleason, accompanied by a party of several Catholics, while crossing the frontier of the French concession of Kwang-chow Wan, en route to the interior, were attacked by bandits, who seized the money and belongings of the entire party and detained the travelers.

The French authorities later obtained the release of the captives and the return of some of their belongings.

MARYKNOLL, N. Y., May 1.—Fathers Francis X. Ford and Maurice Gleason, who were attacked and robbed by Chinese bandits, were Catholic missionaries sent out from the Maryknoll Seminary.

The Rev. Father Ford's home is in Brooklyn. He was the first graduate missionary of Cathedral College, New York, and has been in China for six years. The Rev. Father Gleason came to the seminary from Chicago and was sent to China last September.

IRON WORKERS STRIKE.

Want Closed Shop and More Pay—Big Building Stopped.

Iron workers in Manhattan, Brooklyn and Northern New Jersey struck yesterday and announced that they would remain out until their employers signed a closed shop contract for $12 a day instead of $10.50, the present wage. Although a few remained at work on small jobs, the major part of steel erection on large buildings was halted.

According to Robert T. Thomas, Secretary of the Iron League, which is the open shop organization of employers, not more than 1,000 structural iron workers left their posts. Union officials put the number at 3,000.

Among the building affected were the $10,000,000 building of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., at Washington and Greenwich Streets, an apartment house at 277 Park Avenue, one of the largest operations in New York, the Postum Cereal Building at Park Avenue and Forty-eighth Street and several public schools.

Charles Howard, business agent of local 40 of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, said he was pleased with the response of his men and of the members of local 361 which covers Northern New Jersey. It was thought possible yesterday that officers of other building crafts organizations might try to bring peace for the strike of iron workers is the only cloud on the building trade horizon in New York at present.

The union representatives said that some smaller builders already had agreed to their demands. The iron workers have not been recognized as a unionin New York since 1905, but they have kept up their organization.

COOLIDGE CONGRATULATES.

Vermont Bookseller Gets Letter on His Fiftieth Anniversary.

Hobart J. Shanley, a bookseller of Burlington, Vt., recently celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his entrance into business in that city. The matter was called to the attention of President Coolidge, who sent him a letter of congratulation. The letter reads:

"THE WHITE HOUSE.
"Washington."
"April 4, 1924.

"My Dear Mr. Shanley:

"I have heard from friends that on April 8 you will have completed fifty years as a bookseller and I want to take this opportunity to add my word of congratulation to the many which you will receive. I know that in your long career there must have been an appreciation of literature and a real love for books over and above the purely commercial aspect, and I trust that you may look forward to further years of real service in directing your patrons to what is best and really worth while.

"Very truly yours,
"CALVIN COOLIDGE."

The Merchants' Bureau of Burlington gave Mr. Shanley a dinner and presented a loving cup to him.

Bishop Garland Is Installed.

PHILADELPHIA, May 1.—The Rt. Rev. Thomas J. Garland was today installed eighth Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Pennsylvania, comprising five counties in the southeastern corner of the State. More than a score of Bishops and hundreds of the clergy from different parts of the United States were present. Bishop Garland, who had been Suffragan Bishop since 1911, succeeds Bishop Philip M. Rhinelander resigned.

BERGDOLL SOUGHT ON GERMAN SHIPS

Authorities Hunt in Vain for Slacker on New Liner Columbus and the Yorck.

SUBMARINE SKIPPER HERE

Paul Koenig, Who Brought Deutschland Over, Predicts Undersea Rum Runners.

When the 32,000-ton liner Columbus of the North German Lloyd, the newest and largest of German steamers, docked for the first time at the foot of Fifty-eighth Street, South, Brooklyn, yesterday morning, American Army officers and men searched unsuccessfully through her decks and cabins for Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, the deserter, who was rumored to be aboard.

A number of well-known Germans were on board, including Philip Heineken, President of the North German Lloyd; Paul Koenig, who commanded the German cargo submarine Deutschland, which penetrated the British blockade and landed at New London during the war; Louis Adlon, proprietor of the Adlon Hotel in Berlin, and Georg Bernhard, editor of the Vossische Zeitung.

Paul Koenig sounded a warning of the danger that submarines would soon cross the ocean with rum cargoes to avoid the dry navy. Editor Bernhard said that the death of Stinnes had not made much more than a ripple in Germany.

"He was a man of undoubted genius, and it will be a long time before the full effects of his death are known, but it is nevertheless remarkable how small a disturbance was caused by his death. Many of his companies will probably have to be distributed by his estate. His newspaper interests have not been much affected. Though a man of genius and of vast interest, the importance of Stinnes always was vastly exaggerated abroad. A great legend was built up about him."

Dawes Report Favorably Received.

Bernhard said that the Dawes report had made a favorable impression on Germany and that it was a "campaign document" for the Socialists and the Moderate Central Party, as against the Communists and Monarchists, in the election next Sunday. He said that most Germans were pleased with the partial recognition given in the Dawes report to the principle that German reparations must in the long run be paid out of foreign trade in Germany's surplus products. Regarding reports that Germany hoped to make war again by means of extraordinary chemical discoveries, by secretly constructed airplanes and secretly drilled armies, he said:

"Babble! Legends! Young men are always radical and aggressive, and there are some who continue to talk foolishly in Germany. But most people in Germany want peace. They are tired of quarrels. The Germans have had experience with war and its consequences and want no more of it. What the German people want today is a chance to live. They are interested in the economic and financial restoration of the Government and every man is for himself."

The rumor that Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, pre-eminent as a slacker, was concealed on the Columbus and trying to enter the country in disguise, came to the Government in such definite shape that a small army of searchers from Governor's Island boarded the ship at 7 o'clock Wednesday night when the Columbus dropped anchor at Quarantine. The officers in charge were Majors Harry A. Auer and A. G. Rudd and Captains C. C. Cromwell and J. B. Ettenger. Captain Johnsen of the Columbus turned the ship over to them and an all-night search for Bergdoll was made without success. When the passengers landed early yesterday morning, they passed an inspection at the gangplank by Lieut.-Col. Col. Rudd, commandant of the disciplinary barracks at Governors Island and a member of the Bergdoll court-martial.

Describes New Liner.

President Heineken of the North German Lloyd said that thousands of Germans were seeking to immigrate to the United States because their living was cut off in Germany. If denied a refuge here, most of them, he said, would go to South America. Regarding the new ship Mr. Heineken said:

"All the great transatlantic companies are constantly engaged in evolving their idea of the perfect passenger liner. The Lloyd has not been behind hand in this respect, but we have always taken a line of our own. Each company sees the question of the best type of ship from its own particular angle and this standpoint is decided according to the opinion of what is the paramount attraction. Undoubtedly there was a time when the fascination of speed outweighed all other inducements and we had no choice but to build very fast ships, or rather ships which were very fast in their day. Even then, however, we thought we foresaw, and we were correct in the anticipation, that the supremacy of speed would not last, and for that reason we followed the Kronprinzessin Cecile with the George Washington. In our opinion speed was encroaching too much on more essential conditions. The idea which first took shape in the George Washington we now propose to put into effect, but will venture to call symmetrical completeness in the Columbus. We believe the ship to be worthy of her great name.

"It think there has been a good deal of misconception about German shipbuilding. Its recent development was so rapid that the section of the general public who were sufficiently interested in the subject to give it thought could only imagine it was being artificially stimulated. As I have said on previous occasions, German shipping and shipbuilding have never received any artificial assistance: it has been purely a matter of natural growth stimulated by a force far stronger than subventions, that is, by pressing national needs.

"Had it not been for a gyroscopic compass on the Columbus the heavy fog which hung over the bay as she approached might have long delayed her docking. Navigators on the bridge said they could not see barely half a block length ahead of them. Notwithstanding, the run from Fire Island to the Ambrose Lightship, where Pilot S. C. Beggs was picked up, was made in the fast time of one hour and twenty-five minutes."

Louis Adlon is visiting America for the first time since 1913, to inspect hotels here. "American tourists are again coming into Germany in large numbers," he said, "and the report that has gone abroad that German hotels are overcharging is not true. We are doing everything we can to encourage tourists, and our rates, even at the Adlon, are as low as $2 a day for single persons."

Mrs. Ewan Justice, who arrived on the Columbus, said that she had been released from her engagement to marry Baron Friedrich Wilhelm August von Hagen because she has found her "real soul-mate" in Frans Weidner, general director of the Hotel Adlon in Berlin.

"I suppose my friends will be shocked, but I don't see any reason why," she said. "Weidner has sent me a radio message every day of this trip. There is nobody for me except him."

The Yorck of the North German Lloyd line arrived from Bremen at Pier C, Hoboken, last night with thirty-seven passengers. Two hundred passengers were discharged at Halifax. Officials from the Department of Justice boarded the vessel at quarantine and scrutinized every member of the crew and all the passengers in an unsuccessful search for Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, who is said to be on his way to the United States from Germany on a German vessel.

DAWES REFUSES OVATIONS.

Turns Down All Chicago's Plans to Do Him Honor.

CHICAGO, May 1.—Brig. Gen. Charles G. Dawes, home today from abroad after submitting the experts' report to the Reparation Commission, refused to permit bands to meet him or any demonstration in his honor and declined to be interested in the discussion of making him the Republican Vice Presidential nominee.

"No, no," was about all he would say, except for a few picturesque words, about anything, but he was in high good humor.

There was to have been a big demonstration and reception in Evanston, but General Dawes got wind of it and headed it off. Previously he had declined to be dined by the Illinois Manufacturers' Association.

"Nothing in that; nothing in that, so far as I am concerned," his comment on the Vice Presidential gossip, was the longest sentence he uttered.

UNDERGOES 50TH OPERATION

Dr. Baetjer of Johns Hopkins Is a Victim of X-Ray Infections.

BALTIMORE, May 1.—Dr. Frederick H. Baetjer, professor of roentgenology at Johns Hopkins Medical School and distinguished for his work with the X-ray, submitted Tuesday to his fiftieth operation to remove infections caused by burns from the powerful ray, it was learned last night.

Four of Dr. Baetjer's fingers were amputated, due to burns, about fifteen years ago, and several years later infection developed. The hand was saved by grafting skin from the abdomen, but the old infection has necessitated operations at intervals since that time. Recently, however, the infections were found to be spreading and the fiftieth operation was performed in an effort to permanently check it.

Dr. Baetjer reacted well, physicians said, and probably will leave the hospital within ten days.

"World's Tallest Policeman" Retires

HARTFORD, Conn., May 1.—Police Sergeant Daniel B. (Big Dan) Ahern is retiring from active duty on the Hartford police force because of ill health and will be placed on the pension list. Known as "the tallest police officer in the world," Sergeant Ahern is 6 feet 7½ inches in height. He has participated in many important arrests, including the catching of a murder car five years ago after the night watchman at the Cheney Silk Mills in South Manchester had been killed.

Public School Notes.

ASSOCIATE SUPERINTENDENT TO BE ELECTED.—With Dr. William J. O'Shea taking up his duties yesterday as City Superintendent of Schools, a vacancy occurs in the ranks of the Associate Superintendents. The question of the election of an Associate Superintendent to succeed him came up at the meeting of the Board of Education last week, at which he was elected City Superintendent to succeed Dr. William L. Ettinger, but was postponed on the motion of Commissioner John E. Bowe. It was said that the position would be held open for Dr. Ettinger, in case he cared to accept it, but he announced immediately after the meeting of the board that he would not consider the lower position. Meantime, a movement has been started aiming at the election of Dr. Ettinger as City Superintendent Emeritus. Dr. Ettinger has gone to New Jersey to rest after the strain of the last two months. Many friends or Dr. O'Shea sent flowers yesterday to his office and many persons connected with the Board of Education called to congratulate him.

ASK NEW HIGH SCHOOL.—Petitions are being circulated on the lower east side requesting the Board of Education to construct a new high school building in Grand Street. The William H. Seward High School, at Hester and Essex Streets, offers the only facilities in this part of the city for upper grades of high school work.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, May 1.—The disturbance central Wednesday night over the Middle Atlantic States advanced rapidly northeastward, and Thursday night its centre was over the Province of Quebec. During the last twenty-four hours this disturbance caused rains and snows over Southern Canada east of the Ninetieth Meridian and rains in the Middle Atlantic and New England States, the Ohio Valley, Tennessee and Florida. In all other parts of the country the pressure was relatively normal and the weather fair during Thursday.

The temperature has fallen somewhat since Wednesday night in the Atlantic States, and it has risen over the Mississippi Valley, the Plains States and the Northwest.

The outlook is for generally fair weather with moderate temperature during Friday and Saturday over all districts east of the Mississippi River.

COUNTRY-WIDE WEATHER CONDITIONS.

In the following record of observations at United States Weather Bureau stations yesterday the temperatures given are the highest during the twelve hours from 8 A. M. to 8 P. M. and the lowest during the preceding twelve hours from 8 P. M. to 8 A. M.; the barometer reading and condition of weather are those recorded at 8 P. M., and the rainfall is for the twenty-four hours ended at 8 P. M.:

Ask Help to Kill Moles.

The Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture was called upon recently to aid in the systematic eradication of moles in Thurston County, Wash. This campaign has been helped by extention workers who have encouraged farm women to make use of moleskins as a trimming for clothing, especially for children's coat collars and cuffs, caps and their own dresses. A great many moles have been trapped by schoolboys, who have been offered 10 cents or more for each pelt. In some regions the Biological Survey has arranged to have pelts tanned for a small sum each; in other communities those who wish to use the skins get them tanned at a local tannery for a few cents. In many cases the farm women themselves have learned how to do the tanning either through their home demonstration clubs or by other means. In this way the results of trapping serve a useful purpose at a nominal cost.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Recovery on Stock Exchange—Bonds Firm—Liberty Loans at Year's Highest.

The effect of the lower Reserve bank rate appeared most distinctly yesterday, as it is apt to do, in the market for Government bonds. The Wall Street money market was not particularly influenced by the change except for bankers' acceptances, which declined one-eighth or one-quarter of 1 per cent. Rates for time money and commercial paper were unmoved. But nearly all Liberty bonds advanced to new high prices for the year, most of them selling considerably above the best figures of 1923. This particular upward movement had been vigorously under way long before a lower rediscount rate was considered; it was caused by conditions in the general money market which existed quite independently of the bank rate, and which, it is fair to say, were themselves the real reason for the reduction in that rate. The most important implication of this rise in high-grade investment bonds is the probability that it is preparing the scene for subscription to large new issues of securities, home and foreign.

Prices advanced in the stock market also, though with interruptions which for a time carried many shares back below Wednesday's closing. This advance may conceivably have been the result of more cheerful sentiment over the lower bank rate; but in a stock market which for so long a time has responded to nothing but the changing mood of professional speculators and the increase or decrease of the "short account," people will be slow in drawing larger inferences. Most of the stock market ended around the best figures of the day, with a rather substantial number of one-point net recoveries.

Naturally, after Wednesday's action on the bank rate, yesterday's weekly Reserve bank statements were examined with interest. Their showing emphasized strongly the tendencies which were recognized by the lower rediscount rate. The New York bank's reserve ratio stood a week ago at 90⅝ per cent., which was the highest since the war; this week it rose to 91 1-8. Its rediscounts decreased $14,000,000 for the week; at $47,861,000, they compare with $211,574,000 a year ago. The reserve ratio of the entire system also rose; this week's percentage, 82, is practically back at the year's high level of Feb. 6, which was the highest since the Spring of 1917. Outstanding note circulation of the twelve Reserve banks combined decreased $14,803,000 for the week; it is down $319,000,000 from the last return of 1923, whereas the reduction in the corresponding period a year ago was only $174,000,000. It now remains to be seen whether reduction of one-half of 1 per cent. in the bank rate will in any respect arrest or reverse these various movements.

Sterling advanced nearly 1 cent on yesterday's foreign exchange market, and the franc recovered to the week's high rate of 6⅛ cents; which is still, however, ⅜ cent under the season's top mark of April 23. The monthly settlement at Paris should now be in its preliminary stages.

Yesterday's weekly car-loading statement made the same kind of comparison as those of the four preceding weeks; that is to say, the traffic indicated was much below that of a year ago, but far in excess of the corresponding period in any other year. Loadings for the week covered by the statement, ending April 19, were less than in 1923 by nearly 3¼ per cent., but they exceeded by 9½ per cent. the week's best previous record, that of 1920. What was perhaps more noticeable was that the number of cars loaded decreased as compared with the week preceding, whereas it increased in each of the five preceding years. It was still a significant fact that loadings of general merchandise continued to show an increase over 1923.

MONEY.

THURSDAY, MAY 1, 1924.

Stock Exchange call money was easier, rate moving off to 3½ per cent. at 2 o'clock, after opening and renewing at 4½, and interval of 4 and 3¾. Approximately $15,000,000 was taken, $5,000,000 of it as withdrawals. Time money was dull and unchanged, 4½ per cent. lending and trading up to June 15 maturity, while beyond that 4½ was the offered rate. Acceptances yielded ¾, to 3⅝ per cent. bid, offered at 3½, lowest since early October, 1922, while later dates declined ⅛. Market was active, quite a fair amount of bills being offered and sold. Merchants' notes, however, prevailed as heretofore, at 4¼@4¾ per cent.

MONOTYPE EARNINGS UP.

Net for Year $715,531, Against $641,091 in Preceding 12 Months.

The Lanston Monotype Machine Company reports $715,531 net earnings for the year ended Feb. 29, 1924, against $641,091 a year ago. These earnings are before deductions for taxes and depreciation of machinery, which charges are made against the company's surplus account. After setting aside $85,914 for tax reserves and $69,549 for obsolete machinery, the company reports a profit and loss surplus of $4,877,867, against one of $4,677,791 a year ago. The company during the year paid $300,009 dividends and added $355,531 to surplus account.

President J. Maury Dove says in his statement to stockholders: "While the printing industry was below normal in volume of business for the year, our cash sales showed a marked increase, indicating a sound financial condition in the trade. In September, 1923, the company began shipment of the new monotype material-making machine. More than one hundred of these machines have now been supplied to daily newspapers, job offices and trade compositors."

American Zinc Profits Smaller.

The American Zinc, Lead and Smelting company for the first quarter of 1924 reports operating profit of $67,834, against $142,666 in the first quarter of 1923, before reserves for depreciation and depletion.

REPORTS INCREASED PROFIT

International Telephone and Telegraph Earns $8.40 on Common.

The International Telephone & Telegraph Corporation made public yesterday its consolidated income statement for 1923, showing total income of $4,703,234 against $3,847,809 in 1922. Net income, after depreciation, interest and taxes, was $1,661,184, equal after preferred dividends of subsidiaries to $8.40 a share on the 174,354 shares of common stock outstanding, against $1,813,754 or $7.35 a share on 150,728 shares outstanding in the preceding year.

The balance sheet as of Dec. 31 shows current assets of $2,379,275 and current liabilities of $1,456,819. Plant, property and concessions aggregate $24,228,078. Expenditures in connection with the acquisition of new properties last year were $1,117,108.

Bolivia to Redeem Loan.

The Republic of Bolivia has called for redemption its external 8 per cent. sterling loan of £500,000, or approximately $2,500,000. It was announced yesterday by Ramon Pando, Consul General. Payment will be made on or after July 1 at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co., New York, or Morgan, Grenfell & Co. in London, upon presentation of the outstanding bonds. Reports were current that Bolivia was in the market for a new $10,000,000 loan, in terms of dollars, but definite confirmation was lacking.

Beginning March 23, 1925, the Stock Exchange officially quotes Liberty Bonds in units and fractions, the fractions being 32ds of a unit and the quotations after the decimal point representing one or more 32ds. In the above table, therefore, the figures of highest and lowest prices during 1924 and since date of issue are reduced to the form now used in the Stock Exchange quotations.

NEW BANK RATE SENDS BONDS UP

Rediscount Cut Causes Advance in Virtually All Classes of Investment Securities.

GAINS IN STOCK MARKET

Reserve Bank's Action Probably Most Significant Financial Event This Year, Bankers Say.

Prices of virtually all classes of investment or semi-investment securities advanced yesterday, and interest rates declined in response to the establishment of the new rate of 4 per cent. on rediscounts by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. The announcement of a reduction from 4½ per cent., which had ruled since Feb. 26, 1923, came too late on Wednesday to affect the markets, and yesterday's markets registered in full the reaction of the financial community.

The reduction was regarded in banking circles as probably the most significant financial event of the year. Bankers were of the opinion that the lower interest rates would lubricate the credit machinery for business whenever business was ready to resume its advance; but in and of itself, they said, it would not prove a stimulant. Other basic factors would have to be taken into consideration, they explained, among the most important of which are tax rates, which are awaiting Congressional action, and the actual functioning of the Dawes plan in Europe.

A summary of the day's movements of prices and adjustment of interest rates showed the following changes, which were regarded as significant:

A further spurt in Liberty bonds and Treasury certificates to their highest levels of the year; the lowering of the call loan rate to the lowest figure for the first day of any one month since before the war; a decline in the rate on bankers' acceptances; an advance in prices of stocks, led by semi-investment issues; a general advance in the bond market; the scaling down of interest rates paid by banks on deposits.

Government Issues.

The record of the Liberty and Treasury issues in the Government group was said to represent a process of attuning interest yields on these gilt-edged securities with the present money market's rates. The following table shows the record of the Government securities for the day:

Security.	Price Thursday.	Price Net inc.	All time.
Liberty 3½s	100	99.30	3-15½s 103.1

New high for Closing

The advance of the Treasury 4½s carried that security up to the highest point for all time and a gain of nearly $35 in every $1,000 unit as compared with the low price of 96.20, touched on April 28, 1923. Prices of other classes of bonds, including railroad, industrial, public utility and Foreign Governments, also moved higher in more active trading, the average price as compiled by THE NEW YORK TIMES having moved up eleven one-hundredths of a point, a gain that is substantial in bond price averages.

The advance in stock market averages was sharper, although it was not regarded as so significant as the smaller gain of the stable bond averages. The average price of twenty-five industrials advanced 1.84 points and the average price of twenty-five railroad stocks advanced .48 point, the net gain of fifty representative stocks having been .91 point. The total of shares dealt in on the New York Stock Exchange was 846,551.

The Money Market.

In the money market, the outstanding feature was the easy tone of the call loan rate. The quotation opened and renewed at 4½ per cent., an unusually low figure for the first day of any month, due to the normal strain on money facilities attendant with interest and dividend payments and the settling of other accounts. The quotation thereafter gave way to 3½ per cent. Time money rates showed no change, the market for thirty-day money and for longer maturities having been extremely quiet. Bankers' acceptances fell from one-eighth to one-quarter of 1 per cent., the rates quoted yesterday having been 3½ to 3⅝ per cent.

Further light on the abundance of idle money on hand in New York was afforded in the weekly statement issued yesterday by the New York Federal Reserve Bank for publication today. Total gold reserves stood at $1,618,932,000, against $991,574,000 the week before and $1,081,640 one year ago. Total bills discounted fell off to $47,861,000 from the previous week's figure of $61,938,000, and contrasted with a total of $211,574,000 for the corresponding week of 1923. Bills bought in the open market showed a moderate gain for the week, the figures having been $27,165,000, against $25,728,000, but only about half the total for the same week of 1923, when bills bought amounted to $54,373,000. The total of United States Government securities held by the bank, which represented the employment of money not needed for commercial requirements, ran up to $65,547,000, against $57,451,000 the week previous week only $3,739,000 for the corresponding week of last year. Deposits also showed an increase of about $26,000,000 for the week.

MAY CUT REDISCOUNT RATE.

Boston and Philadelphia Are Expected to Follow New York.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Reduction of the rediscount rate by the New York Reserve Bank yesterday from 4½ to 4 per cent. is expected at the Treasury to be followed by similar action by the Reserve Banks at Boston and Philadelphia.

Members of the Reserve Board while expressing no opposition felt it would accomplish little change in the general economic situation. Secretary Mellon, among others, believes the reduction will do little to stimulate new business, inasmuch as he regards the general money supply as adequate and the present rates easy.

Rolls Royce Earns $313,239 in Year.

Rolls-Royce of America, Inc., reports $313,239 net income last year, after reserves for depreciation, interest charges and other deductions, against an operating deficit of $294,500 in 1922. The balance sheet for Dec. 31 shows a profit and loss deficit of $772,823, against one of $1,086,063 at the close of 1922.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The Bank of America, New York, has issued its statistical data sheet for April, comprising a chart of business barometers on money and banking, securities markets, production, commodity prices, railroads and commercial failures.

William A. Thompson returned to the National Surety Company yesterday as Vice President.

Roberts, Andrews & Co. announce the removal of their offices from 71 Broadway to 165 Broadway.

Joseph A. Flynn, formerly a partner of George H. Watson & Co., has become associated with McClure, Jones & Reed.

Bertle & Co. announce that Henry H. Hay has joined their organization. Mr. Hay has been district sales manager for the National City Company in Ohio for the past four years.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Increased Activity Brings Higher Level of Rates—Sterling, Francs and Guilders Strong.

European exchanges stepped out of the lifeless state into which they had recently fallen, yesterday witnessing a decided bulge in the volume of business transacted. London sent higher cables at our start, which attracted a certain amount of realising and unsettled the preliminary gains; but the list very shortly realigned itself and shot forward for further advances over Wednesday. London was a heavy buyer all day, taking all that we had to offer and forcing covering purchases by those who had sold earlier in the week. Sterling checks opened ½ cent. higher, at $4.85, yielded a fraction on profit taking, but rallied to $4.85⅝ at the close, for a net gain of a full cent over previous final.

French francs were also in good demand, its opening gain of 2 points at 6.46½ cents subsequently being run into more substantial improvement at 6.50¼ at the close. The weekly statement of the Bank of France, showing an increase in loans to the Government and in circulation, had no effect upon the market as these changes obviously represented month-end demands for credit and currency. Holland guilders were strong, advancing to a new high on this movement at 37.50 cents, a gain of 10 points over Wednesday. Italian, Belgian and the Scandinavians were higher, but the Spanish and Swiss bills yielded. Far Easterns were easier, while the South Americans moved forward.

Holiday at London—Sterling and Dollars Rise at Paris.

PARIS, May 1.—Prices on the Bourse today were firm. Three per cent. rentes 20 centimes higher at 53 francs 80 centimes; 5 per cent. war loan 85 centimes lower at 69 francs 35 centimes.

Exchange on London rose 2 centimes to 67 francs 90 centimes per sovereign; the American dollar was quoted at 15 francs 50¼ centimes, against 15.49½; yesterday.

LONDON, May 1.—Today was a holiday on the Stock Exchange.

Finds Bond Buyers Cautious.

Confidence in the security markets is proportionate to the grade of the securities, says Moody's Weekly Review. "Bonds are stronger than stocks, high grade bonds stronger than those of medium grade, railroad stocks stronger than industrials, and preferred industrials stronger than common," the review asserts. "These are symptoms of lack of confidence, for the public at present is not enticed by high yields or promise of appreciation."

Quarterly Dividend Declared.

Directors of the J. G. White Engineering Corporation have declared the forty-fifth regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. on the preferred stock, payable June 1 to stock of record May 15.

CAR LOADINGS DROP FOR THE FIFTH TIME

Decrease of 81,119 in the Week of April 19 From Same Period a Year Ago.

AGAINST SEASONAL TREND

Decline From Seven Days Immediately Preceding—Small Lots of Merchandise Increase.

For the fifth consecutive week car loadings of revenue freight were less in the week of April 19 than in the corresponding week of last year. The car service division of the American Railway Association reports they were 876,923 cars, a decrease of 81,119. There was also a decrease of 4,376 cars in comparison with the week of April 12, although loadings should have been greater, due to the seasonal trend.

Further declines were registered in coal loadings, 124,750 cars, 3,042 below the preceding week and 55,051 less than a year ago. Decreases were registered in all commodities, except merchandise, last year, and the Southwestern district was the only one to show an increase of traffic over 1923.

Merchandise and less-than-car-load-lot freight showed an increase over last year. The total was 249,273 cars, a decrease of 4,890 from the previous week, but an increase of 10,679 cars over last year. Miscellaneous loadings totaled 235,302 cars, a decrease of 17,640 from a year ago.

Loadings of all commodities compare as follows:

	1924.	1923.	1922.	1924.

Notes in circulation	decreased	3,314,307
Deposits	increased	23,343,676
Other liabilities	increased	96,764,070

Rentenbank loans unchanged.

Total gold holdings as shown by the above statement are 441,815,000 marks, compared with 459,806,000 last week and with 920,830,000 a year ago. Gold holdings on Aug. 1, 1914, were 1,358,100,000 marks; at the armistice in November, 1918, they were 2,850,240,000.

Total reserves of coin and bullion, including token money, 442,044,000 marks, compared with 1,071,341,000 in the first week of March, 1923, before the inclusion of token money on a large scale had begun.

Following is the total of German note circulation over a series of weeks and years, in millions of marks:

On July 31, 1914, at the outbreak of the war, the note circulation was 2,609,422,000 marks; in the week of the armistice, on Nov. 17, 1918, it was 10,952,260,000.

APPROVES DAWES PLAN.

Banker Says the Entire World Must Cooperate to Assure Success.

The Dawes plan must be taken whole or none, in the opinion of Robert O. Hayward, in charge of the foreign department of Dillon, Read & Co., who has completed an analysis of the plan.

"To put into operation a scheme of such far-reaching proportions will require the financial cooperation of the people of all nations and their actual investment in the equivalent of $700,000,000 of German bonds and preferred stock," he said. "The world will have a direct financial interest in the success of the plan."

The fact that only a few questions have yet arisen as to the feasibility of the plan and only a minimum number of questions have been raised regarding details in a program of such magnitude "is a striking testimony to the value of the experts' work."

Jersey Trolley Fares Increased.

The New Jersey Public Utility Commission has granted permission to H. H. Parmlee, as receiver of the North Jersey Rapid Transit Company, operating in Bergen County, to charge a 10-cent fare in each trolley zone. There will be a 6-cent fare for school children and a 7-cent fare where tickets are bought in books of fifty strips. The company went into receivership in April, 1919.

Western Steel Plant in Operation.

Operations have been started at the plants of the Pacific Sheet Steel Company, according to advices received in the financial district yesterday. The American Can Company, for whose Western factories the plant is expected to roll sheets, is the largest minority stockholder in the company.

BROOKLYN EDISON CO. PLANS BIG STOCK ISSUE

$16,000,000 Block to Be Offered to Present Stockholders at Par —Market Price Now $111.

The Brooklyn Edison Company announced yesterday a plan to issue and sell $16,000,000 worth of its capital stock. Stockholders of record May 12, next, will have the right to subscribe at $100 a share. The stock sold yesterday on the New York Stock Exchange at $111 a share and higher.

According to the statement of M. S. Sloan, President of the company, proceeds of the issue will be used to reimburse the treasury for expenditures already made for additions and extensions to plans and facilities. Each stockholder will be entitled to subscribe, it was explained, for stock of a par value equal to four-sevenths of the par value of stock registered in his name at the close of business on May 12. Stock not so subscribed will revert to Dillon, Read & Co., who have underwritten the issue and will act as agents for the utility corporation.

Subscriptions by stockholders will be payable either in full or instalments, the announcement stated, the date set having been May 20, next, for either the full payment or the first of three instalments coming due to the amount of 40 per cent. on that date and 30 per cent. on Sept. 2 and Dec. 1 thereafter.

The Brooklyn Edison Company will have $50,000,000 of stock outstanding with the distribution of this issue. Part of the proceeds will go to defray the costs of the new Hudson Avenue generating station, which will be the largest steam electric generating plant in the world, according to the company. The first unit of this plant, soon to be put in operation, is capable of supplying light to 125,000 homes. The issue has been approved by the Public Service Commission.

AUTO TRADE STILL SPOTTY.

Weather Continues to Play an Important Part in Industry.

Weather continues to play a very important part in the automobile industry, according to Automotive Industries. Spotty conditions continue to exist in the sales field and manufacturing activities have been slowed down correspondingly. In a summary of the situation, the trade journal says:

"Manufacturers, with a few exceptions, are not maintaining schedules at a level with those followed in March nor will they return to them until the forward buying movement has started in earnest and stocks have been depleted to a point where replenishment is mandatory to meet the demand. The fact that there has been any recession in operations has made the situation look bad until it is taken into consideration that during the first quarter of the year factories were operating at a pace far beyond that of a year ago and almost up to the mark achieved in the second quarter of last year.

"Although there has been a slowing up in the car output, it is evident that truck manufacturers is forging ahead in new marks, and that this year will see rapid advances made in this branch of the industry. The better conditions are responsible in a measure to greater bus demand, but there has been a marked improvement in the volume of orders received for motor trucks."

TO BUILD 120-MILE LINE.

El Paso & Southwestern Railway Buys Right of Way.

Plans for the construction of 120 miles of railroad as laid out by the Tucson, Phoenix & Tidewater Railroad Company ten years ago are now under consideration by the officials of the El Paso & Southwestern, it was announced last night by T. M. Schumacher, President of the latter company. The El Paso & Southwestern has already purchased the capital stock of the Tucson, Phoenix & Tidewater, which controls a right of way 120 miles in length and forty acres of terminal site in Los Angeles, as well as a terminal site in Phoenix.

Mr. Schumacher said yesterday that the property had been acquired by his company with a view to completing the construction and making it a part of the El Paso & Southwestern.

NEW YORK CENTRAL PLANS A BIG ISSUE

Asks Authority to Market $45,631,000 Worth of 5 Per Cent. Equipment Certificates.

ALLIED LINES TO BENEFIT

Orders for Engines, Freight Cars and Coaches Amount to $61,739,668—Deliveries Expected Soon.

The New York Central Railroad Company filed an application with the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday for authority to float a $45,631,000 issue of 5 per cent. equipment trust gold certificates. Proceeds will be used to pay for equipment, practically all of which has been ordered and delivery of which is expected soon. Associated with the New York Central in the application were the Michigan Central, the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis and the Cincinnati Northern.

Orders for equipment will amount to $61,739,668 and will provide the carriers with 180 additional locomotives, 15,250 freight cars and 1,000 other cars. Work already has progressed to a point near completion on the bulk of the equipment.

Details as to how the issue of certificates, which is the largest of the year, would be marketed could not be obtained yesterday. The investment market, it was indicated, however, is now in excellent condition and probably would absorb the total in one unit without difficulty. It was described as entirely possible, however, that the total would be divided into two issues.

Actual offering of the securities, it was understood, would not be made until the latter part of May and the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. would do the underwriting. As a result of a reduction in the rediscount rate, it was believed that the Central would be able to do its financing on a low interest yield basis despite the size of the issue. Recent equipment issues have been sold on a 5 to 5.10 per cent. basis.

A. & P. SETS SALES RECORD.

$302,888,369 Gross for Fiscal Year —Surplus Now $31,181,140.

The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, Inc., reports gross sales of $302,888,369 for the year ended February 29, a new high record for the company. The total compares with gross sales of $246,940,973 in the previous fiscal year. After allowing for all expenses and payment of dividends on preferred stock there was a balance of $7,306,280 available for the common stock. This was equal, to $29.22 a share earned on the 250,000 shares of no par value common stock outstanding. In the previous year the company reported a balance of $5,492,635 available for the common stock, equal to $21.96 a share earned on the same amount of common stock.

The general balance sheet as of Feb. 29, 1924, shows a profit and loss surplus of $31,181,140, against $24,562,360 at the close of the previous year. Cash holdings amounted to $8,887,200, against $9,351,753, and inventory was valued at $39,861,006, against $27,081,407. Accounts receivable totaled $1,751,779, against $556,517, and accounts and notes payable aggregated $6,008,635, against $6,-879,042.

American Can Co. Exonerated.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—The Federal Trade Commission dismissed today its complaint against the American Can Company of New York City, charging discrimination in price contracts and unfair methods of competition. The charge was not borne out by testimony, the commission said.

New Train Service to Canada.

The New York Central announced yesterday that it would establish a new train to meet requirements of New York-Hamilton-Toronto travel. It will be called "The Canadian" and will provide an overnight service to Toronto.

NATIONAL CITY BANK INVESTING IN CUBA

Buys Seven Branches of the Banco Nacional in Larger Cities of the Island.

ACQUIRED AT ORIGINAL COST

New York Institution Now Has 24 Branches in Cuba—"A Good Purchase," Says President Mitchell.

The National City Bank acquired title yesterday to seven branches of the Banco Nacional in Cuba. The Cuban institution has been in the process of liquidation and the sale of its seven branches, which were located in the more important cities of Cuba, was a step in this process. The price paid was not ascertained, but the National City Bank's offer was on the basis of taking over the branches at their original cost of construction and furnishing, and this, it was understood, was accepted.

By the acquisition, the National City Bank has further strengthened itself in Cuba and now has twenty-four branches. The new buildings, it was said, are of excellent construction and Charles E. Mitchell, President of the American institution, expressed satisfaction yesterday at what he termed a "good purchase." The deed given to the National Bank carries with it full title with no outside interests associated with the bank in ownership.

The National City Bank was drawn more actively into Cuban business and commerce than had been intended when, three to four years ago, a depression struck that country. The bank, as creditor, stood in danger of facing losses when sugar prices dropped, but through a policy of placing whatever sugar interests it had under a skilled sugar company management, and of standing by with ample reserve funds whenever they might be needed, the institution not only saved its various investments, but helped to rescue the entire Cuban sugar industry from a critical situation. Since then, both the sugar industry and the banking business of Cuba have rounded the corner and in the last two years there has been an expansion in both.

A cablegram received yesterday by the National City Bank indicated that the revolt in Santa Clara had been virtually smothered and while sporadic outbreaks might occur for a few weeks to come "it is now generally believed that no general uprising will occur." The message was from Vice President Durrell of the National City Bank, who is in Havana.

FINANCIAL FIRMS' CHANGES.

Successor to Zimmermann & Forshay Among Companies Formed.

Further changes in Wall Street houses went into effect yesterday. Most of the houses were members of the New York Stock Exchange.

Louis J. Rees, John S. Scully, David Forshay, all former partners of the old firm of Zimmermann & Forshay, have organized a firm to be known as Rees, Scully & Forshay, Inc., to deal in bullion, specie, foreign money and investment securities at 115 Broadway.

Other changes follow:

Greene & Cooke, Jerome B. Sellers admitted.

Johnson & Wood, Charles Maury Jones admitted.

Grady & Jenkins, Richard J. Butler admitted.

Macartney & McLean dissolved and the firm of Macartney, McLean & Dawson formed, with offices at 52 Broadway, consisting of James W. Macartney, Nelson McLean and Carroll H. Dawson.

Ross, Pogue & Willard changed to Pogue, Willard & Co. and offices removed to 150 Broadway.

Henry Morgan, Clarence H. Howland, George C. Sands, Malcolm McBurney formed the firm of Morgan, Howland & Co. with offices at 120 Broadway.

Clem B. Mears, Louis S. Kerr, A. Bernard Coombe, Alexander D. B. Pratt, Arthur Frost Spaulding, Charles C. Matchette, Herbert Spendlove and Thomas G. Smith formed the firm of Coombe, Kerr & Pratt, with offices at 100 Broadway.

STOCK CHANGE PLANNED.

Swan & Finch Stockholders Will Act on Proposal May 15.

A special meeting of stockholders of Swan & Finch, a former Standard Oil subsidiary, has been called for May 15, to vote on a proposal to readjust the capital.

The plan calls for a reduction in the present capital of $100 a share par value to shares of $25 par value. If approved, the company will issue two shares of $25 par value stock in exchange for each share of $100 parvalue now held. By this means, it is said, the company can wipe out the profit and loss deficit now carried and make possible the resumption of dividends on the preferred stock. At the same time the company contemplates reducing the preferred stock from an 8 to a 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock. No dividends have been paid on the preferred stock since Nov. 1, 1919.

WILSON FUND NOW $750,000.

Foundation Will Have $26,000 to Award for Public Service.

The annual meeting of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Franklin D. Roosevelt, 49 East Sixty-fifth Street. Mr. Roosevelt, who is retiring as First Vice President of the Foundation, said last night that the Foundation has a fund of about $750,000, and that on Woodrow Wilson's birthday, Dec. 28, an award of the interest, or $26,000, will be given to the person who has performed the most distinguished public service during the year.

Norman H. Davis, Professor William Scott of Princeton, and George W. Morris, former Public Safety Commissioner of Philadelphia, were elected trustees and Major Gen. Tasker H. Bliss, retired, who was one of Wilson's delegates to the Peace Conference, and Mary Woolley, President of Mount Holyoke College, Mount Holyoke, Mass., were elected Vice Presidents. Mrs. Charles L. Tiffany was reelected Secretary and the Central Union Trust Company, Treasurer.

BANK ACCEPTANCES SHOW MARKED GAIN

HIGH MARK IN 1919-1920

Import Figures Remain About the Same as in 1923—Liberal Cotton Credits.

The Bulletin of the American Acceptance Council, issued yesterday, shows bankers' acceptances outstanding in the twelve Federal Reserve Districts on April 1 amounted to $617,580,562, compared with $523,707,971 on the same date in 1923.

While the total does not approach the high mark reached in 1919-1920, which was $749,001,237, the growth over the totals of 1922 and 1923 is declared to be gratifying. From a high of approximately one billion dollars in 1919-1920 there was a drop in volume to $644,000,000 on April 1, 1921, and a further reduction to $416,000,000 on April 1, 1922, which amount appears to have marked the turning point, according to the council. The survey, which is the fifth, says with regard to the 1924 total:

"This total is particularly interesting as occurring at a time of marked recession in business activity, and when the resulting greater liquidity in the commercial banks would presumably have made it easily possible for them to accommodate their customers with cash loans rather than acceptance credits, were not the latter preferred, when either would serve the purpose.

"Of particular note is the increase in acceptances in New York City, from $367,000,000 in 1922, to $424,000,000 in 1924, and the increase in the South as part of the country. A liberal use of acceptance credits has been made in connection with the operations of cooperative marketing associations in cotton and tobacco."

The volume of acceptances arising out of import transactions is nearly the same as last year, while the amount based on exports has increased from $194,000,000 in 1922, to $213,000,000 this year. The comparison of classification totals for 1923 and 1924 follows:

	Apr. 1, 1924.	Apr. 1, 1923.
Imports	$250,881,037	$239,048,339
Exports	213,847,986	134,262,520
Domestic	28,028,498	107,571,233
Warehoused credits	99,581,999
Dollar exchange	25,241,042	22,825,879
	$617,580,562	$523,707,971

OIL OUTPUT SHOWS GAINS.

Daily Average Production 8,700 Bbls. More Than in Week Before.

Production of crude oil in the United States last week increased 8,700 barrels in the daily average, according to figures compiled by the American Petroleum Institute. This showing follows a reduction of 21,000 barrels in the daily average production reported the week before and is still below the level reported in the corresponding week last year. Last week's production averaged 1,941,050 barrels daily against 1,932,350 barrels in the previous week and 1,946,500 barrels the week before.

The detailed figures covering output of the various fields compared with the previous week and a year ago follow:

	1924— Apr. 26.	Apr. 19.	1923— Apr. 28.
Oklahoma	430,100	429,950	459,600
Kansas	92,750	89,850	81,850
North Texas	74,200	72,900	68,300
Central Texas	126,850	120,800	125,550
North Louisiana	53,250	49,650	69,100
Arkansas	138,200	137,750	109,750
Gulf coast	96,000	97,700	98,350
Eastern	105,000	102,000	108,000
Wyoming & Mont.	130,500	125,650	131,000

Receipts of California crude oil at Atlantic and Gulf Coast ports last week averaged 100,143 barrels daily, against 99,286 barrels in the previous week.

Williams Reports Business Sound.

William H. Williams, Vice President of the Delaware & Hudson, and Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Missouri Pacific, who returned yesterday from a trip through the West, reported that he found business sound and the buying power of the farmer increasing. He anticipates normal traffic in all districts except New England, where there may be some recessions until more normal conditions exist in the textile industries.

HILL TO TAKE A VACATION.

Further Indication that Louis W. Hill, President of the Great Northern, which James J. Hill, his father, built, would gradually retire from active participation in railroad operation was had in information received here yesterday that he intended to go to Europe in June.

"I have railroaded for twenty-five years," Mr. Hill is reported to have said, "and that is enough for any man. I want to join my family and spend some time with them. I have had to work all my life, and think now that I deserve a vacation."

He let it be known, however, that his name will be connected with the Hill properties. When he resigned from the Chairmanship of the Burlington's board, reports were current that he would gradually retire from railroad operation.

I. R. T. FOR MARCH REPORTS A SURPLUS

Balance Is $463,009 After All Charges, Including Manhattan Dividend Rent.

The Interborough Rapid Transit Company yesterday reported a March surplus of $463,009, after all charges, including Manhattan dividend rental, sinking fund on I. R. T. 5 per cent. bonds, payment of which is deferred until July 1, 1926, and after actual maintenance performed. The balance for the nine months ended March 31 shows a deficit of $852,081.

Maintenance over contractual provisions, which for the nine months totalled $1,551,016, is given in the March statement as a credit of $34,535. The earnings for March and the nine months compare as follows:

CHESAPEAKE & OHIO SHOWS LARGE GAIN

Net Income in 1923 Was $8,979,430, Against $6,523,670 in Year Preceding.

CAPITAL STOCK INCREASED

Company Settles Federal Control Claims by Payment of $7,000,000 —Improvement Debt Is Funded.

Net income of $8,979,430 was reported by the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad for 1923, its first year under Van Sweringen control, against $6,523,670 for 1922, it was announced yesterday. The earnings were equivalent to 12.80 per cent. on the common stock, against 9.09 per cent. in 1922.

Capital stock of the company was increased to $85,425,725 at the end of the year as the result of the conversion of bonds up to and including April 2, 1923. To provide for the bonds there was issued $2,623,125 in common stock.

On Dec. 11 the company settled with the United States Government all of the claims growing out of Federal control by an agreement to pay $7,000,000. The Director General agreed to fund the indebtedness for additions and betterments made to the property during the period of Federal control to the extent of $15,200,000, thus releasing to the company $3,300,000 in cash. The debt so funded will mature on March 1, 1930.

Operating revenues for the year were $101,975,797, an increase of $18,444,236, or 22.16 per cent. compared with 1922. At the same time the operating expenses totaled $78,680,776, an increase of $12,-771,746, or 19.32 per cent.

While the increase in coal and coke tonnage was 24 per cent., the increase in coal and coke freight revenue was 24.5 per cent., notwithstanding a reduction in rates amounting to 5 per cent. The increase was due to the gain in tidewater tonnage, which gained 67 per cent., while the total east-bound traffic increased 50.8 per cent.

Items in the income account compare as follows:

	1923.	1922.
Operating revenues	$101,975,797	$83,811,561
Operating expenses	78,680,776	66,116,090
Net railway operating income	19,135,355	14,410,329
Net income	8,979,430	6,523,670

Assets of the company are listed as $464,578,018, of which $220,055,945 are property investments, investments, assets $27,867,497; account receivable, $3,211,-887, and materials and supplies $10,-840,335. Working liabilities are $18,-885,061. Interest on the outstanding debt was $11,901,207, an increase of $9,966,-942 over the previous year.

RAILWAY ORGANIZES ARMY RESERVE UNITS

Illinois Central Forms Battalions to Operate Entire Divisions in Time of War.

Two reserve units for the United States Army are being formed on the Illinois Central Railway. They are so organized that the one battalion in the north of the system and the other in the south will be in a position to take charge of and operate at the best advantage an entire railway division in time of war, according to an issue of the Illinois Central Magazine.

Each of the battalions will have a peace-time strength of 161 men, including commissioned and non-commissioned officers. Each battalion will consist of a headquarters platoon and three companies—one for operation, one for maintenance of way and one for the maintenance of equipment. These units will be a part of the organized reserves and will form an important auxiliary branch of our military organization. The period of enlistment is for five years.

"The Organized Reserves," the Magazine said, "are subject to call only in case of grave national emergency, such as a war with a foreign power, and such a call can be issued only by Congress. Units are not subject to the call of the President or of State authorities, as in the case of the National Guard, with the exception that they may be called for training during a period of not more than two weeks in any one year.

"It is suggested by the War Department that battalion commanders should be preferably division superintendents. The organization of each unit will, in a general way, be left to the commanding officer, with the assistance of the staff which he appoints. Where a division superintendent has had previous military service as an officer, the issuance of his commission will be in effect a reinstatement. Where there is no previous military service, the War Department will issue a new commission upon the formal application."

Ohio Fuel Supply Earnings.

The Ohio Fuel Supply Company reports gross earnings of $5,773,270 for the first three months of the current year, against $5,700,789 in the corresponding period last year. Net income was $2,-114,168 after expenses and reserves for taxes, depreciation and other deductions, against net income of $2,460,377 in the first quarter of 1923. The net this year was equal to $1.46 a share earned on the $30,626,000 outstanding capital stock, against $1.58 a share for the same quarter last year. After payment of dividends there was a surplus of $1,-826,514 in the March quarter.

Mail Order Sales Increase.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. for April report gross sales of $20,096,904, against $19,-178,350 in the same month last year. For the first four months of the current year gross sales aggregated $74,660,908, against $74,975,529 in the corresponding period in 1923. Montgomery Ward & Co. for April report gross sales of $18,-736,695, against $11,512,969, while the four months' sales aggregated $51,600,-624, against $42,028,585 in the same period in 1923.

Ford Motor Rumors Denied.

Reports were current in the financial district yesterday that Henry Ford had arranged for quantity production of Lincoln motor cars, and that he contemplated a reduction of $1,000 in the price of these cars. According to dispatches received in the financial district from Detroit, the sales manager of the Ford Company denied the report of a reduction in the price or that there would be a large increase in production of these cars.

Operating Income Doubled in Year.

The International Combustion Engineering Corporation reports operating income of $1,042,796 for 1923, against $513,160 in 1922, and net income of $908,558 after all charges for depreciation, taxes and other deductions, against $455,781 in the previous year. The net income for 1923 was equal to $2.42 a share earned on the capital stock outstanding.

Admitted to Trading on the Curb.

The New York Curb Exchange has admitted to trading the voting trust certificates, representing capital stock of no par value, of the Columbia Phonograph Co., Inc., and the voting trust certificates for the American-Canadian Properties Corporation, which were issued in pursuance of the reorganization plan of the Columbia Phonograph Company.

POWER PLANT POOLING BECOMES WORLD-WIDE

France, England, Italy and Spain Adopting System That Is Growing Here.

Establishment of great power pools by the interconnection of transmission lines covering large areas, linking up electrical generating stations according to the so-called super-power plan in effect in New York State and many sections of this country, is proceeding rapidly in other parts of the world. Advantages gained from such pooling of power are more complete and efficient use of generating equipment, particularly of hydro-electric plants where the water flow is seasonal, and economies of investment and operation.

France has begun a super-power system that will extend from the Pyrenees on the Spanish border to the Italian frontier. Another system will make use of the water power in the Alps, and a third will bring power from the coal fields of Lens direct to Paris.

England, following the plans made during the World War, has been divided into sixteen main zones. These, it is expected, will be interconnected and fed from a relatively small number of large-capacity central stations, like those at Manchester and Glasgow, while most of the six or seven hundred small plants now in use will become distributing units instead of generating plants.

Italy has already developed her water power sites in the Alps and Apennines into connected systems, with enough power to supply her cities with current and to electrify the railroads in the north and on the Genoa coast.

Spain is planning a super-power system like a great wheel, whose hub will be at Madrid and whose rim will be high-tension power lines carrying current from hydroelectric plants in the Pyrenees and on the Portuguese border.

Japan, remodeling her electrical supply after the great earthquake, plans to connect the hydroelectric stations in the central hills with other generating plants into a widespread super-power system that will carry power to Tokio, Yokohama, Osaka and other cities and will at the same time supply current for the railroads of the Island Kingdom.

Even far-off Australia has recognized the economic value of interconnection and as a first step is transmitting to Melbourne electrical energy generated at the Morwell coal mines.

NO GOLD RUSH IN SWEDEN.

Redemption of Paper Kroner Caused Little Stir, Bank Says.

The jingle of gold seems to have lost its fascination in Sweden, if one may judge from the fact that there was no rush on the Swedish Riksbank on the day when it first began redeeming its notes in gold, following the order of the Riksdag. The bank has just reported that, contrary to predictions, no stir was caused when the fifty-year-old law providing for gold redemption was put back into effect after having been suspended for a number of years.

The holders of paper kroner have long been certain that their bills were worth their face value in gold, and did not demand visible proof of the fact. There was one humorous exception, however, in the case of an old woman who came from the suburbs with bills to the amount of 500 kroner, wrapped in an old yellow newspaper, her savings for many years. She received in exchange twenty-five twenty-kroner pieces of gold. She had got the notion that Swedish banknotes would be worthless unless redeemed at this first opportunity.

The actual difference between the gold received and that issued on the first day, reports the Riksbank, showed a surplus issue of only $100. This is significant in view of the fact that the bank holds over $22,000,000 worth of Swedish gold currency and nearly $32,-000,000 worth of unminted gold and currency of other lands.

The resumption of gold redemption, which was opposed in some quarters, also had little effect on dollar quotations.

Pure Oil Company Income.

The annual report of the Pure Oil Company for 1923, issued yesterday, shows net income of $15,450,878 available for dividends on the capital stock and for reserves for depletion and other account. After deducting reserves and preferred dividends, the balance was equal to $3.21 a share earned on the outstanding common stock. The general balance sheet showed current assets of $38,296,186, against current liabilities of $10,878,408.

Columbian Carbon Earnings.

The Columbian Carbon Company for the quarter ended March 31 reports net operating earnings of $1,236,180, against $1,419,007 in the same quarter last year. After reserves for depreciation, depletion and taxes, the company reported net income of $696,061, equal to $1.78 a share on the 392,121 shares of no par value stock outstanding. In the first quarter of 1923 the company reported net income of $901,744.

New Jersey Zinc Income Report.

The New Jersey Zinc Company reports operating income of $1,840,849 for the first quarter of 1924, against $1,905,458 in the same period last year, and net income of $1,600,849 and $1,665,-458 respectively. The net was equal to $3.67 a share earned on the 436,081,000 capital stock outstanding, against $3.82 a share in the first quarter last year.

$1,000,000 Order for Trolley Cars.

WORCESTER, Mass., May 1.—The Osgood-Bradley Car Company has received an order for 125 all steel cars for the Pittsburgh Railway, which operates the trolley system in Pittsburgh. The contract totals nearly $1,-000,000. The cars are of the central entrance and exit type, which has been adopted as standard by the Pittsburgh company.

American Bosch Magneto Sales.

The American Bosch Magneto Company, for the first quarter of 1924, reports total sales of $3,095,744, against $2,661,905 in the same quarter last year. After all deductions for expenses, depreciation and interest charges, there was a balance of $147,529, equal to $1.33 a share earned on the 85,000 shares of no par value capital stock outstanding.

White Eagle Oil Gains.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 1.—White Eagle Oil and Refining Company reports total shipments from refineries during April as 1,821 cars, of all products, compared with 1,082 in April of 1923. Total sales, through the company's stations, were approximately 4,870,000 gallons in April of this year, compared with 2,850,000 in April a year ago.

Yukon Gold Income.

The Yukon Gold Company reports operating profit of $251,291 for 1923, and total income of $279,622, against operating income of $127,903 and total income of $230,086 in 1922. TO IMITATE NIAGARA FALLS.

Reproduction to Be Run by Electricity at British Exhibition.

Niagara Falls, which produces more than a million electrical horsepower, is to have a miniature reproduction wherein these conditions are reversed and the falls are operated by electricity.

As part of the Canadian exhibit at the British Empire Exhibition to be held in London during the coming Summer, the imitation of Niagara Falls will be a feature. It has been found impossible to provide enough water to give the artificial falls the desired effect of size and grandeur, and they will, accordingly, be made up of a series of electrically-operated steel rollers upon which an endless belt of specially woven gauze will revolve.

The moving gauze will simulate the swirl and rush of water, and, lighted by hidden footlights, will produce a realistic effect in the miniature setting which has been copied from Niagara itself.

WHAT GAS WILL DO.

Average Family of Five Uses Less Than 100 Cubic Feet Daily.

Less than one hundred cubic feet of manufactured gas a day is used to do the cooking and heating for an average family of five persons, according to a recent analysis of gas consumption. Figures covering the use of gas for various individual domestic needs are as follows:

Broad baking—twenty-five cubic feet of gas will bake from one to eight loaves at one time, according to the size of the oven.

Roast chicken—thirty-five cubic feet of gas will roast one three-pound chicken.

Bean soup—six cubic feet of gas will cook a quart.

Coffee—one and a third cubic feet of gas will prepare one quart.

Custard pie—Ten cubic feet of gas will bake one or more pies, according to oven size.

Hot water—Twenty cubic feet will heat 20 gallons.

Heat to a boil one pound enough water for an average family wash.

The Bank of England's official discount rate remained unchanged at 4 per cent. to which it was advanced from 3 per cent. on July 10, 1923. At this date last year the rate stood at 3 per cent. at 4 in 1922 at 5½ in 1921 at 7 in 1920 at 5 in 1919, 1918, 1917, 1916 and 1915, and at 3 in 1914.

Cattle Prices at Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 1.—Hogs topped at $7.80, with prices 5@10 cents higher, due to smaller receipts. Shippers and small packers were the best buyers. Eastern demand for lambs was better and prices were 15@25 cents higher, with the top $16.85. Sheep were steady. Cattle were generally 25 cents higher, with top steers $12 and best yearlings $11.25. Shippers showed more interest. Light receipts were a feature in making the advance.

APRIL TRANSACTIONS.

Transactions in stocks on the New York Stock Exchange for the month of April aggregated 17,792,150 shares, a decrease of 413,953 shares as compared with the preceding month and of 2,946,-656 shares as compared with the corresponding month last year. There were two million-shares days, of which the largest was 1,041,075 shares on the 10th. The smallest full day's trading was 406,912 shares on the 1st. For the two-hour Saturday trading the maximum total was 523,000 shares on the 5th and the minimum total of 323,550 shares on the 19th.

The following table gives total transactions for the month of April and the first four months of the year as compared with the like period in previous years:

Dealings in bonds amounted to a par value of $261,675,700, a decrease of $15,130 as compared with the previous month, but an increase of $39,-404,080, as compared with the corresponding month last year. Last month's total was divided in groups as follows: Corporations, $144,979,300; United States Governments, $98,124,400; foreign securities, $40,172,000; State issues, $1,000; New York City obligations, $197,000. The largest day's total was $16,434,500, on the 8th, and the smallest day's total $3,132,250, on the 1st. The maximum total for the two hours' trading on Saturday was $7,905,900, on the 19th, and the minimum trading $5,016,-000, on the 12th.

Bond dealings for last month and the year to date compare as follows with previous similar periods:

RESERVE BANK POSITION.

Comparison of the Week's Items With Those of Other Periods.

The ratio of reserves at the New York bank reached a new high percentage for the year in yesterday's statement; the ratio of the system, 82 per cent., was practically up to the year's high level of 82.1, reached on Feb. 6. Note circulation of the entire system established a new low level for the year, as also did rediscounted bills secured by Government collateral.

Following is the comparison of the highest and lowest figures of the reserve system in 1924 to date and in the previous full years. Figures are in thousands of dollars:

Total Gold Holdings.

	High.		Low.
1924	$3,157,178	Jan. 18	$3,066,486	Jan. 5
1923	3,189,227	Dec. 31	3,049,491	Jan. 6

HIRSHFIELD TELLS OF HAMPERED WORK

New Law Halted Expose of Railroads Profiting by City Leases, He Says.

AGAIN ASSAILS FEARON ACT

His Loss of the Power of Subpoena Imperils the City Treasury, He Intimates.

"David Hirshfield, Commissioner of Accounts, in a renewed attack last night on the Fearon act, which deprived him of the power of subpoena, said the loss of that power had halted investigations whereby he was about to show that the New York Central and the Pennsylvania Railroad Companies were leasing city properties at far less than their rental values.

The Commissioner said that an Albany dispatch in THE NEW YORK TIMES quoted the Governor as having said that he signed the bill because of the stand taken by the Bar Association. He then referred to a telegram from the Secretary of the Bar Association, published in The New York American, in which it was denied that the Bar Association had taken any action on the bill. He added that The Evening World now was attempting to apologize for the Governor.

"The importance of the power of subpoena by the Commissioner of Accounts for the protection of the city treasury cannot be sufficiently estimated," Mr. Hirshfield continued. "Two days ago it was pointed out that the New York Central Railroad Company was paying the City of New York for its West Forty-second Street, Manhattan terminal, with two ferry slips, $19,800 yearly rent, when according to figures disclosed by the Commissioner of Accounts this city property is worth between $85,000 and $90,000 a year.

"To further illustrate the necessity of an official with power of subpoena and investigation, the case of the occupancy by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company of the city's Manhattan west side waterfront property is now referred to. The lease of many years ago, under which the Pennsylvania Railroad is now holding, is about to expire, and, in anticipation of an application by the railroad company to the Board of Sinking Fund Commission for a new lease, the Commissioner of Accounts began an investigation to determine the value of said lease. This investigation proceeded until it was practically halted by the signature of Governor Smith to the Fearon bill.

"That investigation, however, had proceeded far enough to disclose that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company under its existing agreement is leasing from the city for its Manhattan terminal upland and land under water at the foot of Cortlandt Street at a yearly rental of $21,801. Besides the ferry houses, baggage rooms and other buildings, there are three ferry slips on this property, of which the Pennsylvania Railroad uses two ferry slips for its business and sublets the third ferry slip to the New York Central Railroad Company at an annual rental of $30,813."

UNDERGROUND WIRE VOLTAGE DOUBLED

Cable Carrying 66,000 Placed in Operation Beneath Cleveland Streets.

F. L. Dame, President of the North American Company, announced yesterday that an underground cable carrying 50 per cent. more voltage than any underground cable had ever carried before had been placed in operation successfully in Cleveland on Wednesday. This cable carried 66,000 volts. The importance of this development was said to be in increasing the practicability of forming a nation-wide superpower system.

"Necessity for the construction of this high tension superpower cable arose from the need to supply power to interior territory in Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia, where water for power plants is not available. Involved in the group connected by this project are eleven power companies, representing an invested capital of $315,000,000 and producing 2,000,000 horsepower. Among these companies is the Cleveland Illuminating Company, a subsidiary of the North American Company.

As its share in the gigantic project, the Cleveland company had to tie into the overhead high tension lines of the Northern Ohio Traction Company, twenty miles from the Cleveland generating station. More than eight miles of this distance are in the thickly populated residential and business sections of the city. Overhead lines were out of the question, after months of research the engineers determined on plans for the 66,000-volt cable, even though nothing like it had previously been attempted.

A subway was built clear across the city, with manholes at 300-foot intervals, to house the cables at least four and one-half feet below the paving. Several manufacturers had to be called upon for the fifty miles of cable needed, because no one of them would undertake so large a quantity within the stipulated time limit.

While perhaps the least dramatic, the most important problem for the engineers to solve was a method of joining the cables in such a way that the high voltage stresses could be withstood. Success was achieved after six months.

Through these cables, which are not much bigger than your thumb, enough power could be carried to light the home of every electricity consumer in a city of a million population," said Mr. Dame. "Without the development of such cables, superpower projects would be practically impossible, because cities like New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago could not permit vast networks of extremely high tension wires to be carried on poles through their streets.

"A few years ago, engineers insisted that the limits of voltage had been reached. But in overhead construction work the voltage was nevertheless raised from 60,000 to 80,000, to 110,000, and now, on the Pacific Coast, an overhead voltage of 220,000 has been attained.

"In advancing the underground voltage by 50 per cent. to 66,000 volts, our engineers have solved the problem of transmitting large amounts of energy through congested city districts. With the new cable available it is now possible for a superpower group to develop electricity at distant points, to carry it hundreds of miles overhead, to run it underground through the heart of large cities and then to distribute it to industries and homes."

DR. LORENZ GOES TO VIENNA

Pays Tribute to American Girls' Beauty—To Return Next Fall.

Dr. Adolph Lorenz of Vienna sailed yesterday on the Italian liner Duilio. Many friends, including former patients, were at the pier. Dr. Lorenz said that although he was 70 years old, he felt in better health than when he first came here three years ago.

"There are many cripples in the United States who could be cured by orthopedic surgery at an early age," he said. "I cannot express too emphatic an opinion of the laxity of those parents who fail to give their children intelligent medical service. There are far too few orthopedic surgeons in the United States. I should say that the foremost practitioners in this field are in New York and Boston."

Dr. Lorenz said American girls are beautiful, but thought they were inclined to spoil their attractiveness by resort to lip stick and paint. He plans to resume his clinical work in Vienna until next Fall, when he expects to return to New York.

Attack Goods at a Price.

Producing goods to sell at a price was the subject of much discussion at the semi-annual convention of national directors, district presidents and secretaries of the National Knitted Outerwear Association, the first sessions of which were held yesterday at the Hotel McAlpin. This policy was attacked on the ground that it brought no real good to either the seller or the industry. President A. S. Waitzfelder described the price made garment as one which "instead of creating a friend for knitted outerwear tends to create an enemy." Because of the recent unsatisfactory business in the trade, the report of the publicity committee urged still greater efforts in knitted outerwear consumer and trade publicity, with a larger degree of financial support. The suggestion of having a special Summer color card was disapproved in the report of the color standardization committee. The sessions will continue today.

Men's Hose Gaudy, Too.

Women are not having everything their own way when it comes to colorful hose for Spring wear. Men's silk half hose are now being offered in several of the shades that the fair sex has found pleasure in wearing, not excepting the one that is more or less widely known as "nude." There also seems to be quite a demand for vertical stripes in a number of patterns, all the way from printed ones to openwork. These are spaced about three-fourths of an inch apart all around the sock and, while not contrasting, are slightly "off" the body color. The openwork stripes, according to a special bulletin of the National Association of Hosiery and Underwear Manufacturers, are produced merely by a change in stitch.

Gray Goods Again Quiet.

Not very much business was done in gray goods here yesterday. Some trading in 38½-inch 64-60 printcloths was told of at 8½ cents, with 10 cents paid for 39-inch 68-72s. The best that buyers could do on 39-inch 80-squares was 13¼ cents, with 11¼ cents asked for 72-76s in that width. For 37-inch 3.95-yard print sellers would not take less than 10½ cents with 11¼ cents asked and 11 cents bid for 72-80 pajama checks. Thirty-six-inch five-yard sheetings were quoted at 8½ cents, with 5.50s and 6.15s in that width held respectively at 7⅞ and 7½ cents.

Bow Ties Are Good Sellers.

If the early business done by retailers in bow ties is an indication, the coming season will be one in which the bat or butterfly wing tie will be popular. The tie manufacturers report they have been filling a number of orders. The collar trade is bringing out special collars for the bow tie in both starched and soft models. The combination of both is being featured extensively. The knitted tie wholesalers, noting that most of the featuring is done with the cut silk ties, have asked the collar manufacturers to show also their merchandise with the knitted bow ties. One of the leading Tcay producers has agreed to do this in the display work being done through sixteen branch offices throughout the country.

Sports Season Starting Well.

Wholesalers who have made special preparations for the new Summer and sports apparel season find the interest of retailers is keen in the new garments. While buying so far, has not been extra active confidence is felt that the added volume for the season will justify the effort put forth. The next week is expected to see more actual Summer goods buying in the local market, after retailers have had an opportunity to size up the new offerings. Meanwhile many wholesalers are clearing their remaining stocks of Spring merchandise. No over-large stocks are held now, although concessions are being made to effect quicker clearance.

Store Managers to Meet.

Questions dealing with personnel and store service will be discussed at the first annual convention of the newly formed Store Managers' Division of the National Retail Dry Goods Association to be held at the Hotel Statler, Buffalo, on May 12 and 13. An address on "The Relation of Personnel and Training to Store Management," by Mrs. Lucinda W. Prince, will be a feature of the first day. "Personnel and Training from a Store Executive's Viewpoint" will be dealt with by E. E. Kelsey of the William Hengerer Company, Buffalo. On the second day "Reducing Labor Turnover" will be discussed by Merrill W. Osgood of the Jordan Marsh Company, Boston. Included in the round table discussions are the following topics: "What Are We to Do to Reduce Shoplifting?" "When Cash Registers?" "When Tube Systems?" "The Floorman" "Improvement of Elevator Service" and "How and Where Shall Your Customer Park His Car?"

Raw Silk Situation.

The local raw silk market continues strong, with prices ruling about 20 cents per pound higher than last week for standard grades. Special sizes are scarce and command a premium. The tone of the broad silk market is improved, the belief being that the Summer and Fall silk business will be good. After a period of activity at Yokohama the market there has quieted down. The rise in yen exchange has raised laydown costs beyond the parities of the local market, according to H. L. Gwalter & Co., Inc. The Canton market is quiet and prices are nominally unchanged. Little business in the new crop has yet been done for American account. Medium and low grade steam filatures have been in demand at Shanghai, the buying coming from Europe. Tsatlee silks are dull and easier. Activity at Milan is confined to thrown silks, which are scarce.

More Linoleum Lines Priced.

More prices covering Fall lines of linoleum were issued to the trade yesterday, the figures covering the products of the George W. Blabon Company. The new list is subject to discounts different from those governing previous ones, but on a net basis the Fall figures are the same as those lately in effect save for declines of 6 to 8 per cent. on inlaid and plain goods. Attention of retailers is called to the fact that prices appearing in the list are free on board cars at the Blabon factory in Philadelphia, and that to them the jobber is compelled to add freight and other necessary charges. These additions, it is further pointed out, depend largely on the distance the point of destination is from the factory. Prices on the Fall lines of the Nairn Linoleum Company were issued on April 18 and were reported in THE TIMES of April 20.

Rug Prices Show Some Declines.

Several declines, none of them large, are shown in the list covering Fall lines of rugs that was issued to the trade yesterday by the Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet Company. This was the only important list issued yesterday, other large houses holding their prices back until Monday. Compared with the revised Spring list put out just after the auction early in March, the new prices on the Smith 9 by 12 rugs run as follows, the second figure showing the amount of the decline: Alpine axminster, $25.20, $1.20; Ardsley axminster, $26.40, $2.40; Carlton axminster, $36, $1.20; Yonkers axminster, $42, 60 cents; Kirman axminster, $44.40, none; Hudson tapestry, $16.80, 60 cents; Manor tapestry, $19.80, 30 cents; Nepperhan tapestry, $24, none; Katonah velvet, $21.60, 60 cents; Palisade velvet, $30, $1.20; Colonial velvet, $39.60, $1.20, and Wilton velvet, $50.40, none. The carpet prices were not changed. In the business placed yesterday considerable attention was given to Wilton velvets. In the patterns all-over effects did best, while the color trend was toward tans and taupes. Prices are guaranteed against decline up to Sept. 1, but are subject to advance without notice.

Army Bakes Lisbon's Bread.

LISBON, May 1.—In consequence of the partial strike of bakers, which began last Friday, all the bakeries and bread shops of the capital are under the protection of police and Republican Guards. Army bakers are running 250 of the city's 400 bakeries.

WILL SEEK TO END TOBACCO BOYCOTT

Cooperative Growers of the South Send Commission Abroad in Hope of Fighting Ban.

MARKETING METHOD WINS

Expect 25 Cents for This Year's Crop, Yet Manufactured Product's Price Is Low.

Members of a tobacco growers' commission which will visit Europe in the hope of lifting the boycott which they say is now in force against the cooperative growers in the South and of making direct connections regarding the sale of tobacco in countries that have tobacco monopolies reached New York last night. They will sail on the Leviathan on Saturday.

Members of the party included James C. Stone of Lexington, Ky., representing the Burley Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Association; Judge Robert W. Bingham of Louisville, Ky., Dark Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Association; Oliver J. Sands and Tucker C. Watkins, Bright Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Association, and Aaron Sapiro, general counsel for all three.

The cooperative movement in marketing the tobacco crop, which has spread through the South in two and a half years, was explained by Mr. Stone.

He said that as a result of the cooperative system the growers this year probably would receive 25 or 26 cents a pound for their crop, as against 7 cents in 1908 and 12½ cents in 1919; yet the retail price of chewing and smoking tobacco and cigarettes is lower now than ever.

"Not only are the growers receiving a fair return for their labor," he added, "but the associations are doing more to improve the scale of living in the rural districts than any other agency ever accomplished."

Mr. Stone said the burley crop last year was 290,000,000 pounds, 200,000,000 of which the cooperative associations marketed. The same ratio existed in regard to the dark and bright tobacco associations.

"Not only are we interested in seeing that the tobacco grower obtains a fair return for his labor," he said, "but we are doing everything possible to teach him how to raise better tobacco and how to market better. This is being accomplished by the formation of a social service department, with units in each county, and subdivisions of these units in every community.

"Members of the association and their families are instructed in tobacco culture, home economics, community welfare, hygiene, the value of good roads, and anything which makes for better citizenship.

"To broaden this work we must have the cooperation of the large tobacco buyers and manufacturers, and they must realize that our associations are not existing merely to keep up the price of tobacco."

Retail Collections Not So Good.

Collections of retail accounts during March did not show up very well with those of the same month last year, according to the findings of the Research Division of the Associated Retail Credit Men of New York City, Inc. Department stores, on an average, reported a decrease, although one reported an increase of 3.9 per cent. The highest percentage of department store accounts collected during March was 64.1 per cent., against 68.2 per cent. last year. Specialty shops carrying both men's and women's lines reported a decrease of 4 per cent. for March, compared with 1923. The accounts collected by these shops ranged from 58.4 per cent. of the outstanding down to 34 per cent. Specialty stores carrying women's wear only showed March decreases running as high as 10 per cent. in some cases. The range of collections by these shops was from 34 to 54.5 per cent. Stores handling men's wear only reported a slight improvement for the month.

$2,500,000 SUIT SETTLED.

Government to Get $963,256 for War Supplies for Russia.

The action begun by the Government in 1921 to recover $2,500,000 deposited in the National City Bank in 1919 to the credit of the All Russian Central Union of Consumers' Societies was settled yesterday. These societies, known as Centrosoyus, had purchased from the United States about $900,000 of surplus war supplies, and to secure payment had assigned their claim against the bank. Suit was begun on the assignment and was contested by the bank on the ground that the Centrosoyus had been taken over and was a part of the Communistic Government of Russia.

Testimony was taken in France, England and Russia. As a result it was agreed that judgment be entered against the bank, under the terms of which the bank is to pay to the United States $963,256.08 and to the Centrosoyus $1,696,399.66. The papers were signed by Federal Judge A. N. Hand.

SHIP'S RADIO ASKS DOCTOR.

Supposed British Liquor Craft Calls in Vain for Help.

NEW LONDON, Conn., May 1.—Frantic radio calls for a doctor were received here early today from the British steamship Newton Bay, said to be a member of the rum fleets between Block Island and Montauk Point. Her location was given as 41.8 north latitude, 71.10 west longitude.

Several messages said a man on board had sustained a fractured skull. Medical advice was relayed by the Broad Street Hospital, New York City, through a wireless telegraph company of this city, but the ship replied that a doctor and not advice was needed.

No vessel with a physician aboard was near and the quiet that resulted after two hours of urgent appeal for aid gave rise to the belief no clue as to the identity of the sufferer or the manner in which he was injured, was given.

The Newton Bay, it was reported here, was compelled to leave her anchorage off Montauk Point and make for Yarmouth, N. S., for supplies, and left the latter port Monday with 13,000 cases of whisky aboard.

INCREASED EXPORTS HELP COTTON HERE

Week's Movement Amounts to 76,000 Bales, the Second Best in Three Months.

PRICES GAIN HALF A CENT

Upturn Held in Bounds by Further Mill Curtailment and Professional Opposition.

Whether due to large exports or low temperatures in the South, cotton advanced rather sharply half a cent or more yesterday. The export movement has run so much over last year for three consecutive weeks that various professional operators evidently decided to reduce their lines. Prices gained 20 to 30 points.

Early trading reflected an irregular course in the foreign market, together with reports of additional curtailment among domestic mills and the disposition of professional operators to oppose any advance in prices. Exports of 35,000 bales which brought the week's movement over 76,000 and the largest, with one exception, in the past three months, influenced the market during the afternoon.

With the South needing warm, dry weather and each day's delay now important in determining the condition of the plant on May 25, when the first report of the season will be compiled in Washington, late months moved higher in sympathy with the gain in July. Whether recent heavy exports are to be attributed to the end of the month engagements or indicate a continued movement on a liberal scale remains to be determined. An equally uncertain question is the extent of outstanding obligations in July and just how much cotton was purchased by foreign interests during the break in prices several weeks ago. May sold above 30 cents in late trading or a cent above new levels of the week. Scattered realizing near the close left quotations 10 to 15 points from high figures of the day.

Two local reports on acreage appeared, one giving an increase of 4 per cent. or 39,363,000 acres under cotton cultivation and the other an increase of 4.17 per cent.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prv. Dy.
May	29.40	30.06	29.35	29.96-98	29.47
July	27.60	28.50	27.74	28.35-38	27.85
Oct.	24.25	24.65	24.23	24.50-56	24.30
Dec.	23.74	24.05	23.68	23.92	23.70
Jan.	23.42	23.83	23.40	23.57-58	23.35

The local market for spot cotton was steady, 50 points advance, at 30.30c for middling upland.

Southern spot markets were: Galveston 30.50c, 50 points advance; New Orleans, 30.25c, 50 points advance; Savannah 29.67c, 52 points advance; Augusta 29.63c, 42 points advance; Memphis 30.25c, 50 points advance; Houston 30.25c, 50 points advance; Little Rock 30c, 25 points advance.

Yesterday's cotton statistics were:

	Yesterday.	Last Week.	Last Year.
Port receipts	7,205	7,828	5,906

Manchester: Yarns quiet and firm; cloths good demand for India.

MORE COTTON MILLS CLOSE.

Market Conditions Are Mentioned as Cause of Suspensions.

WOONSOCKET, R. I., May 1.—The Nourse mill here of the Manville-Jenckes Company, will close down tonight for the remainder of the week, following the shutdown of the big Manville mill at Manville last night for the same period. The Social and Glove mills of the same company are still operating, but on a curtailed scale. Market conditions are given as the cause.

NASHUA, N. H., May 1.—The Nashua and Jackson mills of the Nashua Manufacturing Company, employing 3,000 operatives, will be shut down next week, the company announced today. At the Jackson mills officials said announcement of resumption would be made at a later date, when the condition of the cotton market warrants.

ASK HIGHER COTTON TARIFF.

Manufacturers Say Imports Are Up 150,000,000 Yards Since 1913.

BOSTON, May 1.—A campaign for an increase of the tariff on cotton goods was voted today at the semi-annual meeting of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers. The resolution adopted says in its preamble that since the reduction of duty charges under the Underwood Tariff bill of 1913 imports in cotton cloth have jumped from 50,000,000 to 200,000,000 square yards.

The association also adopted resolutions urging Congress to exercise the strictest economy in appropriations in order that taxes might be lowered and opposing the French-Capper bill for labeling fabrics to show their wool or cotton contents.

Middle States Oil Pays $270,000.

The Middle States Oil Corporation yesterday paid the first maturity of the 7 per cent. serial notes issued for the purpose of acquiring 373,821 shares of the stock of the Southern States Oil Corporation. The payment was due yesterday and was paid at the offices of the Metropolitan Trust Company, trustees under the agreement. The amount paid yesterday is estimated at $270,000, as $ per cent. o fthe original issue of $5,413,719 matures every three months.

WHEAT GOES HIGHER ON WINNIPEG GAINS

Grain Prices Not Affected by May Contract Deliveries of 17,000,000 Bushels.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 1.—Deliveries of close to 17,000,000 bushels of all grain in the various markets on May contracts had very little if any effect on values, although there was some selling of wheat, corn and oats early by scattered longs who did not want the cash grain. Their offerings were absorbed by elevator interests who sold the July against them.

The wheat market was rather dull until near the close, when Winnipeg started up rapidly and advanced to $1.01⅞ and closed at $1.01⅝, a net gain of 2 cents for the day. For weeks, resting orders to sell at $1.00 had proved a stumbling block to the bulls and the rapidity with which the price shot up caused much comment amongst local bulls after the close.

The finish here was at net gains of ⅝ to ¾ cent with Winnipeg May 2¼ cent under Chicago, about the smallest difference so far.

Export demand was less aggressive, although sales were estimated at 500,000 to 600,000 bushels, largely Manitobas. Milling business, however, was much better, with the East taking 420,000 bushels here during the day. A good part of the grain was No 2 red.

In the aggregate, the trade in wheat was largely Deliveries here were 3,851,000 bushels; at Winnipeg, 8,280,000 and at Kansas City 1,685,000 with around 500,000 at Minneapolis.

A Winter wheat crop of 560,000,000 bushels was shown by both the Snow and the Murray reports, or 12,000,000 bushels less than harvested last year. About 7 per cent. of the area was abandoned, leaving 37,300,000 acres for harvest, compared with 49,522,000 acres last year. Condition is estimated at 82.4 to 85. Indiana, Ohio, and Illinois have a prospective crop of 92,000,000 bushels, against 137,810,000 last year, while Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska have 231,586,000 bushels against 148,198,000 last year. Spring wheat acreage has been reduced 13.7 per cent. according to Murray's report, indicating 16,222,000 acres, the smallest since 1897, compared with 18,786,000 acres last year. There is a lack of sub-soil moisture in the Spring wheat territory, as shown by Snow's report.

Primary arrivals of wheat today were 458,000 bushels; week ago, 365,000; last year 586,000. Shipments were 604,000 bushels; week ago, 693,000; last year, 340,000.

Oats acreage promises to increase two per cent. and corn 2.7 per cent., but seeding and planting have not been completed as yet. The rye crop is estimated at 57,000,000 bushels, or 6,000,000 less than last year.

Deliveries on May contracts of 1,100,000 bushels corn were about in line with expectations, but the future market was dull and held within narrow limits, closing unchanged to ⅛ cent lower, with the bulk of the trade in changing operations. Shipping sales were 150,000 bushels with charters for 100,000 bushels at two cents to Buffalo.

Deliveries of oats were 1,775,000 bushels, a good part of which are said to have been paid for by J. A. Patten who intimated that he would shortly move out part of them. Futures were ¼ cent lower to ⅛ higher.

Corn receipts were 601,000 bushels; week ago, 688,000; last year, 389,000 and shipments, 546,000 bushels; week ago, 1,011,000; last year, 612,000.

Another Fifth Avenue Mansion Sold as Apartment House Site.

PROJECTINVOLVES$2,500,000

Operator Buys the Chateau d'Armes on Washington Heights Corner.

The residence of the late William Salomon, on the north corner of Eighty-third Street and Fifth Avenue, was sold yesterday to Michael E. Paterno, operator and builder, as a site for a fourteen-story apartment house.

It is estimated that the land and building will cost about $2,500,000.

This purchase follows the announcement of Louis Gordon Hamersley, who owns the residence at the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Eighty-fourth Street and the late Countess Annie Leary residence adjoining, to replace the houses with a tall apartment house.

The plot fronts 62 feet on the avenue and 125 feet on the street. This structure will probably cost about $1,500,000 exclusive of the value of the land.

The Salomon property which has a frontage of 62.6 feet on Fifth Avenue and 100 feet on Eighty-third Street was sold by Helen M. Salomon, through F. V. Calder & Co.

The new apartments will be arranged in suites of one fourteen-room with five baths on each floor, and will be sold under the 100 per cent. cooperative plan.

Mr. Paterno recently completed a large cooperative apartment house at 1,105 Park Avenue, being the northeast corner of Eighty-ninth Street, which contains sixty apartments, and all but two have been sold under the 100 per cent. cooperative plan.

The present dwelling on the site just purchased was erected by the late William Salomon at a cost of $1,300,000.

It adjourns the residence of Frederick W. Vanderbilt.

Operator Buys Chateau d'Armes.

David B. Bartelstone bought the Chateau d'Armes at the southeast corner of Fort Washington Avenue and 161st Street, a six-story high-class elevator apartment, renting for $55,000 and held at $400,000. Nathan Friedman represented the estate of Post Academy, Inc., the sellers. The brokers were Lewis H. May Company.

The same operator bought from Nathan S. Schiff 1,803 to 1,809 Lexington Avenue, a five-story walk-up, 44 by 100, renting for $14,700. He bought it for $100,000.

Mr. Bartelstone resold 82 East 107th Street to the 180 West End Avenue Corporation. It is a five-story walk-up, on a lot 25 by 100. The property was held at $30,000.

David B. Bartelstone also resold to the Mayart Realty Company 446 and 448 West 151st Street, two five-story walk-ups, on a plot 53 by 100, renting for $18,600 and sold at $115,000. The broker was Leon Lemle.

Cahn & Cahn, operators, sold to C. Pagani & Co., Inc., 535 West 151st Street, known as Sovereign Court, a six-story elevator apartment, between Broadway and Amsterdam Avenue, occupying a plot 75 by 100.

The structure is divided into suites of four, five, six and seven rooms, producing a yearly rental of $28,000 and was held at $175,000. Arthur L. Shaw, Inc., was the broker in the transaction.

Cahn & Cahn also resold to Salvador Verde and Vincent Verde 438 Third Avenue, between Thirtieth and Thirty-first Streets, a four-story brick building with store, on a lot 20 by 60. The property was held at $30,000. William B. May Company was the broker.

Max N. Natanson made another quick turn by reselling the five-story flat at the northwest corner of Columbus Avenue and Sixty-ninth Street, known as 200 to 208 Columbus Avenue and 101 West Sixty-ninth Street, standing on a plot fronting 100.5 on the avenue and 225 feet on the street. On the ground floor there are four stores and on each of the upper floors two six-room apartments. The property rents for about $16,000 and was sold for cash to Puritan Holding Company. Albert L. Wolfson, President, through Stanley Wolfson as broker. The property was held at $135,000 and was purchased by Mr. Natanson only a few days ago from Anna C. Geraty.

Louis Fine resold to Samuel Fallek, 226 and 228 West 108th Street, between Amsterdam Avenue and Broadway, six story new law walk-up, renting for over $22,000 per annum, and held at $140,000. Harold M. Silverman was the broker.

George H. Koch represented by Burger & Burger, purchased from Anna Pillion, the premises No. 323 East Eighty-ninth Street. The building is a five-story ten-family apartment house and has been owned by the selling family for over twenty years. P. H. Steinfurth Company was the broker in the transaction.

William S. Baker & Co. sold for the Coolidge Holding Company (Isaac Portman) to the 70 East Seventy-seventh Street Corporation, Inc., Edgar Ellinger, President, two twelve-story apartment houses on a plot 162.6x100, at 151 to 161 West Eighty-sixth Street, 125 feet east of Amsterdam Avenue. The buildings contain fifty apartments of seven, eight and nine rooms and three baths each, and rent for $212,000 and were held at $1,800,000.

Bennett E. Siegelstein as attorney for the William S. Dempsey Realty Company, Inc., has sold and closed title for his client to 574 St. Nicholas Avenue. The premises are an apartment 100 by 95 by 101 feet, at the corner and facing on four streets—St. Nicholas Avenue, West 139th Street, Edgecombe Avenue and West 138th Street.

The property was held at $375,000 and was sold subject to mortgages of $265,000. The purchasers were the Manport Realty Corporation.

Albert Stern sold for Lena Fisher the two five-story flats at 312 and 314 East Ninety-first Street to a client who will hold them for investment. The property was held at $60,000.

GROUP BUYS FIELDSTON.

Syndicate Takes Over the Delafield Estate at Riverdale.

The Delafield Estate has sold to a syndicate of Fieldston and other Riverdale people the residential park in Riverdale known as Fieldston. It is bordered on the south by Spuyten Duyvil Parkway, on the west by Riverdale, on the north by West 250th Street, and stretches east almost to Broadway, overlooking Van Cortlandt Park.

The Delafield Estate has owned this property since shortly after the Revolution; a few years ago they developed the property for a dwelling park, with curbed streets, employing the best engineers and landscape architects available, and sold plots to many of the leading families of New York.

Family reasons made a division of the estate desirable, and last April Joseph P. Day, the auctioneer, was employed to sell at auction the unsold plots. He found that a strong Fieldston tradition had been built up among the families resident there, and he was urged to refrain from selling the property at auction for a time to enable private sales to be arranged.

During the year that has expired a very large part of the property has passed into the hands of private holders, but on account of the magnitude of the undertaking there still remain more than 120 plots.

The people of Fieldston and the residents of Riverdale in the vicinity are justly proud of Fieldston and its atmosphere, and were fearful that if these plots came on the market suddenly at auction it might have a detrimental effect on the colony. Consequently, they organized among themselves a syndicate to purchase all of the remaining plots, and they have just taken over the property from the Delafield Estate.

The new company, known as Fieldston, Inc., represents the associated residents of Fieldston. They express an intention to parcel the property out among their friends and friends of their friends, with the expectation of preserving the Fieldston traditions for all time.

Mr. Day stated that it was the first time in his experience that such a syndicate had been successfully organized for such a purpose; it had been suggested and attempted before in other places, but usually dissension has arisen or the helpful spirits have been discouraged by the difficulty of getting together real money.

Among those interested in the new Syndicate are W. P. Hoffman, George Matthew Adams, Dr. Arthur H. Merritt, Malcolm D. Simpson, Charles E. Hughes Jr., F. S. Rollins, V. S. Olcott, Michael A. Shea, George W. Puckhafer, Walter E. Kelly, H. C. Freeman, Dwight James Baum, V. V. McNitt, Clarke G. Dalley, and a large number of others.

The syndicate announces that there will be no auction sale of the remaining property, but to enable Mr. Day to close a large number of pending sales, he would be continued for a time as sales agent. Meanwhile, the new owners will perfect their organization and decide on any increases in the prices, minimum size of plottage and restrictions that they may deem necessary to preserve and increase the character of the place as New York's most important suburban residential park. Albert E. Wheeler, an engineer who resides at Fieldston, will be the manager.

SELLS PILOT ISLAND.

New Yorker Buys Estate Off the Connecticut Coast.

Henry Atterbury Smith sold to a Dr. Otis of New York City Pilot Island, which lies about two thousand feet off the Norwalk shore in Long Island Sound.

This island consists of three acres, a stone house, boat house, a caretaker's house, together with forty acres of oyster plantations, also an acre of land, two cottages, a garage and pier on the mainland at Hickory Bluff. Reed Haviland was the broker.

A client of William Lambert and Joseph R. Norwood bought from a client of J. W. Parish & Son, Inc., a large parcel of land held at $100,000. High-class single-family houses will be erected thereon. The section is considered as one of the best in Woodhaven, L. I.

J. Clarence Davies, Inc., sold at Sunny Brae, Bronxville, N. Y., on the north side of Sturgis Street, 195 feet north of Locust Lane, a plot 75 by 149, to Dr. J. W. Woodruff, who will improve his purchase with a dwelling for his own occupancy this Spring.

FRED BROWN IN TRADE.

Takes New Rochelle Property for East Side Site.

Frederick Brown has resold the five-story business building at 5 East Fortieth Street, purchased several weeks ago, to Herman H. Doehler, who has given in part payment a New Rochelle property. The Fortieth Street property adjoins the Brooks Club, which, it is rumored, plans the sale of its property and the establishment of a new home further uptown. The Brown parcel measures 25 feet wide and 94 feet deep. It was held in the market at $225,000. The rent from the building now totals $21,650. The city values the property at $190,000. The New Rochelle property given in exchange is on Davenport Neck and comprises seven acres of ground and waterfront, large dwelling and outbuildings.

Samuel Galitzka sold for Abraham Stromwasser to Philip Goldstein and Philip Frankel for occupancy a new two-family house with two-car garage on a plot 50 by 100 on the east side of Twenty-fourth Street, 300 feet north of Avenue M. This property will be completed about June 15, and was held at $38,000.

M. C. O'Brien, Inc., sold for Mrs. Jessie M. Chapman 3,205 Beverly Road, a two-story and cellar one-family house, to a client for occupancy; for M. Callahan 105 East Thirty-first Street, a two-story and cellar two-family house, to a client for occupancy, and for Catherine McAllister 315 and 319 New York Avenue, corner of Union Street, two sixteen-family brick apartment houses, plot 103 by 100 feet, to a client for investment.

Takes Madison Av. Title.

N. J. Hess has taken title to 414 and 416 Madison Avenue, 49 by 96, covered with two six-story store and apartment buildings, renting for $60,000 per annum and which were held at $650,000, and secured a loan from the Emigrant Savings Bank of $325,000 at 5½ per cent.

N. J. Hess purchased from Dr. John A. Steurer, who has owned and occupied the house as his residence for the past thirty-six years, 78 West Forty-seventh Street, 19 by 70, a three-story dwelling, twenty-two feet east of and adjoining the corner of Sixth Avenue. Charles E. Williams was the broker.

Buy Harlem Flats.

Charles and Jack Kimmelman, operators, have purchased from Henry Grossman the three six-story tenement houses at 107 to 117 East 130th Street, on a plot 122.6 by 100. The buildings house 106 families and rent for about $37,500. The brokers were Myiton L. Meitzer and Roscoe R. Rowe.

Realty Notes.

Hughes & Hammond have placed a loan of $750,000 at 5 per cent. for five years for Farquharson & Wheelock on their twelve-story store and office building at 724 and 726 Fifth Avenue.

Shampan & Shampan, architects, have been commissioned to prepare plans and supervise a six-story apartment hotel to be erected at 25, 27, 29 Lafayette Avenue, Brooklyn, which is situated one block from the Y. M. C. A. and one block away from the Long Island Depot, to cost $400,000 for S. Welsch & Sons.

Amsa & Co. were the brokers in the sale of the two five-story apartments at 207 and 209 West Eighty-seventh Street for Louis & Herrman, Inc., to John Westerkamp. The property was held at $150,000.

THE BRONX MARKET.

The William Waldorf Astor Estate sold to John Straton O'Leary, the block front on the west side of Gerard Avenue, from East 165th Street to McClellan Street, in size 812 by 115 feet. The property was held at about $200,000 and sold for all cash. Leonard V. Lavelle was the broker.

Maurice Muller, Bronx builder, has added another parcel to his valuable holdings on Fordham Road. He purchased through the Herman A. Acker Corporation premises at 271 to 285 East Fordham Road, adjoining the Valentine Theatre. M. S. Ames is the seller. The property purchased is a one-story business building, comprising eight stores, on a plot 114 by 137 feet.

Joseph Caine & Co. sold for Miss Pauline Wilson the five-story new-law apartment house at 878 Kelly Street, on a plot 38 by 100 feet, having an annual rental of $8,064.

Slawson & Hobbs have sold for Daniel B. Freedman to Frank M. Knight 126 West Fordham Road, a three-story building on a lot 21 by 90 feet. It is the intention of the buyer to remodel for business.

Afo Realty Corporation, operators, Fred Oppenheimer, President, has resold through the same brokers, A. Meichionne and F. Delorens, from whom they bought last month the three-story and basement three-family single flat at 301 East 153d Street, near Courtlandt Avenue, to Antonio di Angilice, who will use part of the buildings for occupancy.

Operating Corporation Takes Leasehold.

The Long Beach Operating Corporation has taken a lease from Mount Calvary Independent Methodist Church, Inc., on property located on the northwest corner of Seventh Avenue and 139th Street, and known as 2,382, 2,384, 2,386, 2,388 Seventh Avenue and 201 and 203 West 139th Street, for a term of forty-two years. The property at the present time consists of six buildings used for dwelling purposes. The lessees will immediately make extensive alterations to these building, converting the first and second floors into stores and offices and the remaining floors into dwellings. The property at the present time is fully rented.

Yorkville Parcel Sold.

Max Yankauer and the estate of David Yankauer have sold to Groda Realty Company, Inc., two five-story apartments, 1,613-1,614 Avenue A, between Eighty-fifth and Eighty-sixth Streets, dimensions of plot 50 by 75. The property has been owned by the sellers for over thirty years. The purchase is for investment. Sperry & Yankauer, attorneys, who negotiated the transaction, represented the sellers.

PLANT LOVE NOTES ARE READ IN COURT

Written to Helene Jesmer While She Still Was In Hospital After Auto Crash.

'PRAYING FOR YOU,' HE SAID

Both Sides In Former Chorus Girl's $500,000 Suit Rest, and Case May Reach Jury Today.

Evidence introduced yesterday in the suit by Miss Helene Jesmer, former member of the chorus of the Ziegfeld and Greenwich Follies, against Philip M. Plant, heir to $15,000,000 in the will of his foster-father, the late Commodore Morton F. Plant, included love letters written from Europe in 1921 by Plant to Miss Jesmer. Student friends of Plant, who accompanied him and Miss Jesmer on an automobile ride from New Haven to New York on Nov. 1, 1920, testified that just before the accident, for which Miss Jesmer is asking $500,000 damages, she fell against Plant and "in her fright" grabbed the steering wheel.

Policemen who reported the accident testified that neither Plant nor the two boys had told them anything of this incident when reporting the accident. Sergeant William Nelson who filled out a police card describing the accident said that Plant told him that he was going south on the New Rochelle road and to avoid a car coming north, he speeded up, turned to the left, and ran into a tree.

Young Plant in his letters to Miss Jesmer while she was convalescing from the injuries received in the accident described the scenery of the Riviera, told of a game of baccarat at Monte Carlo, and described festivities in Paris and London. The letters were introduced in evidence over vigorous protest by J. Arthur Hilton, attorney for Plant, who said that they were irrelevant.

Lonely Without Her, He Said

Several times in the letters Plant inquired, "Do you miss me?" and added, "I hope you do." Again he wrote, "You don't know how lonely I am without you. I am thinking of you and praying for you. Remember that every word I said before I left you, I mean as much as ever."

In a letter written from Nice on Feb. 17, 1921, Plant says, "Here I am in the Palm Beach of France." He tells of trips to Monte Carlo and of winning 8,000 francs in one game and losing 500 in another.

"I wish I was at the Palais Royal with you instead of here" wrote Plant. "I hope and pray for your complete recovery. Why don't you write? You know how a person feels when he expects letters and doesn't get them. You do not know how much I enjoyed your books."

In a letter written on the stationery of the Ritz Carlton Hotel in London and dated Wednesday, March 16, 1921, Plant told of hearing the song "Snap Your Fingers at Care," which was sung in the Greenwich Village Follies at the time Miss Jesmer was in the chorus, and which Plant testified she was teaching the other occupants of his car just preceding the accident.

"Your picture of my taking all of Monte Carlo's money away was not very the prophetic" the letter went on. "I won a while, but then I lost all I had gained; I never did like that game anyway."

Causes Jury to Laugh.

This paragraph brought a laugh from the jurors and others in the courtroom. Following this, T. J. O'Neill, attorney for Miss Jesmer, made it plain why he had read the letters. The day previous Plant had testified that prior to the crash, which Miss Jesmer asserts robbed her of the sight of her left eye, destroyed the symmetry of her features and left her with a nervous trouble producing constant depression, every one in the car except him had taken a "swig" of whisky every time the bottle was passed around.

"Did you write those letters to the girl who had taken a swig of whisky every time the bottle came around?" demanded Mr. O'Neill.

"Yes," answered Plant.

Chester Morehead, 23 years old, of Chicago, and Edward Hercy, 21 years old, of St. Paul, Minn., friends of Plant, who were in the back seat of the car at the time of the accident, told nearly the same story as Plant. Both of them said that the car was not going more than twenty-five miles an hour at any time during the trip and that Miss Jesmer had interfered with the operation of the car by grabbing the steering wheel. Both sides rested yesterday and the court adjourned until today when Mr. O'Neill and Mr. Hilton will sum up and Justice Gavegan will deliver his charge to the jury.

Portuguese Fliers Held in Persia.

LISBON, Portugal, May 1.—The Portuguese aviators, Captain Brito Paes and Lieutenant Sarmento Beiros, flying to China, are reported to have been held up at Abu-Shehr, Persia, because their passports had not been vised. The Portuguese Government immediately took steps to remove the obstacles causing delay.

LOVE NOTE FORGERY CHARGED BY HARRIS

Banker Calls Letter "Malicious and Brazen Fabrication, Stimulated by Desperation."

PROMISES TO BARE FRAUD

Former Wife's Action to Reopen Annulment Case Up Today, but Postponement Is Likely.

Beverly D. Harris, formerly a Vice President of the National City Bank, characterized as a forgery yesterday a love letter which his wife, Eleanor Elaine Lee Harris, asserts he wrote to a friend during the recent trial of the suit for annulment of his marriage.

The following signed statement by Mr. Harris was given out at the offices of Ewing, Alley & Voorhees, who represented Mr. Harris in the annulment suit in which a jury found that Mrs. Harris had misrepresented her social position and moral reputation to him prior to their marriage:

"I denounce the letter appearing in the evening and morning papers and purporting to have been written by me as unqualifiedly a forgery. No such letter was ever written by me at the time this letter is dated or at any other time and there is no woman in existence with whom I have any intimate or improper relations to whom such a letter could have been written by me. The whole charge in the affidavit and in the letter is a fabrication of the most malicious and brazen character stimulated by desperation.

"There will be no step left untaken to expose and punish this latest fraud in its entirety at the proper time. The determination of the present motion will be necessarily somewhat deferred on account of the serious illness and unavoidable absence of Mr. Caruthers Ewing, my counsel, who has had exclusive charge of the case from the beginning.

"BEVERLY D. HARRIS."

The application of Mrs. Harris for a court order to compel her husband to furnish her with a complete record of the minutes of the trial filed in Part 1 of the Special Term of the Supreme Court yesterday, is on the calendar today before Justice Delahanty, but on account of illness of Mr. Ewing, who is in Tennessee, it is not likely that arguments will be heard.

THREE WOUNDED IN ATHENS

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ATHENS, May 1.—One policeman and two civilians were wounded this morning in a conflict between police and Communists. The latter, defying the orders of General Pangalos, Minister of Public Safety, concentrated in the Municipal Opera Square and disregarded the police invitation to disperse. Hose pipes were turned on the Communists, who were so enraged that they opened fire and caused a bad panic. Several Communist leaders were arrested.

WORLD COLLEGE PLAN FAILS

League Committee Finds the Obstacles Insurmountable.

BRUSSELS, May 1.—The sub-committee of the League of Nations' Intellectual Cooperation Committee, after studying proposals on the subject of education submitted by the Spanish Government, has come to the conclusion that at present the creation of an international university is confronted by insurmountable obstacles.

There are various measures which might be considered with a view to better cooperation among the universities of the various countries, says the committee's report. Much progress has already been effected toward this end and other measures further to promote the object are suggested.

VILLA FOR LABOR MINISTRY.

Paget Baxter Gives Brighton Refuge as Adjunct to Chequers.

BRIGHTON, England, May 1.—Following the example of Lord Lee, who placed Chequers Court at the disposal of England's Prime Minister as a country place, Paget Baxter, an admirer of the Labor Party, has set aside a small villa on the Western Esplanade for the use of Labor Ministers.

He is anxious that they should have the same facilities for week-end rest as those afforded the Premier at Chequers.

J. R. Clynes, Lord Privy Seal, was the first Minister to take advantage of the offer, spending his Easter vacation at the villa.

LONDON MEETINGS QUIET.

With Labor in Office May Day Puts on Dignity.

LONDON, May 1.—Labor's own May Day this year was perhaps the most peaceful and dignified celebration of the day in London since it became the practice to devote it to labor demonstrations. Wet, foggy weather and muddy streets helped to reduce the ranks of those who marched to only a few hundred, although the consciousness of labor's new-found dignity on the Government benches of Parliament may have been responsible in part for this mild observance.

The procession through the streets and the demonstrations in Hyde Park and other parks this year were not even marked by the usual flaring banners. There was no noisy singing nor any of the shouting which usually marks labor's annual May Day.

Only in one of the speeches was there any attempt to preach the radical Communism with which the banners declared various of the groups were associated. Young Communists occupied two or three of the platforms, and some of them attacked the MacDonald Government for its conservative policy, demanding closer relations with Soviet Russia. The group around one platform eventually passed a resolution demanding that the Government adopt a levy on capital and provide large doles for the unemployed.
